Kingston Bus Company Petitions to Quit; Mayor Newkirk Plans Fight at Hearing

Mayor Protests Proposal to End Two Trains on West Shore Line

Public Hearing Asked on Central's Request; 'Paper Train' Is Included

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said today that he has sent a letter of protest to the Public Service Commission in protest to the New York Central railroad's proposal to eliminate two early morning trains from its West Shore schedule, and he asks for a public hearing on the proposed curtailment of service.

The railroad has announced that it plans to stop after Sept. 30, the runs of Train No. 19, known on the line for years as "the paper train," out of Weehawken, and No. 6, eastbound.

The last run of these trains actually ends Oct. 1, but their leaving time is on Sept. 30. The "paper train," is scheduled to arrive in the city at 2:30 a. m. Standard Time from Weehawken and the eastbound train is due here at 3:10 a. m. Standard Time.

Letter to Commission

The mayor's letter to the Public Service Commission:

September 25, 1951

Mr. Murray G. Tanner, Secretary
New York State Public Service Commission
Albany
New York

Dear Sir:

It has been brought to the attention of my office that the New York Central (West Shore) Railroad Trains 6 and 19 will be discontinued on October 1st, 1951.

Since Trains 6 and 19 are a means of transportation for the people of the City of Kingston and the people of the County of Ulster, I firmly believe that the New York Central Railroad should not be allowed to discontinue these trains until such time as a hearing is held by the Public Service Commission.

I therefore ask the Public Service Commission of the State of New York to do everything within its power to see that the New York Central Railroad does not discontinue Trains 6 and 19 until such time as your Commission holds a public hearing in the Court House of the City of Kingston for the purpose of hearing those opposed to the discontinuance of these trains.

Trusting that you will give this matter your consideration, I am,

Sincerely yours
Mayor, Oscar V. Newkirk

(An Editorial)

This is a nation of Democracy, and everybody can stand on his Constitutional Rights.

One need not look to the major incidents shaping the destiny of our great country, for a practical demonstration either.

The whole pattern is applicable to everyday life in each and every community, with Kingston no exception.

Kingston police and firemen, in their bid for higher wages, were told by city officials that their petition was illegal in that it lacked a plan to raise the necessary funds.

It was the contention of Corporation Counsel James G. Connelly that without the plan the document did not meet the requirements of the new Home Rule Law.

Regardless of the stand taken by the attorney for the police and firemen, Connelly could have anticipated a taxpayers' suit if the referendum had been allowed to go on the ballot, lacking the plan.

So, with the interest of the Kingston taxpayers in mind, as well as that of the police and firemen, he insisted on the proper legal procedure.

With the attorney for the petitioners strongly contending that he could win without a definite plan, the case went through legal recourse with final decision up to the Court of Appeals.

Connelly's stand was upheld when the judges of the highest court agreed with Justice Hamm of the Supreme Court and the consensus of the Appellate Division.

The entire proceeding was a true demonstration of Democracy at Work.

Windsors Say Sad Farewell

The Duchess of Windsor clings to her grim-faced husband's hand as the ex-king leaves Paris, France, to join British Royal family's vigil for ailing King George VI. The Duchess, never accepted by the royal family, remained in Paris. The Duke entered a London hospital himself for what was described as a routine examination.

Losses Are Claimed by City Firm

One Plea Pending

Third Ward Extension Sought, Date Is Set Same Day

The Kingston City Transportation Corp., has filed with the Public Service Commission at Albany an application for leave to discontinue its buses under its franchise, the commission disclosed today.

A bus company spokesman indicated today that the application is based on evidence given at a hearing Aug. 24 on a petition to have the bus line extend service over streets in the Fourth Ward.

The Public Service Commission announced that a trial of the application will be heard before Commissioner John O'Brien at the county court house on Oct. 11 at 10:45 a. m.

Mayor Will Fight

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said today that he had received notice of the hearing on the application, and he declared: "I am going to oppose the application because I feel that the people of Kingston are entitled to bus service."

The bus line spokesman said the recent hearing showed that the corporation in 1947, 1948, 1949 and so far in 1951 has lost money and that in 1950 it received about one half the returns allowed by the Public Service Commission to such corporations.

The spokesman said also that "passenger traffic each year has been going down." In eight months of this year, he said, the line carried 81,019 less passengers than during the first eight months of 1950. The loss in money this year through Aug. 31, he said, was $11,198.15.

'Can't Afford Losses'

"The bus company is eager," he said, "to supply transportation service to those in Kingston who cannot afford to ride in automobiles, but it cannot carry on if it loses continuously."

A petition from residents of the Third Ward for extension of bus service there followed the Fourth Ward petition on which hearing has been held. Hearing on this application has been set for 10 a. m., Oct. 11, it was learned today.

Mayor Newkirk said that in the event the PSC granted the bus company's application the city would be faced with the problem of in some way supplying local bus service. This would have to be done, he said, but there is no way of determining at this time as to how it would be done. There have been instances in which municipalities have taken over transportation lines.

A thorough investigation and study of the bus company's monetary and traffic losses will be made before the PSC gives its decision.

The bus company spokesman said its application to discontinue, was before the Public Service Commission Sept. 24.

Top Authorities Say Atom Weapons Are Nearer Usage

However, Infantry, Bullets Will Remain Vital to Troop Power of Nation

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Americans had the word of top congressional and military authorities today that atomic wonder weapons are nearer the hands of U. S. fighting men, but that foot soldiers and bullets won't fade away.

There are expressions from Chairman Brien McMahon (D-Conn.) of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, Secretary of Defense Lovett and Secretary of the Army Pace.

They all agreed swift progress has been made. But there was a polite differing of emphasis. For his part, Pace cautiously let it be known that when the stuff is ready, the army will want it in quantity.

McMahon, who in a Senate speech last week urged that the nation get started now on all-out atomic weapons production which he said would reduce the cost of conventional armament, renewed his plea last night in an address at a federal bar association dinner.

Among other things, McMahon said the Atomic Energy Commission has in being or in develop-

Women Are Invited To Attend Meeting

The Ulster County Republican Women's Club will hold its first autumn meeting tomorrow night at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Parker K. Brinnier, president of the club, announced today that Charles H. Gaffney, local attorney, will discuss the woman's role in the forthcoming city and county campaign. In addition Warren Russell will show moving pictures supplied by the New York State Department of Commerce. The films will be "Curiosity Shop," Story of Modern Roses," and "Waterways of New York State."

The committee in charge, Mrs. Oscar Newkirk and Mrs. Robert Cousins, invite all women of Ulster county to attend.

King Continues His Progress, but Had Restless Night

London, Sept. 26 (AP) — King George's doctors reported today the monarch spent a less restful night but still keeps on gaining strength after Sunday's dangerous lung operation.

They also said his general condition is good.

One medical expert said the phrase "less restful night" need not necessarily cause any concern. He explained that the doctors probably have cut down the amount of opiates given to the king to ease his pain in the period immediately after the operation in which all or part of a lung was cut out.

The medical bulletin was the seventh since the operation. It said:

"The king has had a less restful night but his majesty's general condition this morning is good and progress is maintained."

'Able to Come and Go'

Meanwhile, a Buckingham Palace spokesman disclosed the four doctors who have attended the king 24 hours a day are now able "to come and go."

But at least two have stayed at the palace all the time along with eight nurses.

The bulletin today was signed by these four doctors and the surgeon who operated on the king. The surgeon has called each morning at the palace to consult with the others on terms of the bulletin.

Happy headlines in the morning papers had hailed bulletin No. 6 last night which indicated the king was better. Medical experts backed up the optimism.

UN Rejects New Red Suggestion

Tokyo, Sept. 26 (AP)—The United Nations command today rejected another Communist suggestion that full-dress Korean truce talks be resumed immediately.

The allies insisted that arrangements first be made to prevent further interruptions when the meetings are resumed.

The Reds made their repeat proposal at a meeting of allied and Communist liaison officers in Kaesong, Korea, site of the stalled cease-fire talks.

It was the third and longest session held by the liaison teams in an effort to get the talks rolling again.

The Reds still were demanding immediate resumption of the truce talks by the full delegations. The UN command was insisting that the liaison officers agree on conditions which will prevent further interruptions of main armistice talks.

The Reds broke off the Kaesong talks Aug. 23 after charging that an allied plane bombed the conference site in an attempt to murder the Red delegation. The UN command denied the charge.

Carnegie Awaits Heir

Rome, Sept. 26 (AP)—Author-lecturer Dale Carnegie today disclosed that he is going to become a father at the age of 63. Carnegie, who wrote "How to Win Friends and Influence People" and other successful books, said his wife expects a child in December. His wife is the former Dorothy Vanderpool of Tulsa, Okla., whom Carnegie married in 1944. She is in her mid-thirties and has a daughter by a previous marriage.

Gross Is Indicted

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Bookie Harry Gross was indicted today on ten counts of criminal contempt by the Brooklyn rackets grand jury. If convicted on all counts, Gross could get a maximum of ten years in jail and $10,000 fine. The criminal contempt indictment for Gross' refusal to testify last week in the police graft trial was handed up to Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz by the grand jury. Gross pleaded innocent to the charges and was returned to jail.

Price Control Violations Are Charged in 27 Cities

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The full enforcement strength of the Office of Price Stablization (OPS) fell on the nation's meat packing and distributing industry yesterday and as the day closed OPS agents charged 96 price control violations in 27 cities.

It was a temporary and incomplete total. The Atlanta Price Office said enforcement raids there showed a "majority" of big and little slaughterers in violation. The Los Angeles office announced packers in its area "fairly generally" failed to keep required records and in other cases refused to open their records to inspection.

St. Paul, Minn., headed the violations list—with 30 alleged offenses—in first reports from the over 200 cities where OPS inspection teams invaded meat plants, checking all angles of the business concerned in OPS regulations. Reported violations ranged from charges of over-ceiling prices to falsely weighed carcasses, inaccurate scales, improper grading and stamping of meat, and incomplete records.

As OPS Director Michael V. DiSalles' enforcement officials by the hundreds put the meat industry under a legal microscope, the price boss himself took the offensive with a speech at San Diego, Calif. He declared meat prices are too high, accused some elements of the beef industry of trying to destroy price controls and declared OPS will not "surrender."

DiSalle cited specifically the American Meat Institute, which hit back with a statement that DiSalle is a "frustrated individual" whose control program is "totally unworkable" and is "leading to chaos in the public's beef supply."

The meat institute said "the solution will get progressively worse unless controls are promptly removed."

Simultaneously, there were these other developments here on the controls front:

1. Economic Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson and Price Stabilizer Eric Johnston gave a group of writers and editors a briefing in which it was disclosed that:

—The Defense Production Administration has already for use orders that would re-impose rent controls on 3,000,000 dwelling units in 200 cities whenever Wilson and Secretary of Defense Lovett decide they are needed.

—OPS is going to replace "formula" price controls for many manufactured goods with dollars and cents ceilings.

—New beef retail ceilings—a follow-up to higher beef wholesale prices authorized last week—will go into effect this week, adding an average 1½ cents a pound to butcher counter beef prices.

2. OPS announced new dollars

One of the largest real estate transactions in the Woodstock area was consummated Tuesday when ownership of the Mill Stream Motel and dwelling house on the Tannery Brook road was transferred from John W., and Betty Thompson to Robert H., Florence H., and Hilon B. Sperring of Oak Park, Ill.

The new owners will take possession October 1. Brokers in the transaction were E. H. Schultz and S. C. Schultz, Kingston. Martin Comeau represented the purchasers and John E. Egan represented the sellers.

The Mill Stream Motel, one of the most modern motels in eastern New York, was erected about three years ago and the dwelling house nearby was erected two years ago. The premises were purchased in 1950 by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson from the builder. There are 10 units in the motel with heat, tile baths and showers and every modern improvement. The motel is equipped for year around occupancy. In the house are two apartments.

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The position of the Treasury Sept. 24: Net budget receipts $487,789,619.40; budget expenditures $147,992,528.40; cash balance $6,485,662,304.57; customs receipts for month $32,938,015.36; budget receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $11,075,530,712.70; budget expenditures for fiscal year $13,749,712,742.95; budget deficit $2,674,182,030.25; total debt $257,106,845,868.68; increase over previous day $21,197,881.62; gold assets $22,013,089,847.09.

Britain Balks at Edict Ordering 300 Men Out of Abadan October 3

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee is asking President Truman personally for help in Britain's crucial oil dispute with Iran, informed sources said today.

Britain protested in the strongest terms in Tehran earlier today against an Iranian edict ordering some 300 British oil men to quit the world's biggest refinery in Abadan by Oct. 3.

In a personal message to Truman, informed sources said, Attlee likely will make it clear that Britain is determined to stay on in Abadan.

Attlee conferred last night with his top advisors and military chiefs after Iran ordered the British oil men expelled.

The foreign office said Britain's protest to the Iranian government underscored the gravity of developments in the months-old wrangle over the $1,500,000,000 Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's Nationalist Government has nationalized the properties of Anglo-Iranian, which is controlled by the British government.

Speculation on Subject

There was speculation here that Attlee might explain to President Truman measures the British might take to safeguard the position of British oil technicians in Iran. Britain has planes, ships and troops within easy striking distance of the refinery city, which is on an island in the Shatt-al-Arab river dividing Iran from Iraq.

The British protest to Iran warned that the decision to expel the oil men "must have a grave effect on Anglo-Iranian relations."

The protest was delivered orally in Tehran.

Veteran Says Ruppell Took $1,500 for License

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—A one-legged war veteran put the finger yesterday on Edward A. Ruppell, Staten Island Republican leader, as the man who took $1,500 from him to obtain a liquor store license.

The accusation was made before the State Crime Commission by Edward F. Conti, who lost a leg in a land mine explosion in Italy.

Hobbling off the witness stand, the 26-year-old ex-GI pointed a finger under Ruppell's nose.

The commission's investigation of links between politics and crime in New York city's country-like borough continues today.

Shortly before Conti made the dramatic court room identification, another veteran had similary accused Ruppell and injected the name of George W. Gatz, chief executive officer of the State Liquor Authority.

This witness was Henry E. Lucking, 32, of Glen Rock, N. J. The air force veteran said he paid Ruppell $2,000 in 1945 and 1946 to get a retail liquor store license. He, too, singled out the emotionless GOP leader in the court room.

The identifications came at the end of a long day of testimony in which a score of witnesses told of numerous alleged payoffs for political jobs and official favors.

Among major developments at the sixth day of public hearings on Richmond county were these:

1. Two witnesses testified Gatz was involved with Ruppell in negotiations that led to issuance of liquor store licenses after money was paid to Ruppell. Gatz denied any wrongdoing.

2. A New York state game protector testified he refused a $1,500 bribe allegedly offered by Ruppell to permit lobster fishermen to bring in lobsters under the legal

2-County Backing Given to Employes Of Reade Theatres

19 Affiliates of Union Organization Vote to Stand by Workers Out on Strike

Affiliates of 19 trades in two counties are backing employes of Walter Reade theatres now out on strike.

This was announced today by Stephen Gill of Kingston, secretary-treasurer of the Ulster-Sullivan Counties Building Trades Council.

Gill, a painters' delegate to the dual-county organization, said it voted to support the strikers at a meeting held last night at South Falsburgh.

Nineteen building trades were represented, he said, and the decision established by a poll was unanimous.

The issue of a union election is reported to be the cause of the strike in which are involved cahsiers, ushers, candy attendants and porters.

Picketing started last Saturday at the Kingston, Broadway and 9W Drive-In theatres.

Striking employes claim membership in Local B-42 IATSE, AFL, according to Phoebe Van Wagenen, president.

Management contends it has no such union in any of its other enterprises and calls for an election first under the supervision of the labor board as required by law.

In a published statement, it added, "This was not acceptable to some of our employes who struck without notice . . ."

Security Curbs Protested by Press

President's Order Extends to All Branches of Government

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Disclaiming any intent to keep legitimate news from the public, President Truman has extended a system of government curbs designed to deny information of military value to potential enemies.

Some newspaper executives protested the effect would be some suppression of news, although Mr. Truman said the sole intent of his executive order is to guard against disclosure "harmful to the security of the United States."

The President's order, issued last night, extended to all agencies of the government which handle military information the same tight security already in effect in the Defense and State Departments.

The order makes no attempt to restrict what may be published or broadcast by newspapers and radio. It applies only to officials and employes of the government and carries no penalties if they violate its terms.

From now on, civilian agencies which handle matters affecting the defense program must classify certain material as "security in-

The President's order, issued last night, extended to all agencies of the government which handle military information the same tight security already in effect in the Defense and State Departments.

The order makes no attempt to restrict what may be published or broadcast by newspapers and radio. It applies only to officials and employes of the government and carries no penalties if they violate its terms.

Top Authorities Say Atom Weapons Are Nearer Usage

However, Infantry, Bullets Will Remain Vital to Troop Power of Nation

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Americans had the word of top congressional and military authorities today that atomic wonder weapons are nearer the hands of U. S. fighting men, but that foot soldiers and bullets won't fade away.

There are expressions from Chairman Brien McMahon (D-Conn.) of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, Secretary of Defense Lovett and Secretary of the Army Pace.

They all agreed swift progress has been made. But there was a polite differing of emphasis. For his part, Pace cautiously let it be known that when the stuff is ready, the army will want it in quantity.

McMahon, who in a Senate speech last week urged that the nation get started now on all-out atomic weapons production which he said would reduce the cost of conventional armament, renewed his plea last night in an address at a federal bar association dinner.

Among other things, McMahon said the Atomic Energy Commission has in being or in develop-

Women Are Invited To Attend Meeting

The Ulster County Republican Women's Club will hold its first autumn meeting tomorrow night at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Parker K. Brinnier, president of the club, announced today that Charles H. Gaffney, local attorney, will discuss the woman's role in the forthcoming city and county campaign. In addition Warren Russell will show moving pictures supplied by the New York State Department of Commerce. The films will be "Curiosity Shop," Story of Modern Roses," and "Waterways of New York State."

The committee in charge, Mrs. Oscar Newkirk and Mrs. Robert Cousins, invite all women of Ulster county to attend.

King Continues His Progress, but Had Restless Night

London, Sept. 26 (AP) — King George's doctors reported today the monarch spent a less restful night but still keeps on gaining strength after Sunday's dangerous lung operation.

They also said his general condition is good.

One medical expert said the phrase "less restful night" need not necessarily cause any concern. He explained that the doctors probably have cut down the amount of opiates given to the king to ease his pain in the period immediately after the operation in which all or part of a lung was cut out.

The medical bulletin was the seventh since the operation. It said:

"The king has had a less restful night but his majesty's general condition this morning is good and progress is maintained."

'Able to Come and Go'

Meanwhile, a Buckingham Palace spokesman disclosed the four doctors who have attended the king 24 hours a day are now able "to come and go."

But at least two have stayed at the palace all the time along with eight nurses.

The bulletin today was signed by these four doctors and the surgeon who operated on the king. The surgeon has called each morning at the palace to consult with the others on terms of the bulletin.

Happy headlines in the morning papers had hailed bulletin No. 6 last night which indicated the king was better. Medical experts backed up the optimism.

UN Rejects New Red Suggestion

Tokyo, Sept. 26 (AP)—The United Nations command today rejected another Communist suggestion that full-dress Korean truce talks be resumed immediately.

The allies insisted that arrangements first be made to prevent further interruptions when the meetings are resumed.

The Reds made their repeat proposal at a meeting of allied and Communist liaison officers in Kaesong, Korea, site of the stalled cease-fire talks.

It was the third and longest session held by the liaison teams in an effort to get the talks rolling again.

The Reds still were demanding immediate resumption of the truce talks by the full delegations. The UN command was insisting that the liaison officers agree on conditions which will prevent further interruptions of main armistice talks.

The Reds broke off the Kaesong talks Aug. 23 after charging that an allied plane bombed the conference site in an attempt to murder the Red delegation. The UN command denied the charge.

Gross Is Indicted

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Bookie Harry Gross was indicted today on ten counts of criminal contempt by the Brooklyn rackets grand jury. If convicted on all counts, Gross could get a maximum of ten years in jail and $10,000 fine. The criminal contempt indictment for Gross' refusal to testify last week in the police graft trial was handed up to Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz by the grand jury. Gross pleaded innocent to the charges and was returned to jail.

Carnegie Awaits Heir

Rome, Sept. 26 (AP)—Author-lecturer Dale Carnegie today disclosed that he is going to become a father at the age of 63. Carnegie, who wrote "How to Win Friends and Influence People" and other successful books, said his wife expects a child in December. His wife is the former Dorothy Vanderpool of Tulsa, Okla., whom Carnegie married in 1944. She is in her mid-thirties and has a daughter by a previous marriage.

Price Control Violations Are Charged in 27 Cities

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The full enforcement strength of the Office of Price Stablization (OPS) fell on the nation's meat packing and distributing industry yesterday and as the day closed OPS agents charged 96 price control violations in 27 cities.

It was a temporary and incomplete total. The Atlanta Price Office said enforcement raids there showed a "majority" of big and little slaughterers in violation. The Los Angeles office announced packers in its area "fairly generally" failed to keep required records and in other cases refused to open their records to inspection.

St. Paul, Minn., headed the violations list—with 30 alleged offenses—in first reports from the over 200 cities where OPS inspection teams invaded meat plants, checking all angles of the business concerned in OPS regulations. Reported violations ranged from charges of over-ceiling prices to falsely weighed carcasses, inaccurate scales, improper grading and stamping of meat, and incomplete records.

As OPS Director Michael V. DiSalles' enforcement officials by the hundreds put the meat industry under a legal microscope, the price boss himself took the offensive with a speech at San Diego, Calif. He declared meat prices are too high, accused some elements of the beef industry of trying to destroy price controls and declared OPS will not "surrender."

DiSalle cited specifically the American Meat Institute, which hit back with a statement that DiSalle is a "frustrated individual" whose control program is "totally unworkable" and is "leading to chaos in the public's beef supply."

The meat institute said "the solution will get progressively worse unless controls are promptly removed."

Simultaneously, there were these other developments here on the controls front:

1. Economic Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson and Price Stabilizer Eric Johnston gave a group of writers and editors a briefing in which it was disclosed that:

—The Defense Production Administration has already for use orders that would re-impose rent controls on 3,000,000 dwelling units in 200 cities whenever Wilson and Secretary of Defense Lovett decide they are needed.

—OPS is going to replace "formula" price controls for many manufactured goods with dollars and cents ceilings.

—New beef retail ceilings—a follow-up to higher beef wholesale prices authorized last week—will go into effect this week, adding an average 1½ cents a pound to butcher counter beef prices.

2. OPS announced new dollars

Veteran Says Ruppell Took $1,500 for License

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—A one-legged war veteran put the finger yesterday on Edward A. Ruppell, Staten Island Republican leader, as the man who took $1,500 from him to obtain a liquor store license.

The accusation was made before the State Crime Commission by Edward F. Conti, who lost a leg in a land mine explosion in Italy.

Hobbling off the witness stand, the 26-year-old ex-GI pointed a finger under Ruppell's nose.

The commission's investigation of links between politics and crime in New York city's country-like borough continues today.

Shortly before Conti made the dramatic court room identification, another veteran had similary accused Ruppell and injected the name of George W. Gatz, chief executive officer of the State Liquor Authority.

This witness was Henry E. Lucking, 32, of Glen Rock, N. J. The air force veteran said he paid Ruppell $2,000 in 1945 and 1946 to get a retail liquor store license. He, too, singled out the emotionless GOP leader in the court room.

The identifications came at the end of a long day of testimony in which a score of witnesses told of numerous alleged payoffs for political jobs and official favors.

Among major developments at the sixth day of public hearings on Richmond county were these:

1. Two witnesses testified Gatz was involved with Ruppell in negotiations that led to issuance of liquor store licenses after money was paid to Ruppell. Gatz denied any wrongdoing.

2. A New York state game protector testified he refused a $1,500 bribe allegedly offered by Ruppell to permit lobster fishermen to bring in lobsters under the legal

Kingston Bus Company Petitions to Quit; Mayor Newkirk Plans Fight at Hearing

Public Hearing Asked on Central's Request; 'Paper Train' Is Included

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said today that he has sent a letter of protest to the Public Service Commission in protest to the New York Central railroad's proposal to eliminate two early morning trains from its West Shore schedule, and he asks for a public hearing on the proposed curtailment of service.

The railroad has announced that it plans to stop after Sept. 30, the runs of Train No. 19, known on the line for years as "the paper train," out of Weehawken, and No. 6, eastbound.

The last run of these trains actually ends Oct. 1, but their leaving time is on Sept. 30. The "paper train," is scheduled to arrive in the city at 2:30 a. m. Standard Time from Weehawken and the eastbound train is due here at 3:10 a. m. Standard Time.

Letter to Commission

The mayor's letter to the Public Service Commission:

September 25, 1951

Mr. Murray G. Tanner, Secretary
New York State Public Service Commission
Albany
New York

Dear Sir:

It has been brought to the attention of my office that the New York Central (West Shore) Railroad Trains 6 and 19 will be discontinued on October 1st, 1951.

Since Trains 6 and 19 are a means of transportation for the people of the City of Kingston and the people of the County of Ulster, I firmly believe that the New York Central Railroad should not be allowed to discontinue these trains until such time as a hearing is held by the Public Service Commission.

I therefore ask the Public Service Commission of the State of New York to do everything within its power to see that the New York Central Railroad does not discontinue Trains 6 and 19 until such time as your Commission holds a public hearing in the Court House of the City of Kingston for the purpose of hearing those opposed to the discontinuance of these trains.

Trusting that you will give this matter your consideration, I am,

Sincerely yours
Mayor, Oscar V. Newkirk

(An Editorial)

This is a nation of Democracy, and everybody can stand on his Constitutional Rights.

One need not look to the major incidents shaping the destiny of our great country, for a practical demonstration either.

The whole pattern is applicable to everyday life in each and every community, with Kingston no exception.

Kingston police and firemen, in their bid for higher wages, were told by city officials that their petition was illegal in that it lacked a plan to raise the necessary funds.

It was the contention of Corporation Counsel James G. Connelly that without the plan the document did not meet the requirements of the new Home Rule Law.

Regardless of the stand taken by the attorney for the police and firemen, Connelly could have anticipated a taxpayers' suit if the referendum had been allowed to go on the ballot, lacking the plan.

So, with the interest of the Kingston taxpayers in mind, as well as that of the police and firemen, he insisted on the proper legal procedure.

With the attorney for the petitioners strongly contending that he could win without a definite plan, the case went through legal recourse with final decision up to the Court of Appeals.

Connelly's stand was upheld when the judges of the highest court agreed with Justice Hamm of the Supreme Court and the consensus of the Appellate Division.

The entire proceeding was a true demonstration of Democracy at Work.

Will These Wheels Continue to Roll?

Losses Are Claimed by City Firm

Third Ward Extension Sought, Date Is Set Same Day

The Kingston City Transportation Corp., has filed with the Public Service Commission at Albany an application for leave to discontinue its buses under its franchise, the commission disclosed today.

A bus company spokesman indicated today that the application is based on evidence given at a hearing Aug. 24 on a petition to have the bus line extend service over streets in the Fourth Ward.

The Public Service Commission announced that a trial of the application will be heard before Commissioner John O'Brien at the county court house on Oct. 11 at 10:45 a. m.

Mayor Will Fight

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said today that he had received notice of the hearing on the application, and he declared: "I am going to oppose the application because I feel that the people of Kingston are entitled to bus service."

The bus line spokesman said the recent hearing showed that the corporation in 1947, 1948, 1949 and so far in 1951 has lost money and that in 1950 it received about one half the returns allowed by the Public Service Commission to such corporations.

The spokesman said also that "passenger traffic each year has been going down." In eight months of this year, he said, the line carried 81,019 less passengers than during the first eight months of 1950. The loss in money this year through Aug. 31, he said, was $11,198.15.

'Can't Afford Losses'

"The bus company is eager," he said, "to supply transportation service to those in Kingston who cannot afford to ride in automobiles, but it cannot carry on if it loses continuously."

A petition from residents of the Third Ward for extension of bus service there followed the Fourth Ward petition on which hearing has been held. Hearing on this application has been set for 10 a. m., Oct. 11, it was learned today.

Mayor Newkirk said that in the event the PSC granted the bus company's application the city would be faced with the problem of in some way supplying local bus service. This would have to be done, he said, but there is no way of determining at this time as to how it would be done. There have been instances in which municipalities have taken over transportation lines.

A thorough investigation and study of the bus company's monetary and traffic losses will be made before the PSC gives its decision.

The bus company spokesman said its application to discontinue, was before the Public Service Commission Sept. 24.

Attlee Will Request Aid From U.S. in Iranian Fight

Britain Balks at Edict Ordering 300 Men Out of Abadan October 3

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee is asking President Truman personally for help in Britain's crucial oil dispute with Iran, informed sources said today.

Britain protested in the strongest terms in Tehran earlier today against an Iranian edict ordering some 300 British oil men to quit the world's biggest refinery in Abadan by Oct. 3.

In a personal message to Truman, informed sources said, Attlee likely will make it clear that Britain is determined to stay on in Abadan.

Attlee conferred last night with his top advisors and military chiefs after Iran ordered the British oil men expelled.

The foreign office said Britain's protest to the Iranian government underscored the gravity of developments in the months-old wrangle over the $1,500,000,000 Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's Nationalist Government has nationalized the properties of Anglo-Iranian, which is controlled by the British government.

Speculation on Subject

There was speculation here that Attlee might explain to President Truman measures the British might take to safeguard the position of British oil technicians in Iran. Britain has planes, ships and troops within easy striking distance of the refinery city, which is on an island in the Shatt-al-Arab river dividing Iran from Iraq.

The British protest to Iran warned that the decision to expel the oil men "must have a grave effect on Anglo-Iranian relations."

The protest was delivered orally in Tehran.

Veteran Says Ruppell Took $1,500 for License

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—A one-legged war veteran put the finger yesterday on Edward A. Ruppell, Staten Island Republican leader, as the man who took $1,500 from him to obtain a liquor store license.

The accusation was made before the State Crime Commission by Edward F. Conti, who lost a leg in a land mine explosion in Italy.

Hobbling off the witness stand, the 26-year-old ex-GI pointed a finger under Ruppell's nose.

The commission's investigation of links between politics and crime in New York city's country-like borough continues today.

Shortly before Conti made the dramatic court room identification, another veteran had similary accused Ruppell and injected the name of George W. Gatz, chief executive officer of the State Liquor Authority.

2-County Backing Given to Employes Of Reade Theatres

19 Affiliates of Union Organization Vote to Stand by Workers Out on Strike

Affiliates of 19 trades in two counties are backing employes of Walter Reade theatres now out on strike.

This was announced today by Stephen Gill of Kingston, secretary-treasurer of the Ulster-Sullivan Counties Building Trades Council.

Gill, a painters' delegate to the dual-county organization, said it voted to support the strikers at a meeting held last night at South Fallsburgh.

Nineteen building trades were represented, he said, and the decision established by a poll was unanimous.

The issue of a union election is reported to be the cause of the strike in which are involved cahsiers, ushers, candy attendants and porters.

Picketing started last Saturday at the Kingston, Broadway and 9W Drive-In theatres.

Striking employes claim membership in Local B-42 IATSE, AFL, according to Phoebe Van Wagenen, president.

Management contends it has no such union in any of its other enterprises and calls for an election first under the supervision of the labor board as required by law.

In a published statement, it added, "This was not acceptable to some of our employes who struck without notice . . ."

Security Curbs Protested by Press

President's Order Extends to All Branches of Government

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Disclaiming any intent to keep legitimate news from the public, President Truman has extended a system of government curbs designed to deny information of military value to potential enemies.

Some newspaper executives protested the effect would be some suppression of news, although Mr. Truman said the sole intent of his executive order is to guard against disclosure "harmful to the security of the United States."

The President's order, issued last night, extended to all agencies of the government which handle military information the same tight security already in effect in the Defense and State Departments.

The order makes no attempt to restrict what may be published or broadcast by newspapers and radio. It applies only to officials and employes of the government and carries no penalties if they violate its terms.

Navy Offers Tests For Students for College Courses

The navy announced recently that the sixth nation-wide competitive examination for its College Training Program has been scheduled for December 8, 1951, and will be open to high school seniors or graduates within the age requirements. Successful candidates will be given a four-year college education at government expense and will be commissioned as officers of the navy or marine corps upon graduation.

The program is open to male citizens of the United States between the ages of 17 and 21, and quotas have been assigned to each state and territory on the basis of its high school population. Those who are successful in passing the aptitude test will be interviewed and given physical examinations; then, if they are found in all respects qualified, their names will be submitted to state and territorial Selection Committees composed of prominent citizens and naval officers. The navy expects to enter about 2,000 students into the program commencing with the fall term of college, 1952.

Will Be Assigned

The students selected by these competitive examinations will be assigned to the 52 Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps units which are located in various universities and colleges in the United States. If accepted by the college, they will be appointed midshipmen, U.S.N.R., and will have their tuition, books, and normal fees paid for by the government. In addition they will receive pay at the rate of $50 a month for the four-year period.

Upon graduation they may be commissioned as officers in the regular navy or marine corps and required to serve on active duty for two years. At the end of this time they may apply for retention in the regular navy or marine corps, or transfer to the reserve and depending upon the needs of the service, return to civilian life.

Applications are available at high schools, colleges, and navy recruiting stations. James E. Tobin, guidance director, Kingston High School, who is acting as the navy's local civilian representative, will be pleased to provide specific information about the program, including the time and place of the competitive examination, the method of making application, and the specific age and scholastic qualifications.

Navy Offers Tests For Students for College Courses

The navy announced recently that the sixth nation-wide competitive examination for its College Training Program has been scheduled for December 8, 1951, and will be open to high school seniors or graduates within the age requirements. Successful candidates will be given a four-year college education at government expense and will be commissioned as officers of the navy or marine corps upon graduation.

The program is open to male citizens of the United States between the ages of 17 and 21, and quotas have been assigned to each state and territory on the basis of its high school population. Those who are successful in passing the aptitude test will be interviewed and given physical examinations; then, if they are found in all respects qualified, their names will be submitted to state and territorial Selection Committees composed of prominent citizens and naval officers. The navy expects to enter about 2,000 students into the program commencing with the fall term of college, 1952.

Will Be Assigned

The students selected by these competitive examinations will be assigned to the 52 Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps units which are located in various universities and colleges in the United States. If accepted by the college, they will be appointed midshipmen, U.S.N.R., and will have their tuition, books, and normal fees paid for by the government. In addition they will receive pay at the rate of $50 a month for the four-year period.

Upon graduation they may be commissioned as officers in the regular navy or marine corps and required to serve on active duty for two years. At the end of this time they may apply for retention in the regular navy or marine corps, or transfer to the reserve and depending upon the needs of the service, return to civilian life.

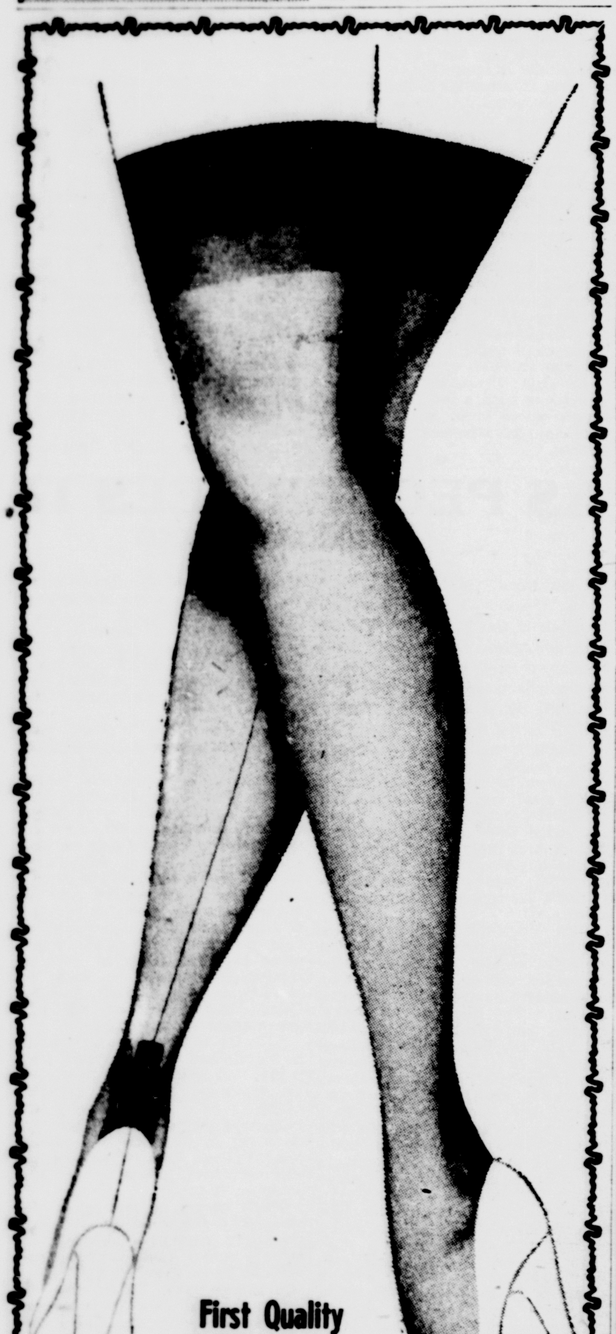

Applications are available at high schools, colleges, and navy recruiting stations. James E. Tobin, guidance director, Kingston High School, who is acting as the navy's local civilian representative, will be pleased to provide specific information about the program, including the time and place of the competitive examination, the method of making application, and the specific age and scholastic qualifications.

Its guard opened fire, killing Choo Ah Kong. A large reward had been offered for his arrest.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP) —Governor Dewey says everyone should keep fire-fighting equipment, such as extinguishers and buckets of sand, in his home.

The governor made the suggestion yesterday in designating Oct. 5-13 as "Fire Prevention Week" in New York state.

"No fewer than 10,000 people, by a conservative estimate, lost their lives, through fires, in the United States in 1950," Dewey said. And, he added, about $688,460,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire last year.

UNITED EFFORT FOR SCRAP IRON

Scrap iron is needed badly in the process of making steel and Ulster County under the leadership of Emil G. Boessneck, Jr., will do its part in this vital work.

Mr. Boessneck has been appointed chairman of the Ulster County Scrap Mobilization Committee, which will contact all businesses and agencies to aid in the scrap iron collection campaign. The committee will seek dormant scrap in the form of obsolete machinery, tools, jigs and dies, fixtures and other equipment which cannot be used.

Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson, who is charged with the responsibility of keeping production high to meet defense goals, declares that an all-out effort by industry to bring in scrap metal would help to relieve what may be a dangerous shortage.

Once set in motion, our defense effort is a machine which depends to an important degree on its own momentum to help keep it rolling. A slowdown on one section of the defense program is bound to be reflected in every other. Without scrap metal, steel production will lag; without steel the production of tanks, planes and guns will fall below the goals set.

The interdependence of one unit upon another is not confined to industrial production. Unless all of us stand ready to do our individual jobs we cannot reach the strength we need to assure our safety. An integrated effort on the part of industry, labor and the armed forces is the only thing that can assure us of any measure of safety. All of us must decide whether our freedom is worth the labor and effort it will take to preserve it. It is an important decision and one we may be able to make only once.

HATS AND BALD HEADS

The United Hatters Union holds a warning of possible baldness over the heads of men who venture out hatless in the midday sun. The hatters, who have become increasingly concerned about the number of men who do not wear hats, tell men that if they do not wear hats there is a possibility that they won't wear hair.

The hat makers quote test findings that hats deflect from 87 to 93 per cent of the sun's rays. They quote a Harvard Medical School dermatologist who says that overexposure to sunlight may be a cause of falling hair. A man whose eyes are unshaded by a hat also suffers impairment of his efficiency at the wheel of an automobile, the hatters maintain.

The threat of possible baldness and reduced driving efficiency may or may not help to stimulate the sale of hats. But if the hatter could promise that wearing hats would help the purchasers to grow new hair on heads already getting bald they would not be able to meet the immediate demand.

Those who have stuck to their seats to watch a long ball game to its finish may be glad that they were not taking in a recent contest in Japan. Two teams played 37 innings before a decision was reached, and took two days to do it. When darkness interrupted the contest after nine innings, it was agreed to continue next day. When one team finally won two to one, they had played eight hours. This illustrates the defect of Japanese ball players that they are likely to be poor hitters, while good fielders and runners.

A bill submitted to the Massachusetts Legislature proposed the naming of a section of new highway "Taxpayers Boulevard," after the men and women who pay out the money to finance new roads and maintain old ones. The author of the bill pointed out that while roads have been named for heroes, statesmen, writers and many others, none has ever been named after the ordinary citizen who pays his taxes faithfully and thus makes all roads possible.

One of the most misleading statements ever made is "I'll be with you in a minute."

Getting into hot water has its merits, particularly on Saturday nights.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

DIME A DOZEN

Dean Acheson told Eugene Dooman, both of the State Department, that China experts were a dime a dozen. To a degree, that is correct because during the past 100 years, a surprisingly large number of Americans, public officials, missionaries, teachers, doctors, businessmen, sea captains went to China.

Some became expert in language and dialect; some played important roles in the administration of the country. Especially able have been missionaries, who always live close to the people, often far inland away from the westernized atmosphere of the treaty ports.

For instance, Roy Anderson, who was born in Soochow, whose father, a former newspaperman in Atlanta, Georga, turned missionary, was president of Soochow University. Roy Anderson spoke many dialects of Chinese and played Chinese politics like a true southern Democrat. He was an important factor in Sun Yat-sen's revolution of 1911 which defeated the Manchus.

Subsequently, from 1911 to 1925 when he died, Anderson made and unmade cabinet officers, provincial governors and, in one instance, even a president. He died in Peking on the very same day that Sun Yat-sen died there and the Chinese erected a monument to him.

There were many such Americans in China. Rodney Gilbert, for instance, who occasionally writes for the "New York Herald Tribune," was regarded by Chinese as one of the best informed men in the country. Upton Close was an adviser to Wu Pei-fu. George Fitch was, always close to Chiang Kai-shek. At one time, nearly every Chinese war-lord or official of standing had an American adviser, and many of them did excellent service.

The businessmen, particularly those connected with the British-American Tobacco Company and the Standard Oil Company of New York, stayed long and knew much. No man has accumulated more information and more friends than Major Arthur Bassett of the British-American Tobacco Company. His career in China might be cited as an example of prolonged residence and vast knowledge.

A Missourian, he arrived in China in 1906 from the Philippines where he was an American lawyer. He was the United States district attorney attached to the American court under extraterritorial jurisdiction. Subsequently, he joined the British-American Tobacco Company. During World War I, he was provost marshal attached to the 15th Infantry in Tientsin. He was an astute intelligence officer.

Bassett possessed an unerring intuition concerning Chinese which made it possible for him to take an obscure cigargette, the "Ruby Queen," and make it the best selling brand in the country by the employment of Chinese methods of selling through a Chinese organization of his own devising. As a matter of fact, his success served to revolutionize the sales methods of all companies dealing in imported consumer's goods.

In the 1930's there must have been a thousand or more men and women of this calibre in the United States, Americans with a vast and intensive knowledge of Chinese, Chinese affairs and personalities, and some of them with prolonged residence in that country and other parts of Asia. They were all available for the service of our government.

After Roosevelt became President, most of the so-called "old China hands" were dropped by the State Department. Because of their long residence in the country, they were supposed to be prejudiced. Because they knew so many important Chinese personally and intimately, they were supposed to be biased. Even men in the State Department, with long experience in China, were shoved out of the department altogether or moved to other parts of the world with which they had no familiarity.

An entirely new crowd came in. Dean Acheson and Alger Hiss, who took over management of Far Eastern affairs, had had no Far Eastern experience, knew no Far Eastern language and had never visited a Far Eastern country. The same was true of Dr. Philip Jessup.

Most of the newer men who emerged as authorities centered about the Institute of Pacific Relations, then profoundly dominated by Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Owen Lattimore. This organization became a kind of Far Eastern trade union that, in some manner, now being investigated by the McCarran Committee, exercised an undue influence upon the selection and promotion of personnel in the Far Eastern divisions of the State Department.

Dean Acheson could, out of the many Americans with Far Eastern experience, select those whom he wished as experts and advisers. He apparently chose not the most experienced, the most successful or the wisest, but those who fitted his predispositions. The question then arises: What predisposed him in the direction that he took?

That Body of Yours

FIRST CAREER INVESTIGATOR APPOINTED

Some months ago I wrote about the great step forward made in research work on the heart by the American Heart Association. This organization now makes an annual appeal similar to that of cancer and polio organizations to the public for funds to further research work. Their latest effort in the use of these funds is providing outstanding research workers with enough money to give their full time to research work on the heart and blood vessels instead of part time only, as most of them had to practice medicine or teach in medical schools to make a living. As these research workers will be making a career for themselves, the career being that of intensive research, they have been given the name of Career Investigator.

President Louis N. Katz of the American Heart Association has announced the appointment of Dr. Victor Lorber of Cleveland, Ohio, as their first Career Investigator. Dr. Lorber, Associate Professor of Biochemistry at Western Reserve University, will be given a salary, which will enable him to not only do his own research work on heart and blood vessels but exchange findings with other research workers on problems of heart and blood vessels. This new type of research support, which has long been advocated by leading scientists in this country, makes it possible for investigators to devote lifelong careers to medical research.

Dr. Katz points out that the Career Investigator is free to engage in research work of his own choosing. He may work in any institution in the United States (or Canada) which offers adequate facilities.

I believe we will all agree that, as diseases of the heart and blood vessels cause more deaths and illness than any other disease, and this occurs among our most valuable citizens in the prime of their intellectual power, these Career Investigators are worthy of every encouragement, financial and otherwise.

Dr. Katz says further, "Our primary task is to discover the underlying or basic causes of the most common types of heart and blood vessel diseases since this will lead to their more certain cure and prevention." In order to make the most rapid progress toward this goal, it is essential to give unencumbered support to the best research brains in the country.

New Scale of Ethics

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—I have seen General Eisenhower on both my trips to Europe this year, but in neither case have I talked to him about politics. Furthermore, I doubt whether 99 per cent of the political pundits who have come back from Paris as alleged interpreters of Ike's desire to run or not to run have really broached the subject to him either.

Only on one occasion—and that was several years ago—have I ever mentioned personal politics to General Eisenhower. I reminded him of an incident back in Kansas when he was a Democrat.

Ike gave me a quick look, asked "Where did you hear about that?" and promptly dropped the subject. It was obvious that he did not want to discuss the days when he started life as a rootin'-tootin' William Jennings Bryan Democrat and made his first speech at a Jackson Day dinner.

Regardless of that early background, there is no question but that General Eisenhower wants to run as a Republican—for a very good reason. He feels that a new President, backed by a new party, could use a completely new broom. If elected as a Democrat, on the other hand, he would be so under obligation to President Truman personally and to those around him that he could not clean house. The cronies and mediocrities would hang on.

That position, in the opinion of this observer, makes sense. Whoever is elected in 1952 should be obligated to no one except his conscience and the American people.

GOP's Greatest Mistake

Biggest mistake the Republican have made in recent years is to take seriously the overconfidence of their Illinois national committeeman, Werner Schroeder, who once said: "The Republican Party can even win with a Chinaman." The GOP must face the fact that the majority of people in the U.S.A. today are registered Democrats, and if a Republican president is to be elected, a man must be nominated who can persuade Democrats to cross the party line.

Unlike the old-line politicians, a lot of people in this country consider their country more important than their party, but they must have a truly inspiring leader of the Eisenhower variety to make them cross over.

At any rate, Eisenhower's early record as a Democrat might turn out to be an asset. Real fact is that the Eisenhower family was among the few Democrats in rock-ribbed Republican Abilene, Kans., and Dwight's father had so little political pull that J. W. Howe, editor of the Abilene News and leading Democrat of the town, had to advise the youngster on how to get his West Point appointment.

What helped him was that Kansas Republicans at that time were bitterly split between the square-dealers, who followed Teddy Roosevelt, and the stand-patters, who followed Taft. So Eisenhower, a bright and friendly youngster, took the advice of editor Howe, went around to see both factions, and got the endorsement of each.

The was enough for GOP Sen. Joseph P. Bristow, who gave Ike the coveted West Point appointment.

Jackson Day Speech

Eisenhower has made thousands of speeches during his long career, but his first and perhaps only political speech was made at the age of 19 before the Jackson Day dinner in Abilene, Kans. George H. Hodges, a leading Democrat and later governor of Kansas, was the chief speaker, and Dwight was chosen as the one speaker to represent the younger Democrats. His title was: "The Student in Politics."

"There is an old proverb that says 'as the twig is bent the tree's inclined.'" began that earnest young Democrat who later decided he wanted to become a Republican. "A man after voting the straight ticket for several elections seldom changes from one side to the other.

"This fact is proved conclusively by the controversy now going on in the Republican party. One branch is called the square-dealers, insurgents, and reformers. Although these men are loud in their denunciation of Cannon, Aldrich, and a few others who are hidebound party men, yet they refuse to join any other party and at election vote the Republican ticket. . . .

"There is an inborn desire in all normal and healthy boys to help the smaller contestants in an even fight," Eisenhower continued. "A young man, in speaking of the political situation the other day, said: 'My father is a Republican and so was his father, but I am going to vote for the Democrats at the next election because I think they need me and the Republicans do not.'

Boosts Democratic Principles

"But notwithstanding such reasoning as an admiration of fair play, the parental vote, and the like, a man's first vote generally is cast correctly. He has arrived at an age of great self-confidence and has acquired a feeling of self-importance, for he figures that he will be about 1/15 of a millionth part of the vote of the United States . . .

"A leader of a political party who is a clean and fearless fighter," concluded young Eisenhower, "and possesses a winning manner is undoubtedly the means of attracting a large number of votes. The young man sees that the more honest and fearless leaders have become disgusted with the actions of the leaders and the party proper. He admires these men greatly but he cannot help but think and remark that they are fighting for many of the same principles which the Democratic party advocated."

That was Dwight Eisenhower's first and last contribution to the Democratic party. According to the Abilene News:

"To say that he handled himself nicely would be putting it mildly. His speech was well-received."

A few months later, Ike Eisenhower was in West Point, where no one is supposed to be either a Democrat or a Republican.

U. S. Dollar Soaring

Singapore (AP)—The American dollar is soaring to a new top value among the money-changers of Singapore. They're now offering as high as $3.37 (Straits dollars) for an American $1 note. They'll sell it back for Straits $3.40. The official exchange for the American dollar ranges from $2.96 to $3.01. The reason for the rising dollar price: Fears that the Korean conflict may yet flare into a major war.

The Man Who Could Not Be Hanged

The man who could not be hanged. William Duell was hung for 24 hours at Tyburn, England, in November, 1740, but afterwards revived. The malefactor was convicted of murdering Sarah Griffin at Acton. After Duel was cut down from the scaffold, one of the doctors in attendance perceived life in him. In about two hours he was able to sit up in a chair, and in a few days had recovered completely. Duell was subsequenty transported for life.

Phraseology of Executive Branch Regulations Sweeping as Any Dictatorship

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 26 — The "Iron Curtain" seems to have descended on the relations between the executive branch of the United States government and the outside world.

A new set of regulations, in the form of an official decree, has just been issued with phraseology as sweeping as any ever used in a dictatorship. It constitutes, as the President admits, "for the first time, uniform standards for classifying and protection security information throughout the executive branch of the government."

But who is to say what is or is not "security information"? Why, the officials themselves, of course—the political appointees of a political administration. There is no penalty against the official or the agency of government who, under the guise of "security," may be guilty of surpressing news to which the American people are entitled.

The new decree completely cuts off the Congress of the United States as well as the entire press—except as the Chief Executive may permit.

It cuts of "security information," arbitrarily classified, from every means of communication, written or oral, between persons in the employ of the federal government and the public, unless government officials happen to know offhand what is or is not classified. Those officials will have to develop fantastic memory powers to obey the new rules. After one month of classifying hundreds of thousands of words, it will be impossible in such a maze of red tape for officials to be sure that they are not violating the President's official decree. Hence, the easiest course will be to say nothing to anybody—not even to a senator or representative—lest the ax fall on that employe for violating an executive order.

In cynical disregard of the true effect of the new regulations, the President says:

"The order applies only to officials and employes of the executive branch of the government. The public is requested to cooperate, but is under no compulsion or threat or penalty to do so as a result of this order...There is no element of censorship, either direct or implied, in this order."

Certainly there is no censorship imposed in the form of a penalty on publication itself, but there is a penalty—and a severe one—in the censoring of the news at the source.

The American people have boasted to other nations that there is a "free flow of information" in the United States and that the constitution declares Congress shall make no law "abridging the freedom of the press."

But the President apparently can make such a law by means of an executive order bottling up at the source whatever news he wishes.

Everybody is anxious that really secret information of a military nature be suppressed. The American press through two world wars cooperated by voluntarily withholding from print all such information, whenever requested. But the new "Iron Curtain" order applies to every department or agency of the entire executive branch of the government, and to every single person among the more than 2,500,000 employes, no matter in what bureau or city he or she is stationed.

Granting that certain regulations are necessary to protect really secret information of a military nature, there is no reason why the Post Office Department or the Agriculture Department or the employes of the Fish and Wildlife Service or the clerks in any other department should be restricted in their telephone conversations, their letters or their communications with persons outside the government.

What is conspicuously lacking in the new regulations is a system of checking against abuse. Each department head and the subordinate he delegates to perform the task of classifying information is a law unto himself. An interdepartmental committee on internal security is provided, but it has no real power of its own and it cannot exercise any effective check against abuse.

The "potential enemies" which the President fears might get information are not named, but it is suspected that perhaps the Republicans in Congress and the opposition press generally are now in that category, too.

For some strange reason, instructions are included in the "Iron Curtain" order specifying how classified documents shall be destroyed. It must be by burning and not necessarily in the presence of more than one official. Just why it is necessary to give orders at this time in the new regulations as to how to destroy secret public documents is hard to explain. Since there has been no uniform system of classification in effect anyhow, the problem of destruction of documents ought to be academic, at least for some years to come. It may be that the Truman administration is getting ready to purge the records of anything that an incoming administration in 1953 may find politically damaging if there is a change to a Republican president.

The "Iron Curtain" regulations deserve a thorough investigation by a joint committee of Congress composed of the committees on executive expenditures. For Congress still controls the purse strings. This means control over the use of government money and over the conduct of officials who in the name of "security" would institute a complete censorship of government information at the source. This new executive order is unprecedented in American history.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Sept. 25 — Ford Frick, the new "commissioner" of baseball is the Robert A. Taft of that ambiguous freak of our good society, a gentleman incapable of showy affectations and thoroughly qualified for the highest responsibility in his field.

Baseball, in the professional phase, which is almost all there is of it now, is no less an industry than steel or automobiles. The corporate structure of the Yankees, with their descending subsidiaries and their severe efficiency in the business rooms, would convince the most poetic addict but without necessarily disenchanting him.

Like Frick during our years together in the press-coop, I had a sensitive ear for the clank of the turnstiles, but we could also relax and souse ourselves on the illusion of sport. The magnates or stockholders were forever trying our faith in baseball as the national game by acts of harsh, unfeeling commercialism as when Casey Stengel hit two home runs on successive days to win for the Giants the only two games they did win in a World Series with the Yankees—and next year slid back to the minors, displaced by young Jimmy O'Connell, a chattel bought from a coast league club. The proprietors were always torturing us that way.

In October, St. Louis or Washington would be frantic over a group of persons, all strangers to the town, employed by a soulless corporation to play baseball. Madmen rioted in the streets and hotel lobbies, in self-induced and idotic frenzies because the Cardinals or Senators had won their respective first pennants. Few of these individuals had any prospect of seeing any of the games starting tomorrow and few of them had seen more than an occasional game during the season. There was no television and radio was inefficient, but the World Series was nevertheless a national gala unlike any other anywhere in the world.

For many years, in small towns of the minor leagues, newspapers spent considerable money, for those days, on mechanical scoreboards with little figures, representing names which were heroic to many millions, moving here and there as the play-by-play account came over the press association wires. Crowds blocked the streets and traffic was detoured. But the magnates never hesitated to dump a great man off his pedestal in cold contempt for public sentiment in some trade or sale intended to improve a club or, frankly, to reap a profit, as when Connie Mack wrecked his first great team of Athletics.

Still the affection of the people is maintained for the game, as a game, and as a peculiar sentimental treasure, and this notwithstanding some extraordinary and unnecessarily sordid impositions on them by the business side in recent years. One highly popular and successful executive got rich scalping tickets.

Frick comes to his office, the strange, artificial office of "commissioner," at a time when his strong, honest, undramatic character can be of great service. He is not a showman. Unlike the late Judge Landis, he will not make himself conspicuous. The judge was a gentleman, too, but he had a wide streak of ham, affectionately known as eccentricity, and his hat, his cotton poll, his stick and his affected glower, consti-

UNITED EFFORT FOR SCRAP IRON

Scrap iron is needed badly in the process of making steel and Ulster County under the leadership of Emil G. Boessneck, Jr., will do its part in this vital work.

Mr. Boessneck has been appointed chairman of the Ulster County Scrap Mobilization Committee, which will contact all businesses and agencies to aid in the scrap iron collection campaign. The committee will seek dormant scrap in the form of obsolete machinery, tools, jigs and dies, fixtures and other equipment which cannot be used.

Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson, who is charged with the responsibility of keeping production high to meet defense goals, declares that an all-out effort by industry to bring in scrap metal would help to relieve what may be a dangerous shortage.

Once set in motion, our defense effort is a machine which depends to an important degree on its own momentum to help keep it rolling. A slowdown on one section of the defense program is bound to be reflected in every other. Without scrap metal, steel production will lag; without steel the production of tanks, planes and guns will fall below the goals set.

The interdependence of one unit upon another is not confined to industrial production. Unless all of us stand ready to do our individual jobs we cannot reach the strength we need to assure our safety. An integrated effort on the part of industry, labor and the armed forces is the only thing that can assure us of any measure of safety. All of us must decide whether our freedom is worth the labor and effort it will take to preserve it. It is an important decision and one we may be able to make only once.

HATS AND BALD HEADS

The United Hatters Union holds a warning of possible baldness over the heads of men who venture out hatless in the midday sun. The hatters, who have become increasingly concerned about the number of men who do not wear hats, tell men that if they do not wear hats there is a possibility that they won't wear hair.

The hat makers quote test findings that hats deflect from 87 to 93 per cent of the sun's rays. They quote a Harvard Medical School dermatologist who says that overexposure to sunlight may be a cause of falling hair. A man whose eyes are unshaded by a hat also suffers impairment of his efficiency at the wheel of an automobile, the hatters maintain.

The threat of possible baldness and reduced driving efficiency may or may not help to stimulate the sale of hats. But if the hatter could promise that wearing hats would help the purchasers to grow new hair on heads already getting bald they would not be able to meet the immediate demand.

Those who have stuck to their seats to watch a long ball game to its finish may be glad that they were not taking in a recent contest in Japan. Two teams played 37 innings before a decision was reached, and took two days to do it. When darkness interrupted the contest after nine innings, it was agreed to continue next day. When one team finally won two to one, they had played eight hours. This illustrates the defect of Japanese ball players that they are likely to be poor hitters, while good fielders and runners.

A bill submitted to the Massachusetts Legislature proposed the naming of a section of new highway "Taxpayers Boulevard," after the men and women who pay out the money to finance new roads and maintain old ones. The author of the bill pointed out that while roads have been named for heroes, statesmen, writers and many others, none has ever been named after the ordinary citizen who pays his taxes faithfully and thus makes all roads possible.

'These Days'

DIME A DOZEN

Dean Acheson told Eugene Dooman, both of the State Department, that China experts were a dime a dozen. To a degree, that is correct because during the past 100 years, a surprisingly large number of Americans, public officials, missionaries, teachers, doctors, businessmen, sea captains went to China.

Some became expert in language and dialect; some played important roles in the administration of the country. Especially able have been missionaries, who always live close to the people, often far inland away from the westernized atmosphere of the treaty ports.

For instance, Roy Anderson, who was born in Soochow, whose father, a former newspaperman in Atlanta, Georga, turned missionary, was president of Soochow University. Roy Anderson spoke many dialects of Chinese and played Chinese politics like a true southern Democrat. He was an important factor in Sun Yat-sen's revolution of 1911 which defeated the Manchus.

Subsequently, from 1911 to 1925 when he died, Anderson made and unmade cabinet officers, provincial governors and, in one instance, even a president. He died in Peking on the very same day that Sun Yat-sen died there and the Chinese erected a monument to him.

There were many such Americans in China. Rodney Gilbert, for instance, who occasionally writes for the "New York Herald Tribune," was regarded by Chinese as one of the best informed men in the country. Upton Close was an adviser to Wu Pei-fu. George Fitch was always close to Chiang Kai-shek. At one time, nearly every Chinese war-lord or official of standing had an American adviser, and many of them did excellent service.

The businessmen, particularly those connected with the British-American Tobacco Company and the Standard Oil Company of New York, stayed long and knew much. No man has accumulated more information and more friends than Major Arthur Bassett of the British-American Tobacco Company. His career in China might be cited as an example of prolonged residence and vast knowledge.

A Missourian, he arrived in China in 1906 from the Philippines where he was an American lawyer. He was the United States district attorney attached to the American court under extraterritorial jurisdiction. Subsequently, he joined the British-American Tobacco Company. During World War I, he was provost marshal attached to the 15th Infantry in Tientsin. He was an astute intelligence officer.

Bassett possessed an unerring intuition concerning Chinese which made it possible for him to take an obscure cigargette, the "Ruby Queen," and make it the best selling brand in the country by the employment of Chinese methods of selling through a Chinese organization of his own devising. As a matter of fact, his success served to revolutionize the sales methods of all companies dealing in imported consumer's goods.

In the 1930's there must have been a thousand or more men and women of this calibre in the United States, Americans with a vast and intensive knowledge of Chinese, Chinese affairs and personalities, and some of them with prolonged residence in that country and other parts of Asia. They were all available for the service of our government.

After Roosevelt became President, most of the so-called "old China hands" were dropped by the State Department. Because of their long residence in the country, they were supposed to be prejudiced. Because they knew so many important Chinese personally and intimately, they were supposed to be biased. Even men in the State Department, with long experience in China, were shoved out of the department altogether or moved to other parts of the world with which they had no familiarity.

An entirely new crowd came in. Dean Acheson and Alger Hiss, who took over management of Far Eastern affairs, had had no Far Eastern experience, knew no Far Eastern language and had never visited a Far Eastern country. The same was true of Dr. Philip Jessup.

Most of the newer men who emerged as authorities centered about the Institute of Pacific Relations, then profoundly dominated by Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Owen Lattimore. This organization became a kind of Far Eastern trade union that, in some manner, now being investigated by the McCarran Committee, exercised an undue influence upon the selection and promotion of personnel in the Far Eastern divisions of the State Department.

Dean Acheson could, out of the many Americans with Far Eastern experience, select those whom he wished as experts and advisers. He apparently chose not the most experienced, the most successful or the wisest, but those who fitted his predispositions. The question then arises: What predisposed him in the direction that he took?

FIRST CAREER INVESTIGATOR APPOINTED

Some months ago I wrote about the great step forward made in research work on the heart by the American Heart Association. This organization now makes an annual appeal similar to that of cancer and polio organizations to the public for funds to further research work. Their latest effort in the use of these funds is providing outstanding research workers with enough money to give their full time to research work on the heart and blood vessels instead of part time only, as most of them had to practice medicine or teach in medical schools to make a living. As these research workers will be making a career for themselves, the career being that of intensive research, they have been given the name of Career Investigator.

President Louis N. Katz of the American Heart Association has announced the appointment of Dr. Victor Lorber of Cleveland, Ohio, as their first Career Investigator. Dr. Lorber, Associate Professor of Biochemistry at Western Reserve University, will be given a salary, which will enable him to not only do his own research work on heart and blood vessels but exchange findings with other research workers on problems of heart and blood vessels. This new type of research support, which has long been advocated by leading scientists in this country, makes it possible for investigators to devote lifelong careers to medical research.

Dr. Katz points out that the Career Investigator is free to engage in research work of his own choosing. He may work in any institution in the United States (or Canada) which offers adequate facilities.

I believe we will all agree that, as diseases of the heart and blood vessels cause more deaths and illness than any other disease, and this occurs among our most valuable citizens in the prime of their intellectual power, these Career Investigators are worthy of every encouragement, financial and otherwise.

Dr. Katz says further, "Our primary task is to discover the underlying or basic causes of the most common types of heart and blood vessel diseases since this will lead to their more certain cure and prevention." In order to make the most rapid progress toward this goal, it is essential to give unencumbered support to the best research brains in the country.

New Scale of Ethics

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—I have seen General Eisenhower on both my trips to Europe this year, but in neither case have I talked to him about politics. Furthermore, I doubt whether 99 per cent of the political pundits who have come back from Paris as alleged interpreters of Ike's desire to run or not to run have really broached the subject to him either.

Only on one occasion—and that was several years ago—have I ever mentioned personal politics to General Eisenhower. I reminded him of an incident back in Kansas when he was a Democrat.

Ike gave me a quick look, asked "Where did you hear about that?" and promptly dropped the subject. It was obvious that he did not want to discuss the days when he started life as a rootin'-tootin' William Jennings Bryan Democrat and made his first speech at a Jackson Day dinner.

Regardless of that early background, there is no question but that General Eisenhower wants to run as a Republican—for a very good reason. He feels that a new President, backed by a new party, could use a completely new broom. If elected as a Democrat, on the other hand, he would be so under obligation to President Truman personally and to those around him that he could not clean house. The cronies and mediocrities would hang on.

That position, in the opinion of this observer, makes sense. Whoever is elected in 1952 should be obligated to no one except his conscience and the American people.

GOP's Greatest Mistake

Biggest mistake the Republican have made in recent years is to take seriously the overconfidence of their Illinois national committeeman, Werner Schroeder, who once said: "The Republican Party can even win with a Chinaman." The GOP must face the fact that the majority of people in the U.S.A. today are registered Democrats, and if a Republican president is to be elected, a man must be nominated who can persuade Democrats to cross the party line.

Unlike the old-line politicians, a lot of people in this country consider their country more important than their party, but they must have a truly inspiring leader of the Eisenhower variety to make them cross over.

At any rate, Eisenhower's early record as a Democrat might turn out to be an asset. Real fact is that the Eisenhower family was among the few Democrats in rock-ribbed Republican Abilene, Kans., and Dwight's father had so little political pull that J. W. Howe, editor of the Abilene News and leading Democrat of the town, had to advise the youngster on how to get his West Point appointment.

What helped him was that Kansas Republicans at that time were bitterly split between the square-dealers, who followed Teddy Roosevelt, and the stand-patters, who followed Taft. So Eisenhower, a bright and friendly youngster, took the advice of editor Howe, went around to see both factions, and got the endorsement of each.

The was enough for GOP Sen. Joseph P. Bristow, who gave Ike the coveted West Point appointment.

Jackson Day Speech

Eisenhower has made thousands of speeches during his long career, but his first and perhaps only political speech was made at the age of 19 before the Jackson Day dinner in Abilene, Kans. George H. Hodges, a leading Democrat and later governor of Kansas, was the chief speaker, and Dwight was chosen as the one speaker to represent the younger Democrats. His title was: "The Student in Politics."

"There is an old proverb that says 'as the twig is bent the tree's inclined.'" began that earnest young Democrat who later decided he wanted to become a Republican. "A man after voting the straight ticket for several elections seldom changes from one side to the other.

"This fact is proved conclusively by the controversy now going on in the Republican party. One branch is called the square-dealers, insurgents, and reformers. Although these men are loud in their denunciation of Cannon, Aldrich, and a few others who are hidebound party men, yet they refuse to join any other party and at election vote the Republican ticket. . . .

"There is an inborn desire in all normal and healthy boys to help the smaller contestants in an even fight," Eisenhower continued. "A young man, in speaking of the political situation the other day, said: 'My father is a Republican and so was his father, but I am going to vote for the Democrats at the next election because I think they need me and the Republicans do not.'

Boosts Democratic Principles

"But notwithstanding such reasoning as an admiration of fair play, the parental vote, and the like, a man's first vote generally is cast correctly. He has arrived at an age of great self-confidence and has acquired a feeling of self-importance, for he figures that he will be about 1/15 of a millionth part of the vote of the United States . . .

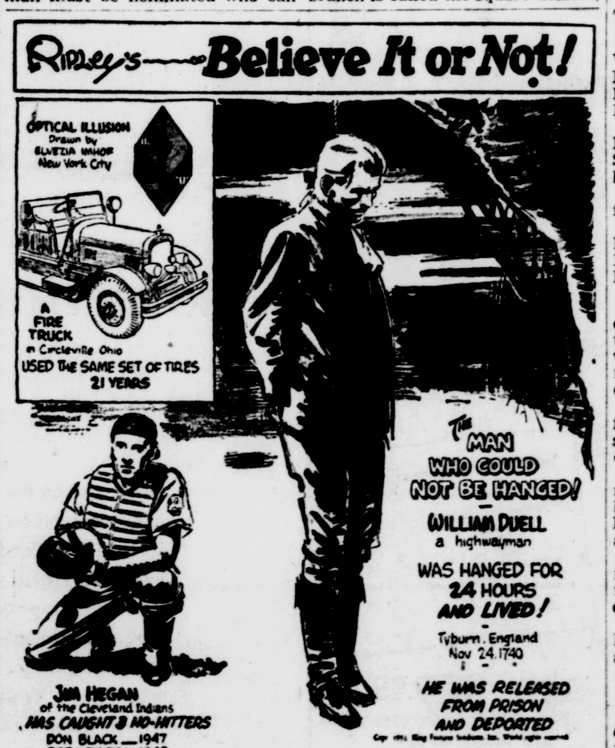

"A leader of a political party who is a clean and fearless fighter," concluded young Eisenhower, "and possesses a winning manner is undoubtedly the means of attracting a large number of votes. The young man sees that the more honest and fearless leaders have become disgusted with the actions of the leaders and the party proper. He admires these men greatly but he cannot help but think and remark that they are fighting for many of the same principles which the Democratic party advocated."

That was Dwight Eisenhower's first and last contribution to the Democratic party. According to the Abilene News:

"To say that he handled himself nicely would be putting it mildly. His speech was well-received."

A few months later, Ike Eisenhower was in West Point, where no one is supposed to be either a Democrat or a Republican.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 26 — The "Iron Curtain" seems to have descended on the relations between the executive branch of the United States government and the outside world.

A new set of regulations, in the form of an official decree, has just been issued with phraseology as sweeping as any ever used in a dictatorship. It constitutes, as the President admits, "for the first time, uniform standards for classifying and protection security information throughout the executive branch of the government."

But who is to say what is or is not "security information"? Why, the officials themselves, of course—the political appointees of a political administration. There is no penalty against the official or the agency of government who, under the guise of "security," may be guilty of surpressing news to which the American people are entitled.

The new decree completely cuts off the Congress of the United States as well as the entire press—except as the Chief Executive may permit.

It cuts of "security information," arbitrarily classified, from every means of communication, written or oral, between persons in the employ of the federal government and the public, unless government officials happen to know offhand what is or is not classified. Those officials will have to develop fantastic memory powers to obey the new rules. After one month of classifying hundreds of thousands of words, it will be impossible in such a maze of red tape for officials to be sure that they are not violating the President's official decree. Hence, the easiest course will be to say nothing to anybody—not even to a senator or representative—lest the ax fall on that employe for violating an executive order.

In cynical disregard of the true effect of the new regulations, the President says:

"The order applies only to officials and employes of the executive branch of the government. The public is requested to cooperate, but is under no compulsion or threat or penalty to do so as a result of this order...There is no element of censorship, either direct or implied, in this order."

Certainly there is no censorship imposed in the form of a penalty on publication itself, but there is a penalty—and a severe one—in the censoring of the news at the source.

The American people have boasted to other nations that there is a "free flow of information" in the United States and that the constitution declares Congress shall make no law "abridging the freedom of the press."

But the President apparently can make such a law by means of an executive order bottling up at the source whatever news he wishes.

Everybody is anxious that really secret information of a military nature be suppressed. The American press through two world wars cooperated by voluntarily withholding from print all such information, whenever requested. But the new "Iron Curtain" order applies to every department or agency of the entire executive branch of the government, and to every single person among the more than 2,500,000 employes, no matter in what bureau or city he or she is stationed.

Granting that certain regulations are necessary to protect really secret information of a military nature, there is no reason why the Post Office Department or the Agriculture Department or the employes of the Fish and Wildlife Service or the clerks in any other department should be restricted in their telephone conversations, their letters or their communications with persons outside the government.

What is conspicuously lacking in the new regulations is a system of checking against abuse. Each department head and the subordinate he delegates to perform the task of classifying information is a law unto himself. An interdepartmental committee on internal security is provided, but it has no real power of its own and it cannot exercise any effective check against abuse.

The "potential enemies" which the President fears might get information are not named, but it is suspected that perhaps the Republicans in Congress and the opposition press generally are now in that category, too.

For some strange reason, instructions are included in the "Iron Curtain" order specifying how classified documents shall be destroyed. It must be by burning and not necessarily in the presence of more than one official. Just why it is necessary to give orders at this time in the new regulations as to how to destroy secret public documents is hard to explain. Since there has been no uniform system of classification in effect anyhow, the problem of destruction of documents ought to be academic, at least for some years to come. It may be that the Truman administration is getting ready to purge the records of anything that an incoming administration in 1953 may find politically damaging if there is a change to a Republican president.

The "Iron Curtain" regulations deserve a thorough investigation by a joint committee of Congress composed of the committees on executive expenditures. For Congress still controls the purse strings. This means control over the use of government money and over the conduct of officials who in the name of "security" would institute a complete censorship of government information at the source. This new executive order is unprecedented in American history.

UNITED EFFORT FOR SCRAP IRON

Scrap iron is needed badly in the process of making steel and Ulster County under the leadership of Emil G. Boessneck, Jr., will do its part in this vital work.

Mr. Boessneck has been appointed chairman of the Ulster County Scrap Mobilization Committee, which will contact all businesses and agencies to aid in the scrap iron collection campaign. The committee will seek dormant scrap in the form of obsolete machinery, tools, jigs and dies, fixtures and other equipment which cannot be used.

Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson, who is charged with the responsibility of keeping production high to meet defense goals, declares that an all-out effort by industry to bring in scrap metal would help to relieve what may be a dangerous shortage.

Once set in motion, our defense effort is a machine which depends to an important degree on its own momentum to help keep it rolling. A slowdown on one section of the defense program is bound to be reflected in every other. Without scrap metal, steel production will lag; without steel the production of tanks, planes and guns will fall below the goals set.

The interdependence of one unit upon another is not confined to industrial production. Unless all of us stand ready to do our individual jobs we cannot reach the strength we need to assure our safety. An integrated effort on the part of industry, labor and the armed forces is the only thing that can assure us of any measure of safety. All of us must decide whether our freedom is worth the labor and effort it will take to preserve it. It is an important decision and one we may be able to make only once.

HATS AND BALD HEADS

The United Hatters Union holds a warning of possible baldness over the heads of men who venture out hatless in the midday sun. The hatters, who have become increasingly concerned about the number of men who do not wear hats, tell men that if they do not wear hats there is a possibility that they won't wear hair.

The hat makers quote test findings that hats deflect from 87 to 93 per cent of the sun's rays. They quote a Harvard Medical School dermatologist who says that overexposure to sunlight may be a cause of falling hair. A man whose eyes are unshaded by a hat also suffers impairment of his efficiency at the wheel of an automobile, the hatters maintain.

The threat of possible baldness and reduced driving efficiency may or may not help to stimulate the sale of hats. But if the hatter could promise that wearing hats would help the purchasers to grow new hair on heads already getting bald they would not be able to meet the immediate demand.

Those who have stuck to their seats to watch a long ball game to its finish may be glad that they were not taking in a recent contest in Japan. Two teams played 37 innings before a decision was reached, and took two days to do it. When darkness interrupted the contest after nine innings, it was agreed to continue next day. When one team finally won two to one, they had played eight hours. This illustrates the defect of Japanese ball players that they are likely to be poor hitters, while good fielders and runners.

A bill submitted to the Massachusetts Legislature proposed the naming of a section of new highway "Taxpayers Boulevard," after the men and women who pay out the money to finance new roads and maintain old ones. The author of the bill pointed out that while roads have been named for heroes, statesmen, writers and many others, none has ever been named after the ordinary citizen who pays his taxes faithfully and thus makes all roads possible.

One of the most misleading statements ever made is "I'll be with you in a minute."

'These Days'

DIME A DOZEN

Dean Acheson told Eugene Dooman, both of the State Department, that China experts were a dime a dozen. To a degree, that is correct because during the past 100 years, a surprisingly large number of Americans, public officials, missionaries, teachers, doctors, businessmen, sea captains went to China.

Some became expert in language and dialect; some played important roles in the administration of the country. Especially able have been missionaries, who always live close to the people, often far inland away from the westernized atmosphere of the treaty ports.

For instance, Roy Anderson, who was born in Soochow, whose father, a former newspaperman in Atlanta, Georga, turned missionary, was president of Soochow University. Roy Anderson spoke many dialects of Chinese and played Chinese politics like a true southern Democrat. He was an important factor in Sun Yat-sen's revolution of 1911 which defeated the Manchus.

Subsequently, from 1911 to 1925 when he died, Anderson made and unmade cabinet officers, provincial governors and, in one instance, even a president. He died in Peking on the very same day that Sun Yat-sen died there and the Chinese erected a monument to him.

There were many such Americans in China. Rodney Gilbert, for instance, who occasionally writes for the "New York Herald Tribune," was regarded by Chinese as one of the best informed men in the country. Upton Close was an adviser to Wu Pei-fu. George Fitch was, always close to Chiang Kai-shek. At one time, nearly every Chinese war-lord or official of standing had an American adviser, and many of them did excellent service.

The businessmen, particularly those connected with the British-American Tobacco Company and the Standard Oil Company of New York, stayed long and knew much. No man has accumulated more information and more friends than Major Arthur Bassett of the British-American Tobacco Company. His career in China might be cited as an example of prolonged residence and vast knowledge.

A Missourian, he arrived in China in 1906 from the Philippines where he was an American lawyer. He was the United States district attorney attached to the American court under extraterritorial jurisdiction. Subsequently, he joined the British-American Tobacco Company. During World War I, he was provost marshal attached to the 15th Infantry in Tientsin. He was an astute intelligence officer.

Bassett possessed an unerring intuition concerning Chinese which made it possible for him to take an obscure cigargette, the "Ruby Queen," and make it the best selling brand in the country by the employment of Chinese methods of selling through a Chinese organization of his own devising. As a matter of fact, his success served to revolutionize the sales methods of all companies dealing in imported consumer's goods.

In the 1930's there must have been a thousand or more men and women of this calibre in the United States, Americans with a vast and intensive knowledge of Chinese, Chinese affairs and personalities, and some of them with prolonged residence in that country and other parts of Asia. They were all available for the service of our government.

After Roosevelt became President, most of the so-called "old China hands" were dropped by the State Department. Because of their long residence in the country, they were supposed to be prejudiced. Because they knew so many important Chinese personally and intimately, they were supposed to be biased. Even men in the State Department, with long experience in China, were shoved out of the department altogether or moved to other parts of the world with which they had no familiarity.

An entirely new crowd came in. Dean Acheson and Alger Hiss, who took over management of Far Eastern affairs, had had no Far Eastern experience, knew no Far Eastern language and had never visited a Far Eastern country. The same was true of Dr. Philip Jessup.

Most of the newer men who emerged as authorities centered about the Institute of Pacific Relations, then profoundly dominated by Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Owen Lattimore. This organization became a kind of Far Eastern trade union that, in some manner, now being investigated by the McCarran Committee, exercised an undue influence upon the selection and promotion of personnel in the Far Eastern divisions of the State Department.

Dean Acheson could, out of the many Americans with Far Eastern experience, select those whom he wished as experts and advisers. He apparently chose not the most experienced, the most successful or the wisest, but those who fitted his predispositions. The question then arises: What predisposed him in the direction that he took?

FIRST CAREER INVESTIGATOR APPOINTED

Some months ago I wrote about the great step forward made in research work on the heart by the American Heart Association. This organization now makes an annual appeal similar to that of cancer and polio organizations to the public for funds to further research work. Their latest effort in the use of these funds is providing outstanding research workers with enough money to give their full time to research work on the heart and blood vessels instead of part time only, as most of them had to practice medicine or teach in medical schools to make a living. As these research workers will be making a career for themselves, the career being that of intensive research, they have been given the name of Career Investigator.

President Louis N. Katz of the American Heart Association has announced the appointment of Dr. Victor Lorber of Cleveland, Ohio, as their first Career Investigator. Dr. Lorber, Associate Professor of Biochemistry at Western Reserve University, will be given a salary, which will enable him to not only do his own research work on heart and blood vessels but exchange findings with other research workers on problems of heart and blood vessels. This new type of research support, which has long been advocated by leading scientists in this country, makes it possible for investigators to devote lifelong careers to medical research.

Dr. Katz points out that the Career Investigator is free to engage in research work of his own choosing. He may work in any institution in the United States (or Canada) which offers adequate facilities.

I believe we will all agree that, as diseases of the heart and blood vessels cause more deaths and illness than any other disease, and this occurs among our most valuable citizens in the prime of their intellectual power, these Career Investigators are worthy of every encouragement, financial and otherwise.

Dr. Katz says further, "Our primary task is to discover the underlying or basic causes of the most common types of heart and blood vessel diseases since this will lead to their more certain cure and prevention." In order to make the most rapid progress toward this goal, it is essential to give unencumbered support to the best research brains in the country.

New Scale of Ethics

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—I have seen General Eisenhower on both my trips to Europe this year, but in neither case have I talked to him about politics. Furthermore, I doubt whether 99 per cent of the political pundits who have come back from Paris as alleged interpreters of Ike's desire to run or not to run have really broached the subject to him either.

Only on one occasion—and that was several years ago—have I ever mentioned personal politics to General Eisenhower. I reminded him of an incident back in Kansas when he was a Democrat.

Ike gave me a quick look, asked "Where did you hear about that?" and promptly dropped the subject. It was obvious that he did not want to discuss the days when he started life as a rootin'-tootin' William Jennings Bryan Democrat and made his first speech at a Jackson Day dinner.

Regardless of that early background, there is no question but that General Eisenhower wants to run as a Republican—for a very good reason. He feels that a new President, backed by a new party, could use a completely new broom. If elected as a Democrat, on the other hand, he would be so under obligation to President Truman personally and to those around him that he could not clean house. The cronies and mediocrities would hang on.

That position, in the opinion of this observer, makes sense. Whoever is elected in 1952 should be obligated to no one except his conscience and the American people.

GOP's Greatest Mistake

Biggest mistake the Republican have made in recent years is to take seriously the overconfidence of their Illinois national committeeman, Werner Schroeder, who once said: "The Republican Party can even win with a Chinaman." The GOP must face the fact that the majority of people in the U.S.A. today are registered Democrats, and if a Republican president is to be elected, a man must be nominated who can persuade Democrats to cross the party line.

Unlike the old-line politicians, a lot of people in this country consider their country more important than their party, but they must have a truly inspiring leader of the Eisenhower variety to make them cross over.

At any rate, Eisenhower's early record as a Democrat might turn out to be an asset. Real fact is that the Eisenhower family was among the few Democrats in rock-ribbed Republican Abilene, Kans., and Dwight's father had so little political pull that J. W. Howe, editor of the Abilene News and leading Democrat of the town, had to advise the youngster on how to get his West Point appointment.

What helped him was that Kansas Republicans at that time were bitterly split between the square-dealers, who followed Teddy Roosevelt, and the stand-patters, who followed Taft. So Eisenhower, a bright and friendly youngster, took the advice of editor Howe, went around to see both factions, and got the endorsement of each.

The was enough for GOP Sen. Joseph P. Bristow, who gave Ike the coveted West Point appointment.

Jackson Day Speech

Eisenhower has made thousands of speeches during his long career, but his first and perhaps only political speech was made at the age of 19 before the Jackson Day dinner in Abilene, Kans. George H. Hodges, a leading Democrat and later governor of Kansas, was the chief speaker, and Dwight was chosen as the one speaker to represent the younger Democrats. His title was: "The Student in Politics."

"There is an old proverb that says 'as the twig is bent the tree's inclined.'" began that earnest young Democrat who later decided he wanted to become a Republican. "A man after voting the straight ticket for several elections seldom changes from one side to the other.

"This fact is proved conclusively by the controversy now going on in the Republican party. One branch is called the square-dealers, insurgents, and reformers. Although these men are loud in their denunciation of Cannon, Aldrich, and a few others who are hidebound party men, yet they refuse to join any other party and at election vote the Republican ticket. . . .

"There is an inborn desire in all normal and healthy boys to help the smaller contestants in an even fight," Eisenhower continued. "A young man, in speaking of the political situation the other day, said: 'My father is a Republican and so was his father, but I am going to vote for the Democrats at the next election because I think they need me and the Republicans do not.'

Boosts Democratic Principles

"But notwithstanding such reasoning as an admiration of fair play, the parental vote, and the like, a man's first vote generally is cast correctly. He has arrived at an age of great self-confidence and has acquired a feeling of self-importance, for he figures that he will be about 1/15 of a millionth part of the vote of the United States . . .

"A leader of a political party who is a clean and fearless fighter," concluded young Eisenhower, "and possesses a winning manner is undoubtedly the means of attracting a large number of votes. The young man sees that the more honest and fearless leaders have become disgusted with the actions of the leaders and the party proper. He admires these men greatly but he cannot help but think and remark that they are fighting for many of the same principles which the Democratic party advocated."

That was Dwight Eisenhower's first and last contribution to the Democratic party. According to the Abilene News:

"To say that he handled himself nicely would be putting it mildly. His speech was well-received."

A few months later, Ike Eisenhower was in West Point, where no one is supposed to be either a Democrat or a Republican.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 26 — The "Iron Curtain" seems to have descended on the relations between the executive branch of the United States government and the outside world.

A new set of regulations, in the form of an official decree, has just been issued with phraseology as sweeping as any ever used in a dictatorship. It constitutes, as the President admits, "for the first time, uniform standards for classifying and protection security information throughout the executive branch of the government."

But who is to say what is or is not "security information"? Why, the officials themselves, of course—the political appointees of a political administration. There is no penalty against the official or the agency of government who, under the guise of "security," may be guilty of surpressing news to which the American people are entitled.

The new decree completely cuts off the Congress of the United States as well as the entire press—except as the Chief Executive may permit.

It cuts of "security information," arbitrarily classified, from every means of communication, written or oral, between persons in the employ of the federal government and the public, unless government officials happen to know offhand what is or is not classified. Those officials will have to develop fantastic memory powers to obey the new rules. After one month of classifying hundreds of thousands of words, it will be impossible in such a maze of red tape for officials to be sure that they are not violating the President's official decree. Hence, the easiest course will be to say nothing to anybody—not even to a senator or representative—lest the ax fall on that employe for violating an executive order.

In cynical disregard of the true effect of the new regulations, the President says:

"The order applies only to officials and employes of the executive branch of the government. The public is requested to cooperate, but is under no compulsion or threat or penalty to do so as a result of this order...There is no element of censorship, either direct or implied, in this order."

Certainly there is no censorship imposed in the form of a penalty on publication itself, but there is a penalty—and a severe one—in the censoring of the news at the source.

The American people have boasted to other nations that there is a "free flow of information" in the United States and that the constitution declares Congress shall make no law "abridging the freedom of the press."

But the President apparently can make such a law by means of an executive order bottling up at the source whatever news he wishes.

Everybody is anxious that really secret information of a military nature be suppressed. The American press through two world wars cooperated by voluntarily withholding from print all such information, whenever requested. But the new "Iron Curtain" order applies to every department or agency of the entire executive branch of the government, and to every single person among the more than 2,500,000 employes, no matter in what bureau or city he or she is stationed.

Granting that certain regulations are necessary to protect really secret information of a military nature, there is no reason why the Post Office Department or the Agriculture Department or the employes of the Fish and Wildlife Service or the clerks in any other department should be restricted in their telephone conversations, their letters or their communications with persons outside the government.

What is conspicuously lacking in the new regulations is a system of checking against abuse. Each department head and the subordinate he delegates to perform the task of classifying information is a law unto himself. An interdepartmental committee on internal security is provided, but it has no real power of its own and it cannot exercise any effective check against abuse.

The "potential enemies" which the President fears might get information are not named, but it is suspected that perhaps the Republicans in Congress and the opposition press generally are now in that category, too.

For some strange reason, instructions are included in the "Iron Curtain" order specifying how classified documents shall be destroyed. It must be by burning and not necessarily in the presence of more than one official. Just why it is necessary to give orders at this time in the new regulations as to how to destroy secret public documents is hard to explain. Since there has been no uniform system of classification in effect anyhow, the problem of destruction of documents ought to be academic, at least for some years to come. It may be that the Truman administration is getting ready to purge the records of anything that an incoming administration in 1953 may find politically damaging if there is a change to a Republican president.

The "Iron Curtain" regulations deserve a thorough investigation by a joint committee of Congress composed of the committees on executive expenditures. For Congress still controls the purse strings. This means control over the use of government money and over the conduct of officials who in the name of "security" would institute a complete censorship of government information at the source. This new executive order is unprecedented in American history.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Sept. 25 — Ford Frick, the new "commissioner" of baseball is the Robert A. Taft of that ambiguous freak of our good society, a gentleman incapable of showy affectations and thoroughly qualified for the highest responsibility in his field.

Baseball, in the professional phase, which is almost all there is of it now, is no less an industry than steel or automobiles. The corporate structure of the Yankees, with their descending subsidiaries and their severe efficiency in the business rooms, would convince the most poetic addict but without necessarily disenchanting him.

Like Frick during our years together in the press-coop, I had a sensitive ear for the clank of the turnstiles, but we could also relax and souse ourselves on the illusion of sport. The magnates or stockholders were forever trying our faith in baseball as the national game by acts of harsh, unfeeling commercialism as when Casey Stengel hit two home runs on successive days to win for the Giants the only two games they did win in a World Series with the Yankees—and next year slid back to the minors, displaced by young Jimmy O'Connell, a chattel bought from a coast league club. The proprietors were always torturing us that way.

In October, St. Louis or Washington would be frantic over a group of persons, all strangers to the town, employed by a soulless corporation to play baseball. Madmen rioted in the streets and hotel lobbies, in self-induced and idotic frenzies because the Cardinals or Senators had won their respective first pennants. Few of these individuals had any prospect of seeing any of the games starting tomorrow and few of them had seen more than an occasional game during the season. There was no television and radio was inefficient, but the World Series was nevertheless a national gala unlike any other anywhere in the world.

For many years, in small towns of the minor leagues, newspapers spent considerable money, for those days, on mechanical scoreboards with little figures, representing names which were heroic to many millions, moving here and there as the play-by-play account came over the press association wires. Crowds blocked the streets and traffic was detoured. But the magnates never hesitated to dump a great man off his pedestal in cold contempt for public sentiment in some trade or sale intended to improve a club or, frankly, to reap a profit, as when Connie Mack wrecked his first great team of Athletics.

Still the affection of the people is maintained for the game, as a game, and as a peculiar sentimental treasure, and this notwithstanding some extraordinary and unnecessarily sordid impositions on them by the business side in recent years. One highly popular and successful executive got rich scalping tickets.

Frick comes to his office, the strange, artificial office of "commisioner," at a time when his strong, honest, undramatic character can be of great service. He is not a showman. Unlike the late Judge Landis, he will not make himself conspicuous. OFFICE CAT

(Trade Mark Reg.)

By Junius

A brilliant idea to make money can get into high financial society without changing its collar.

Wife—How do you like the potato salad?

Hubby—It's delicious. Did you buy it yourself?

A model husband, says the Wall Street Journal, is one who can effuse over guests at the front door while his wife gets the living room straightened.

Moral says: "Nothing holds liquor as good as a bottle," to which could be added the suggestion: "Leave it in the bottle."

Broke Young Man—I s'pose you dance?

Counter Girl—Certainly. I love to.

Broke Young Man—That's even better.

In Chicago a deaf mute obtained a divorce from her husband, also a deaf mute, by claiming he swore at her in sign language.—Harry Zalewski, Chicago

Purchaser—I only blew my nose once and the handkerchief tore.

Storekeeper—Well, you had a run for your money.

That's why it is. Men today are worrying themselves bald, says C. B. Soka, South African scientist; but we have seen some baldies who never worried in their lives.

Patient—How much do you charge to pull a tooth?

Dentist—Two dollars.

Patient—Well, here's a dollar, just loosen it a bit.

Seem to be taking the horror out of jail down in Newman, Fla., where the prison camp has air conditioning, fixed with venetian blinds and television sets provided.

Contemporary states persons who do not vote are morons. We've a lot of them around, then, and it is a little wonder we hear agitation from time to time supporting compulsory voting.

A brilliant idea to make money can get into high financial society without changing its collar.

Wife—How do you like the potato salad?

Hubby—It's delicious. Did you buy it yourself?

A model husband, says the Wall Street Journal, is one who can effuse over guests at the front door while his wife gets the living room straightened.

Moral says: "Nothing holds liquor as good as a bottle," to which could be added the suggestion: "Leave it in the bottle."

Broke Young Man—I s'pose you dance?

Counter Girl—Certainly. I love to.

Broke Young Man—That's even better.

In Chicago a deaf mute obtained a divorce from her husband, also a deaf mute, by claiming he swore at her in sign language.—Harry Zalewski, Chicago

Purchaser—I only blew my nose once and the handkerchief tore.

That's why it is. Men today are worrying themselves bald, says C. B. Soka, South African scientist; but we have seen some baldies who never worried in their lives.

Following the resignation of Dr. van den Berg from the Selective Service Board, Beebe was appointed to the board, elected chairman and served during the remainder of the war. For the past six years he has been justice of the peace and served on the town board. The concern of the nominee for securing equitable assessments in this area is indicated by the comprehensive study which he volunteered to make in 1948, following the appraisal by state tax department officials of a sampling of assessments in the town. This study which was presented to the board by Judge Beebe has been helpful in guiding subsequent assessments in order to bring property inside the village limit and that outside those limits into proper relationship.

The consistory and their wives of the Reformed Church entertained all leaders of church groups at supper in the social rooms on Tuesday evening, Sept. 25. The minister and leaders presented plans and programs for the coming year. Ralph Buchanan was in charge of the supper.

Onteora Schools Have 481 Pupils

There are 481 pupils enrolled in the 21 elementary schools of the Onteora Central School system, according to a report by the attendance officer, Hazel Osborne. Six pupils are attending school in elementary schools of other districts, while 245 students are attending the secondary schools of six other school systems. Kingston High School enrolls 103 of these students; Fleischmanns, 70; Hunter-Tannersville, 18; Ellenville, 17; Kerhonkson, 27; and Margaretville, 10. This accounts for the total pupil-population of 732.

There are now 1,119 resident minors on the school census rolls, which indicates that there are 387 pre-school children living in the Onteora Central School district who will enter school during the next five years. The new central school building, planned to accommodate 920 pupils in grades K-12, is scheduled to open in September, 1952.

The U. S. Army says three fourths of all its enlisted men have attended high school.

He has served as secretary of Huguenot Grange, as a consistoryman at the Reformed Church as president of the library board, president of the Dutch Arms and later of the Paltz Club, as chairman of the Christmas committee and as co-chairman of several Red Cross drives. Following the resignation of Dr. van den Berg from the Selective Service Board, Beebe was appointed to the board, elected chairman and served during the remainder of the war. For the past six years he has been justice of the peace and served on the town board. The concern of the nominee for securing equitable assessments in this area is indicated by the comprehensive study which he volunteered to make in 1948, following the appraisal by state tax department officials of a sampling of assessments in the town. This study which was presented to the board by Judge Beebe has been helpful in guiding subsequent assessments in order to bring property inside the village limit and that outside those limits into proper relationship.

The consistory and their wives of the Reformed Church entertained all leaders of church groups at supper in the social rooms on Tuesday evening, Sept. 25. The minister and leaders presented plans and programs for the coming year. Ralph Buchanan was in charge of the supper.

The Republican nominee at the recent caucus for the office of assessor for four years was Fred Smith, who, having sold his home, has withdrawn his name from the ticket. The committee on vacancies, after consulting with the district committeemen, has offered the nomination of Edgar Beebe and he has accepted. Mr. Beebe has been a resident of New Paltz and a property holder for 30 years, having retired from the college faculty in June 1951. He has served as secretary of Huguenot Grange, as a consistoryman at the Reformed Church as president of the library board, president of the Dutch Arms and later of the Paltz Club, as chairman of the Christmas committee and as co-chairman of several Red Cross drives. Following the resignation of Dr. van den Berg from the Selective Service Board, Beebe was appointed to the board, elected chairman and served during the remainder of the war. For the past six years he has been justice of the peace and served on the town board. The concern of the nominee for securing equitable assessments in this area is indicated by the comprehensive study which he volunteered to make in 1948, following the appraisal by state tax department officials of a sampling of assessments in the town. This study which was presented to the board by Judge Beebe has been helpful in guiding subsequent assessments in order to bring property inside the village limit and that outside those limits into proper relationship.

New Delhi (AP)—Nearly 1,000,000 tons of the United States food loan will have reached India before 1951 ends and the remaining 900,000 tons will arrive by March next year, Deputy Food Minister M. Tirumal Rao told questioners in parliament here.

Onteora Schools Have 481 Pupils

There are 481 pupils enrolled in the 21 elementary schools of the Onteora Central School system, according to a report by the attendance officer, Hazel Osborne. Six pupils are attending school in elementary schools of other districts, while 245 students are attending the secondary schools of six other school systems. Kingston High School enrolls 103 of these students; Fleischmanns, 70; Hunter-Tannersville, 18; Ellenville, 17; Kerhonkson, 27; and Margaretville, 10. This accounts for the total pupil-population of 732.

There are now 1,119 resident minors on the school census rolls, which indicates that there are 387 pre-school children living in the Onteora Central School district who will enter school during the next five years. The new central school building, planned to accommodate 920 pupils in grades K-12, is scheduled to open in September, 1952.

The U. S. Army says three fourths of all its enlisted men have attended high school.

Police Will Tell Of Reles' Death

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Five of the policemen assigned to guard Abe (Kid Twist) Reles will go before a grand jury tomorrow to tell what they know about the hoodlum's mysterious death ten years ago.

Reles, key witness in the "Murder, Inc.," prosecutions, plunged to his death from a Coney Island hotel window while in the protective custody of then Brooklyn District Attorney William O'Dwyer, now ambassador to Mexico.

The Brooklyn grand jury started hearing evidence in the case yesterday with nine witnesses testifying.

Jurors also heard testimony taken at the departmental trial of the five who were guarding Reles.

Later, Chief Assistant District Attorney Edward S. Silver said the quintet would be called tomorrow. The five are Patrolmen Victor Robbins, Frank Tempone and Harvey McLaughlin, and retired Policemen John E. Moran and James Boyle.

O'Dwyer told the U. S. Senate Crime Committee here last March that his case against Albert Anastasia "went out the window" with Reles. Anastasia is the alleged "lord high executioner" of Murder, Inc.

Reles previously had been a key witness against at least seven members of the murder-for-hire mob who died in the electric chair. These included racketeer Louis (Lepke) Buchalter.

Brooklyn officials plan to invite O'Dwyer to testify.

Like the United States Senate, the magnates now insisted on a right to judge the moral qualifications of their own colleagues.

Frick is not a direct-actionist, but he will accomplish Happy's purpose without notoriety. He will get it done for he is an upright man and he has more genuine sensitive feeling for baseball as an institution than any of the men who voted to give him the job of restoring public confidence in their business.

The likeness of Frick to Taft and the analogy of their situations is striking. Many Americans, including many self-important Republicans long used to gaudy conduct as a substitute for honor, ability and dignity, are afraid to take a chance on Taft. The magnates of the baseball business had better sense.

Bomb Threat Probed

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Police sped to the Consolidated Edison Company offices in lower Manhattan yesterday for the second time in less than two weeks to investigate a bomb threat. Edward C. Jennings, manager of the company's records bureau, received in the mail a suspicious looking package, bearing no other return address than "Lehman and Lehman." Jennings started to open the package and then stopped and called the police.

Police Will Tell Of Reles' Death

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Five of the policemen assigned to guard Abe (Kid Twist) Reles will go before a grand jury tomorrow to tell what they know about the hoodlum's mysterious death ten years ago.

Reles, key witness in the "Murder, Inc.," prosecutions, plunged to his death from a Coney Island hotel window while in the protective custody of then Brooklyn District Attorney William O'Dwyer, now ambassador to Mexico.

The Brooklyn grand jury started hearing evidence in the case yesterday with nine witnesses testifying.

Jurors also heard testimony taken at the departmental trial of the five who were guarding Reles.

Later, Chief Assistant District Attorney Edward S. Silver said the quintet would be called tomorrow. The five are Patrolmen Victor Robbins, Frank Tempone and Harvey McLaughlin, and retired Policemen John E. Moran and James Boyle.

O'Dwyer told the U. S. Senate Crime Committee here last March that his case against Albert Anastasia "went out the window" with Reles. Anastasia is the alleged "lord high executioner" of Murder, Inc.

Reles previously had been a key witness against at least seven members of the murder-for-hire mob who died in the electric chair. These included racketeer Louis (Lepke) Buchalter.

Brooklyn officials plan to invite O'Dwyer to testify.

Gerard's Estate Was 36 Millions

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—The late James W. Gerard, World War 1 ambassador to Germany, left an estate of about $36,000,000, it was estimated unofficially today.

Attorneys gave that figure as they filed his will, although for probate purposes the estate was valued only at "more than $50,000."

The bulk of it will go to the widow, Mrs. Mary D. Gerald, who was named sole executrix.

Gerard died Sept. 6 last, at the age of 84, in his Southampton, N. Y., summer home. The will was dated June 29, 1951.

Individual bequests of approximately $130,000 included $25,000 to his secretary, Veronica T. Hyland Miazza of Bronxville, N. Y.; $15,000 to his butler, Frank J. Hall of Jackson Heights, Queens, and $10,000 to his chauffeur, Randle Pomeroy, of New York.

Gerard left $10,000 to a nephew, Lieut. Col. James W. Gerard 4th, who is now in Japan.

Hormones for Trees

Kuala Lumpur (AP) — Hormone treatment may give a big boost to the production of latex in the Federation of Malaya. Producers claim that commercial production of a recently discovered stimulant would increase the yield of latex from rubber trees by 20% annually. The stimulant is said to be a combination of plant hormones in an oil base.

Do You Remember

BY SOPHIE MILLER

I am always saddened by the sight of anyone throwing out old books. An old book is like an old friend, it has given many pleasant hours to someone. Thursday afternoon, after school, September 20, I suddenly saw two ten-age boys with a cart full of old books tied with a big rope, and when I asked them where they were going, they said to sell the books to a junk yard. I said, "Wait a minute, perhaps I can buy some from you." At the same time, Hank Bailey from across the street had the same thought and bought a good dictionary for 75c, which I think was more than they would get for the whole load. I understand it is about 30 cents a 100 pounds of paper now. I could not read all the titles, so just took one book at random, "Harper's Encyclopaedia of United States History—Vol. 3" for 50 cents.

I can imagine how many institutions, libraries and homes would appreciate such a set of well bound, well kept books. Even at a rummage sale they might bring a handsomer price than at a junk yard sold for weight and at the same time find an appreciative home on a library shelf.

I remember down on the book stalls near Wanamaker's store in New York city one paid a good price for such volumes. Who in the world could send such books to the junkyard when United States History is a must throughout the local school systems? A history book is never old. The way it looks to me these books were donated, for mine has a signature on it.

One chapter alone is devoted to Fine Arts in the United States from the earlier settlers to about 1826. Will quote from this chapter at a later date. There are also fine illustrations and reprints from actual photographs in this book. One full length is of Admiral David Farragut besides many excellent engravings of ships, battles, Indians, etc., which would, no doubt, interest the boys who were carting the books to the junk yard.

There is a good coverage of the Federal Government of 1902 when Theodore Roosevelt of New York was President at a salary of $50,000. The Vice President's chair, at the time was vacant, salary called for $8,000. Just $500 more than mayor of our Kingston will receive now. At that time, the assistant secretary of the treasury was receiving a mere $4,500. I see under "The Navy, Flag Officers" the name of Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, commander-in-chief, North Atlantic Station, Flagship, "Kearsarge." I take it the same Higginson, later retired to live at the Huntington in Kingston and through his efforts with Mayor Canfield, the first playground system with paid supervisors was established. This book of some 500 pages contains many thousands of such above items and it certainly belongs on the shelf of some library in Kingston instead of being sold down the river for junk.

Can you imagine, Abraham Lincoln, in his youth, when he walked miles to borrow a book to read by the light of an open fireplace if he were given this wagon-full of "Harper's Encyclopaedia of the United States History." To think these beautiful books went past my door and I could do nothing about it except to buy one mere book for curiosity, and I had to do it fast, pick the first one on top, for the boys were very impatient to cart them off to their destruction at the junk yard. Very sad.

P. S.—The wagon lot was sold for 80 cents, as they went per weight.

Sulfur was discovered along the Gulf Coast by oil drillers about 1900.

Contract Action Heard in Court

An action on contract brought by Rose Selbst against Benjamin Selbst was taken up for trial in county court Tuesday.

Abraham Streifer appears for plaintiff and Howard C. St. John for defendant.

The action grows out of a series of incidents which took place during matrimonial difficulties which terminated in Selbst getting a Nevada divorce and his wife getting a separation from her husband in New York state. Mrs. Selbst was granted a separation by Justice Taylor on December 7, 1950, and she contends Selbst had married prior to her getting a separation and after he had won his Nevada divorce. Her separation was granted on cruel and inhuman treatment.

She seeks to recover $150 temporary alimony which she claims is unpaid and also $30 a week permanent alimony which was awarded when the separation action was concluded. In addition she seeks to recover $825, the amount of a check which she received some time prior in a settlement which involved a payment of $8,500, and which remains uncashed. Mrs. Selbst testified she had retained the check in a safe deposit box for several years because Selbst did not make good the check. She testified when she demanded payment of the check he told her she had used it up in board and lodging.

Announced as settled was an action brought by Richard and Reta Roth against Thomas Carroll. Howard C. St. John for plaintiff and Robert Ortale for defendant.

Fish Dies Natural Death

Cassville, Mo. (AP)—Here's a case where the fish really was smarter than the fishermen. A 9½-pound rainbow trout was found dead at Roaring River state park near here recently. Thousands fish the trout water there every year. A. G. Morris of the state conservation commission diagnosed it as death of old age.

Gerard's Estate Was 36 Millions

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—The late James W. Gerard, World War 1 ambassador to Germany, left an estate of about $36,000,000, it was estimated unofficially today.

Attorneys gave that figure as they filed his will, although for probate purposes the estate was valued only at "more than $50,000."

The bulk of it will go to the widow, Mrs. Mary D. Gerald, who was named sole executrix.

Gerard died Sept. 6 last, at the age of 84, in his Southampton, N. Y., summer home. The will was dated June 29, 1951.

Individual bequests of approximately $130,000 included $25,000 to his secretary, Veronica T. Hyland Miazza of Bronxville, N. Y.; $15,000 to his butler, Frank J. Hall of Jackson Heights, Queens, and $10,000 to his chauffeur, Randle Pomeroy, of New York.

Gerard left $10,000 to a nephew, Lieut. Col. James W. Gerard 4th, who is now in Japan.

Hormones for Trees

Kuala Lumpur (AP) — Hormone treatment may give a big boost to the production of latex in the Federation of Malaya. Producers claim that commercial production of a recently discovered stimulant would increase the yield of latex from rubber trees by 20% annually. The stimulant is said to be a combination of plant hormones in an oil base.

Do You Remember

BY SOPHIE MILLER

I am always saddened by the sight of anyone throwing out old books. An old book is like an old friend, it has given many pleasant hours to someone. Thursday afternoon, after school, September 20, I suddenly saw two ten-age boys with a cart full of old books tied with a big rope, and when I asked them where they were going, they said to sell the books to a junk yard. I said, "Wait a minute, perhaps I can buy some from you." At the same time, Hank Bailey from across the street had the same thought and bought a good dictionary for 75c, which I think was more than they would get for the whole load. I understand it is about 30 cents a 100 pounds of paper now. I could not read all the titles, so just took one book at random, "Harper's Encyclopaedia of United States History—Vol. 3" for 50 cents.

I can imagine how many institutions, libraries and homes would appreciate such a set of well bound, well kept books. Even at a rummage sale they might bring a handsomer price than at a junk yard sold for weight and at the same time find an appreciative home on a library shelf.

I remember down on the book stalls near Wanamaker's store in New York city one paid a good price for such volumes. Who in the world could send such books to the junkyard when United States History is a must throughout the local school systems? A history book is never old. The way it looks to me these books were donated, for mine has a signature on it.

One chapter alone is devoted to Fine Arts in the United States from the earlier settlers to about 1826. Will quote from this chapter at a later date. There are also fine illustrations and reprints from actual photographs in this book. One full length is of Admiral David Farragut besides many excellent engravings of ships, battles, Indians, etc., which would, no doubt, interest the boys who were carting the books to the junk yard.

There is a good coverage of the Federal Government of 1902 when Theodore Roosevelt of New York was President at a salary of $50,000. The Vice President's chair, at the time was vacant, salary called for $8,000. Just $500 more than mayor of our Kingston will receive now. At that time, the assistant secretary of the treasury was receiving a mere $4,500. I see under "The Navy, Flag Officers" the name of Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, commander-in-chief, North Atlantic Station, Flagship, "Kearsarge." I take it the same Higginson, later retired to live at the Huntington in Kingston and through his efforts with Mayor Canfield, the first playground system with paid supervisors was established. This book of some 500 pages contains many thousands of such above items and it certainly belongs on the shelf of some library in Kingston instead of being sold down the river for junk.

Can you imagine, Abraham Lincoln, in his youth, when he walked miles to borrow a book to read by the light of an open fireplace if he were given this wagon-full of "Harper's Encyclopaedia of the United States History." To think these beautiful books went past my door and I could do nothing about it except to buy one mere book for curiosity, and I had to do it fast, pick the first one on top, for the boys were very impatient to cart them off to their destruction at the junk yard. Very sad.

P. S.—The wagon lot was sold for 80 cents, as they went per weight.

Sulfur was discovered along the Gulf Coast by oil drillers about 1900.

Contract Action Heard in Court

An action on contract brought by Rose Selbst against Benjamin Selbst was taken up for trial in county court Tuesday.

Abraham Streifer appears for plaintiff and Howard C. St. John for defendant.

The action grows out of a series of incidents which took place during matrimonial difficulties which terminated in Selbst getting a Nevada divorce and his wife getting a separation from her husband in New York state. Mrs. Selbst was granted a separation by Justice Taylor on December 7, 1950, and she contends Selbst had married prior to her getting a separation and after he had won his Nevada divorce. Her separation was granted on cruel and inhuman treatment.

She seeks to recover $150 temporary alimony which she claims is unpaid and also $30 a week permanent alimony which was awarded when the separation action was concluded. In addition she seeks to recover $825, the amount of a check which she received some time prior in a settlement which involved a payment of $8,500, and which remains uncashed. Mrs. Selbst testified she had retained the check in a safe deposit box for several years because Selbst did not make good the check. She testified when she demanded payment of the check he told her she had used it up in board and lodging.

Announced as settled was an action brought by Richard and Reta Roth against Thomas Carroll. Howard C. St. John for plaintiff and Robert Ortale for defendant.

Sorosis Hears Paper On United Nations Plus GFWC Article

Sorosis heard Mrs. William McVey's paper on the United Natjons charter and an article, read by Mrs. Boyd Williams, on inflation from the General Federation of Women's Clubs, during the club's meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin B. Shumate, Lomontville. Dessert and coffee were served by the hostess, and Mrs. William Ochs, president, presided.

The GFWC article noted "inflation is our worst enemy," and asked its members to cooperate in combating inflationary evils. It suggested writing to Congress for rollbacks and price controls and urged support of the bill establishing stiffer penalties for narcotics peddlers. Mrs. Williams also called attention to Senator Herbert Lehman's fight for the middle class over the question of taxation.

Mrs. McVey began by urging members to read the UN charter in an effort to understand the UN's workings, purposes and principles, and told of her visit to the United Nations Information Bureau.

"If you should go out and ask three different people three basic questions about the UN charter, you would find that they do not know, they do not read, yet they condemn."

Six Main Bodies

Mrs. McVey then described the UN's six main bodies: the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the Secretariat, the International Court of Justice.

The first is composed of representatives of the member states. Each state has one vote, and a two-thirds majority is required for a decision. The Security Council has one representative from each nation, and its primary responsibilit is to maintain peace and security. The Economic and Social Council, meanwhile, has 18 members elected by the General Assembly. The Trusteeship Council, which is under the General Assembly, allows each member one vote. Decisions are made by the majority present and voting. The Secretariat furnishes permanent personnel for the UN's various policy making bodies. There are 15 independent justices in the International Court, with no two judges from the same country. They are elected jointly by the General Assembly and the Security Council.

It was announced during the meeting that Mrs. Ochs will represent Sorosis on Kingston's 300th anniversary committee.

The club will meet again at the home of Mrs. Lorraine Wood, 82 Highland avenue, Monday, October 8.

Miss Bernice Lowe, Lafayette Holstein Are Married Sunday

The Rondout Presbyterian-Wurts Street Baptist Church, trimmed with baskets of summer flowers on the altar, set the scene Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Bernice Lowe and Lafayette Holstein. She is the daughter of Mrs. Irving H. Lowe, 65 Maple street, and the late Mr. Lowe. He is the son of Mrs. Lafayette Holstein, 7 Hanratty street, and the late Mr. Holstein. The Rev. William Carner Cain of that congregation officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Organ selections were played by Mrs. Harry Smith, while John McCullough sang Because, I Love Thee, and The Lord's Prayer.

Walter H. Lowe gave his sister in marriage. Her gown was of traditional white slipper satin, en train, with a fitted bodice, reaching to a point at the waist, long pointed sleeves and a pearl beaded collar. Her headpiece of seeded pearls caught a lace trimmed fingertip veil, and she carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli.

Mrs. James Noble, 128 Newkirk avenue, the bride's only attendant, wore a strapless blue gown made with two marquisette skirts over taffeta, satin beading trim and a satin bolero. She wore matching mitts and a headpiece of blue seeded pearls with marquisette. Her arm bouquet was of pink gladioli.

WORRIED FIANCE

A man writes: "My fiancee's cousin is visiting her family and she feels it is up to her to see that he is well entertained. She has brothers and other sisters who could take him out places, or at least be in the party when she does. Anyway he's quite the dashing Romeo—or so he thinks—and it flatters his ego no end to have the whole family at his feet. As my fiancee, I think, she ought to let the others look after him, or at least have them in the group when she goes out with this cousin. She laughs and asks, "Are you jealous of my own first cousin?" I'm not jealous of him exactly but I think it is improper for her to be seen around town alone with him. Everyone will probably soon be saying that our engagement is on the rocks."

On the subject of being seen alone with him, I agree with you—and she ought to have enough sense to realize the "food" she is giving the gossips.

Return Address Label

Dear Mrs. Post: The other day a friend sent me a note and enclosed a gummed label with her name and address which I've just used to address an envelope to her. It was a marvelous time saver, probably also appreciated by the postman because printed and legible. Could you, would you, approve of friends doing this for the convenience of those who write to them?

Answer I see no reason why not! In fact I think the idea excellent.

Indebtedness Paid

Dear Mrs. Post: Three couples have declined my invitation to a buffet dinner, all having previous engagements. As the party is ten days off it is not that I invited them too late to give them an opportunity to accept. Is my indebtedness paid by this invitation?

Answer: Yes—fully!

Little Gardens Has Luncheon Meeting; Paper Topic Is Trees

Little Gardens Club members, meeting with Miss Bessie Brewster and Miss Lottie Johnson for a luncheon-business meeting at Deanie's in Woodstock Friday, heard Miss Johnson's comprehensive paper on trees.

Trees, the speaker felt, are more efficient than any factory, more mysterious than a mystery story, and yet as familiar as the sun. They were interwoven with the story of man before recorded history.

"We can distinguish a few," Miss Johnson said, "and our knowledge of the subject ends there."

The speaker then described a tree's biological life process. She told them if a tree is stripped of its leaves and next year's leaf buds it will die, as it is fed through the leaves which take carbonic acid gas from the air, and water from the earth. These are combined into sugar, the tree's food. Every leaf, she explained, is a sugar factory, generated by sunlight. A summer field appears green, she added, because light is reflected from plant cells containing protoplasm with a high chlorophyll content.

Chlorophyll Responsible

Chlorophyll, or the green plant pigment, the speaker continued, is responsible for breaking up the gas and water components, and changing them to sugar. Even human life is dependent on these green cells which manufacture all the starch in the human diet.

In most trees, particularly maples, surplus sugar is manufactured during the summer, and stored as starch in the roots. There are two types of sap in each tree, one flowing up, and one flowing down. Sap is also closely related to the tree's breathing.

Equally important is the tree's bark, the speaker added, which protects the delicate inner systems, and allows the wood cells to retain water.

Fall Leaves Shells

Fall leaves are empty shells, Miss Johnson told the group. Their real colors are revealed by the absence of chlorophyll. Pines, a coniferous tree, keep their needles for a summer, a winter and a summer. In May the tree puts out a new shoot at the end of each branch. Hemlocks keep their "leaves" for three years, spruces and firs even longer.

Miss Johnson concluded by saying that the pages of the "great book of trees have only been scanned. No one can read it all, but every word is worth the effort. Trees are everywhere, and they are good company.

Sorosis Hears Paper On United Nations Plus GFWC Article

Sorosis heard Mrs. William McVey's paper on the United Nations charter and an article, read by Mrs. Boyd Williams, on inflation from the General Federation of Women's Clubs, during the club's meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin B. Shumate, Lomontville. Dessert and coffee were served by the hostess, and Mrs. William Ochs, president, presided.

The GFWC article noted "inflation is our worst enemy," and asked its members to cooperate in combating inflationary evils. It suggested writing to Congress for rollbacks and price controls and urged support of the bill establishing stiffer penalties for narcotics peddlers. Mrs. Williams also called attention to Senator Herbert Lehman's fight for the middle class over the question of taxation.

Mrs. McVey began by urging members to read the UN charter in an effort to understand the UN's workings, purposes and principles, and told of her visit to the United Nations Information Bureau.

"If you should go out and ask three different people three basic questions about the UN charter, you would find that they do not know, they do not read, yet they condemn."

Six Main Bodies

Mrs. McVey then described the UN's six main bodies: the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the Secretariat, the International Court of Justice.

The first is composed of representatives of the member states. Each state has one vote, and a two-thirds majority is required for a decision. The Security Council has one representative from each nation, and its primary responsibilit is to maintain peace and security. The Economic and Social Council, meanwhile, has 18 members elected by the General Assembly. The Trusteeship Council, which is under the General Assembly, allows each member one vote. Decisions are made by the majority present and voting. The Secretariat furnishes permanent personnel for the UN's various policy making bodies. There are 15 independent justices in the International Court, with no two judges from the same country. They are elected jointly by the General Assembly and the Security Council.

It was announced during the meeting that Mrs. Ochs will represent Sorosis on Kingston's 300th anniversary committee.

The club will meet again at the home of Mrs. Lorraine Wood, 82 Highland avenue, Monday, October 8.

Miss Bernice Lowe, Lafayette Holstein Are Married Sunday

The Rondout Presbyterian-Wurts Street Baptist Church, trimmed with baskets of summer flowers on the altar, set the scene Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Bernice Lowe and Lafayette Holstein. She is the daughter of Mrs. Irving H. Lowe, 65 Maple street, and the late Mr. Lowe. He is the son of Mrs. Lafayette Holstein, 7 Hanratty street, and the late Mr. Holstein. The Rev. William Carner Cain of that congregation officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Organ selections were played by Mrs. Harry Smith, while John McCullough sang Because, I Love Thee, and The Lord's Prayer.

Walter H. Lowe gave his sister in marriage. Her gown was of traditional white slipper satin, en train, with a fitted bodice, reaching to a point at the waist, long pointed sleeves and a pearl beaded collar. Her headpiece of seeded pearls caught a lace trimmed fingertip veil, and she carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli.

Mrs. James Noble, 128 Newkirk avenue, the bride's only attendant, wore a strapless blue gown made with two marquisette skirts over taffeta, satin beading trim and a satin bolero. She wore matching mitts and a headpiece of blue seeded pearls with marquisette. Her arm bouquet was of pink gladioli.

George Holstein, USN, fireman first class, of Bayonne, N. J., brother of the groom, was best man. Richard Van Bramer, USA, and Edward Trombley, USN, ushered.

A reception for 100 guests was held at Mannerchor Hall, Greenkill avenue. The couple then left for a wedding trip to New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C. Coach House Opens Membership Drive; Three Types Offered

The Coach House Players, Inc., have opened their annual membership drive, it was announced today, with three types of memberships offered.

They are: Active membership, which entitles members to vote at meetings and participate in all club activities including acting, stage craft, costuming and other phases of little theatre work; associate membership, which grants admission to each of three three-act plays and three one-act plays offered by the group during the year; patron membership which entitles the holder to admission to the three act and one-act plays, and to listing as a patron of the arts.

Members have reminded the public that when the Coach house on Augusta street is finished seating will be limited, with preference going to those on the membership lists.

The Players' first production of the fall season, Chicken Every Sunday, will be held October 12 and 13 at the Woodstock Playhouse. There will be a booth in the lobby where memberships may be applied for or renewed. Further information may be had by calling Mrs. Hugh Elwyn at 2059.

Miss Bernice Lowe, Lafayette Holstein Are Married Sunday

The Rondout Presbyterian-Wurts Street Baptist Church, trimmed with baskets of summer flowers on the altar, set the scene Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Bernice Lowe and Lafayette Holstein. She is the daughter of Mrs. Irving H. Lowe, 65 Maple street, and the late Mr. Lowe. He is the son of Mrs. Lafayette Holstein, 7 Hanratty street, and the late Mr. Holstein. The Rev. William Carner Cain of that congregation officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Organ selections were played by Mrs. Harry Smith, while John McCullough sang Because, I Love Thee, and The Lord's Prayer.

Walter H. Lowe gave his sister in marriage. Her gown was of traditional white slipper satin, en train, with a fitted bodice, reaching to a point at the waist, long pointed sleeves and a pearl beaded collar. Her headpiece of seeded pearls caught a lace trimmed fingertip veil, and she carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli.

Mrs. James Noble, 128 Newkirk avenue, the bride's only attendant, wore a strapless blue gown made with two marquisette skirts over taffeta, satin beading trim and a satin bolero. She wore matching mitts and a headpiece of blue seeded pearls with marquisette. Her arm bouquet was of pink gladioli.

George Holstein, USN, fireman first class, of Bayonne, N. J., brother of the groom, was best man. Richard Van Bramer, USA, and Edward Trombley, USN, ushered.

A reception for 100 guests was held at Mannerchor Hall, Greenkill avenue. The couple then left for a wedding trip to New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C. For traveling Mrs. Holstein selected a forest green gabardine suit, black velvet accessories, and a corsage of yellow tea roses. Mr. and Mrs. Holstein will make their temporary home at 65 Maple street.

The bride attended Kingston High School and is an employe of The Fuller Shirt Co., Inc., 45 Pine Grove avenue.

Mr. Holstein is an alumnus of Kingston High School and is now employed by William Rylance and Sons, Inc., Hurley avenue.

WORRIED FIANCE

A man writes: "My fiancee's cousin is visiting her family and she feels it is up to her to see that he is well entertained. She has brothers and other sisters who could take him out places, or at least be in the party when she does. Anyway he's quite the dashing Romeo—or so he thinks—and it flatters his ego no end to have the whole family at his feet. As my fiancee, I think, she ought to let the others look after him, or at least have them in the group when she goes out with this cousin. She laughs and asks, "Are you jealous of my own first cousin?" I'm not jealous of him exactly but I think it is improper for her to be seen around town alone with him. Everyone will probably soon be saying that our engagement is on the rocks."

On the subject of being seen alone with him, I agree with you—and she ought to have enough sense to realize the "food" she is giving the gossips.

Return Address Label

Dear Mrs. Post: The other day a friend sent me a note and enclosed a gummed label with her name and address which I've just used to address an envelope to her. It was a marvelous time saver, probably also appreciated by the postman because printed and legible. Could you, would you, approve of friends doing this for the convenience of those who write to them?

Answer I see no reason why not! In fact I think the idea excellent.

Indebtedness Paid

Dear Mrs. Post: Three couples have declined my invitation to a buffet dinner, all having previous engagements. As the party is ten days off it is not that I invited them too late to give them an opportunity to accept. Is my indebtedness paid by this invitation?

Answer: Yes—fully!

How should I close a letter and how should I sign my name? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but answers to the above questions are included in her booklet No. 502, "Letter Writing." To obtain a copy send 10 cents (coin preferred) and a 3-cent stamp to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Little Gardens Has Luncheon Meeting; Paper Topic Is Trees

Little Gardens Club members, meeting with Miss Bessie Brewster and Miss Lottie Johnson for a luncheon-business meeting at Deanie's in Woodstock Friday, heard Miss Johnson's comprehensive paper on trees.

Trees, the speaker felt, are more efficient than any factory, more mysterious than a mystery story, and yet as familiar as the sun. They were interwoven with the story of man before recorded history.

"We can distinguish a few," Miss Johnson said, "and our knowledge of the subject ends there."

The speaker then described a tree's biological life process. She told them if a tree is stripped of its leaves and next year's leaf buds it will die, as it is fed through the leaves which take carbonic acid gas from the air, and water from the earth. These are combined into sugar, the tree's food. Every leaf, she explained, is a sugar factory, generated by sunlight. A summer field appears green, she added, because light is reflected from plant cells containing protoplasm with a high chlorophyll content.

Chlorophyll Responsible

Chlorophyll, or the green plant pigment, the speaker continued, is responsible for breaking up the gas and water components, and changing them to sugar. Even human life is dependent on these green cells which manufacture all the starch in the human diet.

In most trees, particularly maples, surplus sugar is manufactured during the summer, and stored as starch in the roots. There are two types of sap in each tree, one flowing up, and one flowing down. Sap is also closely related to the tree's breathing.

Equally important is the tree's bark, the speaker added, which protects the delicate inner systems, and allows the wood cells to retain water.

Fall Leaves Shells

Fall leaves are empty shells, Miss Johnson told the group. Their real colors are revealed by the absence of chlorophyll. Pines, a coniferous tree, keep their needles for a summer, a winter and a summer. In May the tree puts out a new shoot at the end of each branch. Hemlocks keep their "leaves" for three years, spruces and firs even longer.

Miss Johnson concluded by saying that the pages of the "great book of trees have only been scanned. No one can read it all, but every word is worth the effort. Trees are everywhere, and they are good company.

Receiving Watches for 50 Years' Service

Members of the Hutton Company's 50-Year Club, Sam Frangello and Frank Turck, Sr., receive engraved watches as a token of thanks for their loyalty and good will. Graduate Nurse's Aide Lists Her Reasons For Enrolling in 80-Hour Training Course

(Freeman Photo)

Service to humanity and benefits to one's self were two reasons given by Miss Marie Flynn of 112 West Chestnut street, a nurse's aide, when she was asked why a person should take advantage of the nurse's aide training course to be offered next month.

It is a good feeling, Miss Flynn said, "to really be doing good for people not able to help themselves." She explained that aides can and do help registered nurses in many ways, freeing the registered nurses from many of the routine duties so that they can devote more time to their patients.

Miss Flynn's duties include such things as taking temperatures, pulse readings, giving bed baths, and afternoon and evening care. She always works under supervision of a registered nurse.

In addition to the gratification of doing good for others, a nurse's aide receives training that can be especially valuable to her in her own home in later years.

As a contribution to defense preparations, nurse's aid training is also valuable, Miss Flynn pointed out. In the event of an attack upon New York, the injured may be evacuated to outlying territory, including Kingston. If that should happen, she pointed out, R.N.'s and other medical personnel would need all the assistance they could get.

"I think anybody who can afford the time should take the training," Miss Flynn said.

Miss Flynn, a graduate of St. Ursula's Academy and Marymount College in Tarrytown, was capped August 11, 1951, after an 80-hour course similar to the one for which members are now being recruited. The course included 34 classroom hours, six hours of orientation and 40 hours "on the floor."

A nurse's aide student must agree to serve at least 150 hours after graduation.

Twelve members, at least, are being sought for the course scheduled to begin October 1. That course is to train aides for work at Kingston Hospital, and the schooling will be given at that hospital under Mrs. Anthony Turck, R.N. Applicants must be high school graduates between the ages of 18 to 55. The work is strictly voluntary. Classes will meet from 9 to 12 every morning, Mondays through Fridays, until the 80 hours is completed. Hours after graduation are arranged according to the aide's own convenience.

Mrs. Theron Culver Named Initial Gifts Chairman for YWCA

Mrs. Theron L. Culver, president of the board of directors of the YWCA, has been named chairman of the initial gifts committee, it was announced today. Although the 1952 drive is scheduled for October 1-22, the Initial Gifts Committee has already begun its work.

The YWCA, as one YW spokesman explained recently, is a fellowship organization. It gives recreation, help and service to all age groups regardless of color or creed. The committee hopes the organization's significance will prompt all members of the community to participate in its promotion.

The following committee members are serving with Mrs. Culver: Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Arnold, Robert Cousins, William E. Gaffken, Miss Florence Cordts, Fred Ertel, Raymond W. Garraghan, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, Mrs. W. Dean Hays, Ronald Herrick, Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, Christopher Morris, Harry Rigby, Jr., Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. Frank Thompson, Howard R. St. John, B. C. VanIngen, and Mrs. Harry Walker.

Hutton Company Employes Receive Engraved Watches

Nearly 150 friends and fellow employes gathered at St. Mary's Society hall last night to pay tribute to Sam Frangello and Frank Turck, Sr., who have completed 50 years of service with The Hutton Company, local brick manufacturers.

The loyalty and good will of both men's services, in addition to the esteem and respect the company holds them in, were emphasized during addresses by G. V. D. Hutton, president; F. W. Flint, vice president; William H. Tierney, superintendent, and Charles H. Roth, secretary.

Ceremonies ended with the presentation of suitably engraved watches to both new members of the company's 50-year Club.

Refreshments were prepared by the employes' committee on arrangements: Patrick Sottile, James Polacco and Joseph Perry.

Democratic Women Hold Annual Picnic

The annual picnic sponsored by the Ulster County Democratic Women's Club was held Sunday afternoon at Spindler's Resort, Maple Hill. It has been estimated that approximately 1,000 men, women and children attended.

Speakers were Raymond McAndrew, Democratic candidate for mayor; Fred C. Harder, Democratic candidate for alderman-at-large, and Fred Dusing, Democratic candidate for county clerk. Ward candidates were introduced by City Chairman Joseph J. Carroll.

Children attending participated in outdoor games under the supervision of Mrs. Rose Hogan and her committee.

Miss Joan Simmons Celebrates Birthday

20th Century Club Opens Fall Season At Meeting Monday

The 20th Century Club opened its fall season Monday with an evening meeting at the home of Mrs. Joseph Deegan, 219 Albany avenue. Following the club's short business meeting, Mrs. Thomas A. Edmondston presented her paper, Australia. The story was originally presented to club members 20 years ago.

The speaker used recent news items to introduce her story. A paisley shawl, and a family in Scotland, where clever craftsmen wove the shawls on hand looms, were focal points of the plot, which told how, after power looms were introduced in America, many Scotch weavers were forced to seek employment in foreign lands. The characters in Mrs. Edmonston's story became displaced persons, seeking their fortunes in Australia. The family was separated, and finally, after many adventures, reunited. In the course of her story, the speaker managed to give a comprehensive picture of early Australian life. She described the occupations of its people, the terrain, climate and animal life.

Following Mrs. Edmonston's paper, refreshments were served by the program committee. The club's next meeting will be announced.

Cobleskill Registers Four County Students

Four Ulster county students were registered last week at the New York State Institute of Agriculture and Home Economics, Cobleskill.

They are: Miss Theresa Schatzel, daughter of Mrs. Florence Schatzel, 10 Furnace street, a senior majoring in food service administration; Miss Molly Adams, daughter of Mrs. William W. Adams, Chichester, a junior majoring in food service administration; Miss Carol Talleur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Talleur, 194 Elmendorf street, a junior majoring in nursery education, and Hilda Kruger, daughter of Mrs. Ella Kruger, Krumville, a senior majoring in food service administration.

Stork Shower Held For Mrs. Allison

A party of close relatives and friends were entertained by Mrs. Edward Van Demark Thursday afternoon at a stork shower in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Allison. Pink and blue streamers around a shower bassinet were used for decorations. During the shower, guests were served refreshments.

Attending were the Mmes. Arthur Markle, Benjamin J. Lee, Martin Hamilton, Adeline Everett, Arthur Gray, L. A. Wynkoop, Irving Coddington, Jr., Asa Wynkoop and Jacob Terwilliger.

World movie theatres, according to the National Geographic Society, provide one seat for every 44 persons on earth.

20th Century Club Opens Fall Season At Meeting Monday

The 20th Century Club opened its fall season Monday with an evening meeting at the home of Mrs. Joseph Deegan, 219 Albany avenue. Following the club's short business meeting, Mrs. Thomas A. Edmondston presented her paper, Australia. The story was originally presented to club members 20 years ago.

The speaker used recent news items to introduce her story. A paisley shawl, and a family in Scotland, where clever craftsmen wove the shawls on hand looms, were focal points of the plot, which told how, after power looms were introduced in America, many Scotch weavers were forced to seek employment in foreign lands. The characters in Mrs. Edmonston's story became displaced persons, seeking their fortunes in Australia. The family was separated, and finally, after many adventures, reunited. In the course of her story, the speaker managed to give a comprehensive picture of early Australian life. She described the occupations of its people, the terrain, climate and animal life.

Following Mrs. Edmonston's paper, refreshments were served by the program committee. The club's next meeting will be announced.

Graduate Nurse's Aide Lists Her Reasons For Enrolling in 80-Hour Training Course

Service to humanity and benefits to one's self were two reasons given by Miss Marie Flynn of 112 West Chestnut street, a nurse's aide, when she was asked why a person should take advantage of the nurse's aide training course to be offered next month.

It is a good feeling, Miss Flynn said, "to really be doing good for people not able to help themselves." She explained that aides can and do help registered nurses in many ways, freeing the registered nurses from many of the routine duties so that they can devote more time to their patients.

Miss Flynn's duties include such things as taking temperatures, pulse readings, giving bed baths, and afternoon and evening care. She always works under supervision of a registered nurse.

In addition to the gratification of doing good for others, a nurse's aide receives training that can be especially valuable to her in her own home in later years.

As a contribution to defense preparations, nurse's aid training is also valuable, Miss Flynn pointed out. In the event of an attack upon New York, the injured may be evacuated to outlying territory, including Kingston. If that should happen, she pointed out, R.N.'s and other medical personnel would need all the assistance they could get.

"I think anybody who can afford the time should take the training," Miss Flynn said.

Miss Flynn, a graduate of St. Ursula's Academy and Marymount College in Tarrytown, was capped August 11, 1951, after an 80-hour course similar to the one for which members are now being recruited. The course included 34 classroom hours, six hours of orientation and 40 hours "on the floor."

A nurse's aide student must agree to serve at least 150 hours after graduation.

Twelve members, at least, are being sought for the course scheduled to begin October 1. That course is to train aides for work at Kingston Hospital, and the schooling will be given at that hospital under Mrs. Anthony Turck, R.N. Applicants must be high school graduates between the ages of 18 to 55. The work is strictly voluntary. Classes will meet from 9 to 12 every morning, Mondays through Fridays, until the 80 hours is completed. Hours after graduation are arranged according to the aide's own convenience.

Mrs. Theron Culver Named Initial Gifts Chairman for YWCA

Mrs. Theron L. Culver, president of the board of directors of the YWCA, has been named chairman of the initial gifts committee, it was announced today. Although the 1952 drive is scheduled for October 1-22, the Initial Gifts Committee has already begun its work.

The YWCA, as one YW spokesman explained recently, is a fellowship organization. It gives recreation, help and service to all age groups regardless of color or creed. The committee hopes the organization's significance will prompt all members of the community to participate in its promotion.

The following committee members are serving with Mrs. Culver: Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Arnold, Robert Cousins, William E. Gaffken, Miss Florence Cordts, Fred Ertel, Raymond W. Garraghan, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, Mrs. W. Dean Hays, Ronald Herrick, Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, Christopher Morris, Harry Rigby, Jr., Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. Frank Thompson, Howard R. St. John, B. C. VanIngen, and Mrs. Harry Walker.

Car and Driver in Route 28 Mishap

Domingo Rivera, 42, of 502 West 161st street, New York city, a counterman at the Stanley Cafeteria on lower Broadway, New York city, encountered cream in a different form than that served in the restaurant yesterday as he was driving down the Onteora Trail near the Sunset Theatre. Rivera reported to the sheriff that he was proceding south and had entered the curve when his 1941 Buick car, traveling between 40 and 50 miles an hour, struck one of the spots where a can of cream had spilled from a truck earlier in the day. As a result he lost control and the car left the highway and overturned. The body and front end was damaged to the extent of about $500 he told Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro who investigated. (Freeman Photo)

Greene County Grand Jury Indicts Mrs. Bertha Bangs

A Greene county grand jury today handed up an indictment against Mrs. Bertha Bangs, 58, of Kingston, who was arrested last July 8 by Trooper Charles Crommie of the Windham state police sub-station on an assault charge, the Greene county district attorney's office reported this morning.

Mrs. Bangs' address was listed as Jewett at the time of her arrest, but the trooper said the address on her permit to carry a revolver, was given as "off North Manor avenue, Kingston." She has the summer place at Jewett, he said.

Trooper Crommie said Mrs. Bangs was arrested after firing a shot from a Smith & Wesson revolver, into a car driven by the wife of Attorney James H. Hyer, of Athens. Mrs. Hyer was driving over a road in Jewett to the Hyers' summer home, the trooper said.

Says Shot Was Fired

Mrs. Hyer told the trooper, he said, that when she was a short distance from the house she stopped the car because there was a dog in the road. She said she sounded the horn and then a shot was fired into the car from a distance of about 15 feet to the right front of the car.

The bullet, the trooper said, pierced the front of the car, went through the grill and lodged in the radiator.

According to the trooper, Mrs. Hyer said that Mrs. Bangs then came toward the car brandishing the revolver and a stick. Mrs. Hyer, he said, told the woman to get out of the way. She started the car and went to the summer home from where she notified the trooper.

Returning With Children

Mrs. Hyer, Crommie said, told him that she was returning from North Lake where she had picked up eight children ranging in age from 10 months to 19 years, and was driving them to the summer home.

Mrs. Bangs was arraigned before Peace Justice Joseph Thiel, of Hunter, and later was released on property bond of $5,000 fixed by Greene County Judge Paul Fromer pending grand jury action.

Trooper Crommie said there had been "friction between the two families" growing out of "differences over property lines." The Hyer and Bangs properties, he said, are about a quarter of a mile apart.

Cars in Collision At Hurley Curve

Two cars were considerably damaged in a collision Tuesday afternoon on the turn in Hurley village at the Reformed Church, according to the sheriff's department.

The autos involved belonged to Terwilliger Brothers, a Kerhonkson firm, and Earl S. Lutz of Sellersville, Pa., it was reported by Deputy Carl Cline.

Siah O. Terwilliger, 62, was the driver of the Kerhonkson car, and Verna Lutz, 44, was operating the other.

Damage to the Lutz car was estimated at $100, and that to the Terwilliger vehicle at $250.

Mrs. Lutz, according to a report, was proceeding toward Kingston and did not realize the sharpness of the curve. She said her car skidded on the wet pavement, when she applied her brake, and struck the Terwilliger car.

Both autos were damaged on the left side.

Held for Burglary

Arthur Lee Williams of 56 Meadow street was arrested at police headquarters by Sgt. Lemuel Howard at 1:30 p. m. yesterday on a charge of third degree burglary. Police said the arrest followed investigation of the theft of two wrist watches from 20 Ann street earlier this month. Mrs. Wilbur Delanoy reported the thefts and said entrance was apparently gained through a rear window of the house. Williams' case was adjourned until Sept. 28 when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

20 Persons Killed In European Wreck

Vienna, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Vienna-Rome express crashed into a stationary freight early today, killing 20 persons and injuring 10 seriously. About 30 others were slightly injured.

The dead were believed to be members of an Italian railwayman's organization who had been vacationing in Vienna.

Reports from the scene said the crowded express was traveling about 30 miles an hour in foggy weather through the yards at Langenwang when it hit the standing freight. The engine of the express was thrown 300 feet. The service car behind it was shoved backward onto the roof of the death car.

size from Staten Island waters.

3. Two witnesses said that at Ruppell's request they met with Michael (Mikey Dee) Dalessio, alleged Staten Island bookmaking boss, to discuss matters concerning Republican nominations or applications for bar and grill licenses.

4. An application for a liquor store license and the lawyer for a second applicant said both failed to obtain licenses after refusal to pay Ruppell as the latter allegedly had suggested.

5. A barber told the commission that Ruppell was an accomplice to an effort to make him pay $1,200 to obtain a job as state barber inspector.

6. Six present and former Republican-appointed and elected job-holders testified they made "contributions" totalling $5,570 during the past two years to Ruppell and Peter B. Spinelli. The latter is secretary of the Richmond county Republican organization and assistant prosecutor named by Democratic District Attorney Herman Methfessel.

Case Is Postponed

In another court room, a perjury case against Mrs. Anna Wentworth was postponed to Oct. 15. Methfessel had her arrested after she testified before the Crime Commission that she had seen Methfessel—then an assistant district attorney—at the Dalessio home while roulette was being played.

The housewife's lawyer, David Cohen, said he would lodge charges against Methfessel, and assistant district attorney and two detectives who arrested the woman. Cohen said he would charge them with conspiracy to delay Mrs. Wentworth's appearance in court and with denying her the right of counsel.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, saying Methfessel abused his power in causing the arrest, has superseded him in all matters related to the crime probe. William B. Herlands, a veteran crime prober, was named to handle these matters.

After the testimony by jobholders that they had made payment, present and former treasurers of the Republican County Committee testified there was no record of such payments having been received by the committee.

Recognized Number

Lucking, the war veteran and a former Staten Island resident, testified that in his presence Ruppell called a telephone number which Lucking recognized as the home telephone of Gatz to confirm that Lucking's liquor license would be issued promptly. Lucking said he received the license the next day.

Gatz, the day's last witness, declared:

"I have never received a five-cent piece for anything I ever did at the State Liquor Authority. At no time and at no place did I ever indicate that money was needed to obtain a license.

"I will not deny that Edward Ruppell called me at my house in reference to Lucking. He called me about many things."

Gatz was deputy commissioner of the authority in 1945 when the money allegedly was paid.

Gatz admitted he had Ruppell's endorsement when he got his first job with the Liquor Authority.

Security Curbs

formation" and give it one of four additional labels: Top secret, secret, confidential, or restricted.

The order makes no attempt to define what information should be classified—it leaves that to heads of the various government agencies.

It was this lack of standards which brought the first protests from newspaper executives.

'Further Suppression"

Alexander F. Jones, executive editor of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald-Journal and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE), commented:

"Any time you give a government department head authority to classify material as top secret on a security basis you are placing a potent weapon in his hands. The result, inevitably, is further suppression of the news."

James S. Pope, managing editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and chairman of the ASNE's Committee on Freedom of Information, called the order "ill advised and poorly executed." In a statement issued in San Francisco, Pope declared the committee has no desire to interfere with military security, but he added:

"We do not believe that the President's order will protect security as much as it will smother legitimate information about the operation of government."

Truman Denies Censorship

In a statement accompanying the order, Mr. Truman said it contains "no element of censorship, direct or implied."

"It is my hope that the practical effect of these regulations will be to make more, rather than less, information about the government available to the people," the President said. "This should result from the segregation of security information from non-security information."

Senator Case (R.-S.D.), meanwhile, urged Washington newsmen to report to him any examples of news suppression by federal officials. Case, a former editor and publisher, said in a letter to congressional press and radio galleries:

"If the evidence develops to show that suppression is becoming dangerous and widespread, some further, more formal action by the Congress may be necessary * * *."

Attlee Will . . .

doubt that the Iranian government bore full responsibility for the consequences of this decision."

Toughness Is Asked

Newspapers called for a get-tough-with-Iran policy. Mossadegh's expulsion order was made after Britain rebuffed a new bid to reopen talks on the oil company's future.

British government leaders have hinted they might order the use of force to keep the technicians at Abadan.

The foreign office spokesman declined to amplify on what Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador in Iran, meant about possible "consequences" of the expulsion order.

If Britain takes a most forceful line toward Iran it would pose grave international problems for all the North Atlantic Pact allies.

Iran has a mutual defense treaty with Russia, signed in 1921, that entitles Russia to send troops into Iran if Iran is invaded. This must be taken into account in the reckoning on whether force should be used at Abadan.

Amounts to Expropriation

Britain contends Iran's oil nationalization amounts to expropriation of British property and that the expulsion of personnel would violate a recent recommendation of the international court of justice at The Hague.

The court held that neither Iran nor Britain should "aggravate or extend" their dispute and that "no measure of any kind" should be taken to hinder the oil operations.

Iran refused to accept the court's opinion. Britain closed down the oil operations some time ago when storages were filled. British tanker ships were called out of service last summer during a dispute over who owned the oil from the refinery —Iran or the British.

Britain hoped to have some sort of reaction from the White House in Washington in time for discussion at a full cabinet meeting in London tomorrow.

Late Bulletin

To Stop Bus Service

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—The Nassau Bus Lines, Inc., was granted permission by the Public Service Commission today to discontinue bus service in the city of Long Beach.

At the same time, the commission authorized the municipality to take over the service in the city. The PSC stipulated that the change must be made by Sept. 30.

The city was authorized to rent seven buses from the Nassau Bus Lines at a daily rental of $7.50 per bus.

The company had sought permission to abandon service in Long Beach because, it said, it had suffered an operating loss of $2,900 there in the first seven months of 1951.

McKeon Resigns, To Name Fireman, New Patrolman

The Board of Fire Commissioners last night accepted the resignation of Fireman George McKeon, 23 Liberty street, who has served on the department since Jan. 1, 1948.

An appointment to fill the vacancy is expected to be made by the board within the next several days.

Fireman McKeon, who served at central fire station, has accepted a position in the honing department of Electrol Inc., and is scheduled to start there Oct. 1. He was employed by the firm before entering the armed forces in World War 2.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has forwarded to the board an eligibility list bearing the names of the following three men and their percentages: Fred H. Blankschen, 25 Lindsley avenue, 90.6; Herbert H. McElrath, 12 Brown avenue, 90.2, and Walter H. Miller, 112 Farrelly street, 89.4.

The eligibility list for patrolman also submitted to the police board for the filing of a vacancy caused by the termination of a leave of absence granted former Detective William Krom is: Philip McGowan, 21 Presidents Place, 90; Douglas V. Eckert, 78 Hunter street, 88, and George W. Dohnken, 47 Hone street, 82.4 per cent.

Jail Sentence Is Suspended in Fur Coat Thefts

Allan Hudson, 23, Ellenville, who entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry to the Montgomery Ward Company store in December 1949 when a number of fur coats and other articles were taken, was sentenced to a year in the county jail today by Judge John M. Cashin and execution of sentence was suspended during good behavior. He was placed on probation. Hudson had entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry. Burglary and grand larceny counts in the indictment were dismissed on motion of Charles Gaffney, who appeared as counsel.

When sentence was moved by Assistant District Attorney Vincent G. Connelly, Gaffney asked that the court show lenience because of the prior good record of the defendant. He described the whole affair as a "foolish prank." In view of his good record and his record in the armed forces, Judge Cashin suspended execution of sentence, saying that the complainant had expressed a desire that the case be treated with leniency. Restitution had been made and Hudson was of assistance in seeing that the merchandise was recovered.

Two other criminal cases were held in readiness for disposition by trial when the civil case, now on trial is concluded. Witnesses were directed to remain in court.

Allies Damage 14 Communist Planes

UN Command Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 26 (AP)—Allied pilots today destroyed or damaged 14 Communist planes over northwest Korea in history's greatest day of all-jet battles.

There were 256 jets in action. The number dwarfed all previous jet actions for a single day.

Seventy-seven allied jets tangled with 120 Russian-type MIGs in a roaring duel Wednesday morning over northwest Korea's MIG Alley. It was the biggest single jet fight of all time.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said its pilots probably destroyed one Red jet and damaged four. It said no allied planes were lost.

Then 24 American Thunderjets swooshed back into MIG Alley in the afternoon and clashed with 35 MIGs.

Car and Driver in Route 28 Mishap

Domingo Rivera, 42, of 502 West 161st street, New York city, a counterman at the Stanley Cafeteria on lower Broadway, New York city, encountered cream in a different form than that served in the restaurant yesterday as he was driving down the Onteora Trail near the Sunset Theatre. Rivera reported to the sheriff that he was proceding south and had entered the curve when his 1941 Buick car, traveling between 40 and 50 miles an hour, struck one of the spots where a can of cream had spilled from a truck earlier in the day. As a result he lost control and the car left the highway and overturned. The body and front end was damaged to the extent of about $500 he told Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro who investigated. (Freeman Photo)

Greene County Grand Jury Indicts Mrs. Bertha Bangs

A Greene county grand jury today handed up an indictment against Mrs. Bertha Bangs, 58, of Kingston, who was arrested last July 8 by Trooper Charles Crommie of the Windham state police sub-station on an assault charge, the Greene county district attorney's office reported this morning.

Mrs. Bangs' address was listed as Jewett at the time of her arrest, but the trooper said the address on her permit to carry a revolver, was given as "off North Manor avenue, Kingston." She has the summer place at Jewett, he said.

Trooper Crommie said Mrs. Bangs was arrested after firing a shot from a Smith & Wesson revolver into a car driven by the wife of Attorney James H. Hyer, of Athens. Mrs. Hyer was driving over a road in Jewett to the Hyers' summer home, the trooper said.

Says Shot Was Fired

Mrs. Hyer told the trooper, he said, that when she was a short distance from the house she stopped the car because there was a dog in the road. She said she sounded the horn and then a shot was fired into the car from a distance of about 15 feet to the right front of the car.

The bullet, the trooper said, pierced the front of the car, went through the grill and lodged in the radiator.

According to the trooper, Mrs. Hyer said that Mrs. Bangs then came toward the car brandishing the revolver and a stick. Mrs. Hyer, he said, told the woman to get out of the way. She started the car and went to the summer home from where she notified the trooper.

Returning With Children

Mrs. Hyer, Crommie said, told him that she was returning from North Lake where she had picked up eight children ranging in age from 10 months to 19 years, and was driving them to the summer home.

Mrs. Bangs was arraigned before Peace Justice Joseph Thiel, of Hunter, and later was released on property bond of $5,000 fixed by Greene County Judge Paul Fromer pending grand jury action.

Trooper Crommie said there had been "friction between the two families" growing out of "differences over property lines." The Hyer and Bangs properties, he said, are about a quarter of a mile apart.

Cars in Collision At Hurley Curve

Two cars were considerably damaged in a collision Tuesday afternoon on the turn in Hurley village at the Reformed Church, according to the sheriff's department.

The autos involved belonged to Terwilliger Brothers, a Kerhonkson firm, and Earl S. Lutz of Sellersville, Pa., it was reported by Deputy Carl Cline.

Siah O. Terwilliger, 62, was the driver of the Kerhonkson car, and Verna Lutz, 44, was operating the other.

Damage to the Lutz car was estimated at $100, and that to the Terwilliger vehicle at $250.

Mrs. Lutz, according to a report, was proceeding toward Kingston and did not realize the sharpness of the curve. She said her car skidded on the wet pavement, when she applied her brake, and struck the Terwilliger car.

Both autos were damaged on the left side.

Held for Burglary

Arthur Lee Williams of 56 Meadow street was arrested at police headquarters by Sgt. Lemuel Howard at 1:30 p. m. yesterday on a charge of third degree burglary. Police said the arrest followed investigation of the theft of two wrist watches from 20 Ann street earlier this month. Mrs. Wilbur Delanoy reported the thefts and said entrance was apparently gained through a rear window of the house. Williams' case was adjourned until Sept. 28 when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

20 Persons Killed In European Wreck

Vienna, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Vienna-Rome express crashed into a stationary freight early today, killing 20 persons and injuring 10 seriously. About 30 others were slightly injured.

The dead were believed to be members of an Italian railwayman's organization who had been vacationing in Vienna.

Reports from the scene said the crowded express was traveling about 30 miles an hour in foggy weather through the yards at Langenwang when it hit the standing freight. The engine of the express was thrown 300 feet. The service car behind it was shoved backward onto the roof of the death car.

3. Two witnesses said that at Ruppell's request they met with Michael (Mikey Dee) Dalessio, alleged Staten Island bookmaking boss, to discuss matters concerning Republican nominations or applications for bar and grill licenses.

4. An application for a liquor store license and the lawyer for a second applicant said both failed to obtain licenses after refusal to pay Ruppell as the latter allegedly had suggested.

5. A barber told the commission that Ruppell was an accomplice to an effort to make him pay $1,200 to obtain a job as state barber inspector.

6. Six present and former Republican-appointed and elected job-holders testified they made "contributions" totalling $5,570 during the past two years to Ruppell and Peter B. Spinelli. The latter is secretary of the Richmond county Republican organization and assistant prosecutor named by Democratic District Attorney Herman Methfessel.

Case Is Postponed

In another court room, a perjury case against Mrs. Anna Wentworth was postponed to Oct. 15. Methfessel had her arrested after she testified before the Crime Commission that she had seen Methfessel—then an assistant district attorney—at the Dalessio home while roulette was being played.

The housewife's lawyer, David Cohen, said he would lodge charges against Methfessel, and assistant district attorney and two detectives who arrested the woman. Cohen said he would charge them with conspiracy to delay Mrs. Wentworth's appearance in court and with denying her the right of counsel.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, saying Methfessel abused his power in causing the arrest, has superseded him in all matters related to the crime probe. William B. Herlands, a veteran crime prober, was named to handle these matters.

After the testimony by jobholders that they had made payment, present and former treasurers of the Republican County Committee testified there was no record of such payments having been received by the committee.

Recognized Number

Lucking, the war veteran and a former Staten Island resident, testified that in his presence Runnell called a telephone number which Lucking recognized as the home telephone of Gatz to confirm that Lucking's liquor license would be issued promptly. Lucking said he received the license the next day.

Gatz, the day's last witness, declared:

"I have never received a five-cent piece for anything I ever did at the State Liquor Authority. At no time and at no place did I ever indicate that money was needed to obtain a license.

"I will not deny that Edward Ruppell called me at my house in reference to Lucking. He called me about many things."

Gatz was deputy commissioner of the authority in 1945 when the money allegedly was paid.

Gatz admitted he had Ruppell's endorsement when he got his first job with the Liquor Authority.

It was this lack of standards which brought the first protests from newspaper executives.

'Further Suppression"

Alexander F. Jones, executive editor of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald-Journal and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE), commented:

"Any time you give a government department head authority to classify material as top secret on a security basis you are placing a potent weapon in his hands. The result, inevitably, is further suppression of the news."

James S. Pope, managing editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and chairman of the ASNE's Committee on Freedom of Information, called the order "ill advised and poorly executed." In a statement issued in San Francisco, Pope declared the committee has no desire to interfere with military security, but he added:

"We do not believe that the President's order will protect security as much as it will smother legitimate information about the operation of government."

Truman Denies Censorship

In a statement accompanying the order, Mr. Truman said it contains "no element of censorship, direct or implied."

"It is my hope that the practical effect of these regulations will be to make more, rather than less, information about the government available to the people," the President said. "This should result from the segregation of security information from non-security information."

Senator Case (R.-S.D.), meanwhile, urged Washington newsmen to report to him any examples of news suppression by federal officials. Case, a former editor and publisher, said in a letter to congressional press and radio galleries:

"If the evidence develops to show that suppression is becoming dangerous and widespread, some further, more formal action by the Congress may be necessary * * *."

Attlee Will . . .

Toughness Is Asked

Newspapers called for a get-tough-with-Iran policy. Mossadegh's expulsion order was made after Britain rebuffed a new bid to reopen talks on the oil company's future.

British government leaders have hinted they might order the use of force to keep the technicians at Abadan.

The foreign office spokesman declined to amplify on what Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador in Iran, meant about possible "consequences" of the expulsion order.

If Britain takes a most forceful line toward Iran it would pose grave international problems for all the North Atlantic Pact allies.

Iran has a mutual defense treaty with Russia, signed in 1921, that entitles Russia to send troops into Iran if Iran is invaded. This must be taken into account in the reckoning on whether force should be used at Abadan.

Amounts to Expropriation

Britain contends Iran's oil nationalization amounts to expropriation of British property and that the expulsion of personnel would violate a recent recommendation of the international court of justice at The Hague.

The court held that neither Iran nor Britain should "aggravate or extend" their dispute and that "no measure of any kind" should be taken to hinder the oil operations.

Iran refused to accept the court's opinion. Britain closed down the oil operations some time ago when storages were filled. British tanker ships were called out of service last summer during a dispute over who owned the oil from the refinery —Iran or the British.

Britain hoped to have some sort of reaction from the White House in Washington in time for discussion at a full cabinet meeting in London tomorrow.

To Stop Bus Service

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—The Nassau Bus Lines, Inc., was granted permission by the Public Service Commission today to discontinue bus service in the city of Long Beach.

At the same time, the commission authorized the municipality to take over the service in the city. The PSC stipulated that the change must be made by Sept. 30.

The city was authorized to rent seven buses from the Nassau Bus Lines at a daily rental of $7.50 per bus.

The company had sought permission to abandon service in Long Beach because, it said, it had suffered an operating loss of $2,900 there in the first seven months of 1951.

McKeon Resigns, To Name Fireman, New Patrolman

The Board of Fire Commissioners last night accepted the resignation of Fireman George McKeon, 23 Liberty street, who has served on the department since Jan. 1, 1948.

An appointment to fill the vacancy is expected to be made by the board within the next several days.

Fireman McKeon, who served at central fire station, has accepted a position in the honing department of Electrol Inc., and is scheduled to start there Oct. 1. He was employed by the firm before entering the armed forces in World War 2.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has forwarded to the board an eligibility list bearing the names of the following three men and their percentages: Fred H. Blankschen, 25 Lindsley avenue, 90.6; Herbert H. McElrath, 12 Brown avenue, 90.2, and Walter H. Miller, 112 Farrelly street, 89.4.

The eligibility list for patrolman also submitted to the police board for the filing of a vacancy caused by the termination of a leave of absence granted former Detective William Krom is: Philip McGowan, 21 Presidents Place, 90; Douglas V. Eckert, 78 Hunter street, 88, and George W. Dohnken, 47 Hone street, 82.4 per cent.

Jail Sentence Is Suspended in Fur Coat Thefts

Allan Hudson, 23, Ellenville, who entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry to the Montgomery Ward Company store in December 1949 when a number of fur coats and other articles were taken, was sentenced to a year in the county jail today by Judge John M. Cashin and execution of sentence was suspended during good behavior. He was placed on probation. Hudson had entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry. Burglary and grand larceny counts in the indictment were dismissed on motion of Charles Gaffney, who appeared as counsel.

When sentence was moved by Assistant District Attorney Vincent G. Connelly, Gaffney asked that the court show lenience because of the prior good record of the defendant. He described the whole affair as a "foolish prank." In view of his good record and his record in the armed forces, Judge Cashin suspended execution of sentence, saying that the complainant had expressed a desire that the case be treated with leniency. Restitution had been made and Hudson was of assistance in seeing that the merchandise was recovered.

Two other criminal cases were held in readiness for disposition by trial when the civil case, now on trial is concluded. Witnesses were directed to remain in court.

Allies Damage 14 Communist Planes

UN Command Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 26 (AP)—Allied pilots today destroyed or damaged 14 Communist planes over northwest Korea in history's greatest day of all-jet battles.

There were 256 jets in action. The number dwarfed all previous jet actions for a single day.

Seventy-seven allied jets tangled with 120 Russian-type MIGs in a roaring duel Wednesday morning over northwest Korea's MIG Alley. It was the biggest single jet fight of all time.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said its pilots probably destroyed one Red jet and damaged four. It said no allied planes were lost.

Then 24 American Thunderjets swooshed back into MIG Alley in the afternoon and clashed with 35 MIGs.

Car and Driver in Route 28 Mishap

Domingo Rivera, 42, of 502 West 161st street, New York city, a counterman at the Stanley Cafeteria on lower Broadway, New York city, encountered cream in a different form than that served in the restaurant yesterday as he was driving down the Onteora Trail near the Sunset Theatre. Rivera reported to the sheriff that he was proceding south and had entered the curve when his 1941 Buick car, traveling between 40 and 50 miles an hour, struck one of the spots where a can of cream had spilled from a truck earlier in the day. As a result he lost control and the car left the highway and overturned. The body and front end was damaged to the extent of about $500 he told Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro who investigated. (Freeman Photo)

Greene County Grand Jury Indicts Mrs. Bertha Bangs

A Greene county grand jury today handed up an indictment against Mrs. Bertha Bangs, 58, of Kingston, who was arrested last July 8 by Trooper Charles Crommie of the Windham state police sub-station on an assault charge, the Greene county district attorney's office reported this morning.

Mrs. Bangs' address was listed as Jewett at the time of her arrest, but the trooper said the address on her permit to carry a revolver, was given as "off North Manor avenue, Kingston." She has the summer place at Jewett, he said.

Trooper Crommie said Mrs. Bangs was arrested after firing a shot from a Smith & Wesson revolver into a car driven by the wife of Attorney James H. Hyer, of Athens. Mrs. Hyer was driving over a road in Jewett to the Hyers' summer home, the trooper said.

Says Shot Was Fired

Mrs. Hyer told the trooper, he said, that when she was a short distance from the house she stopped the car because there was a dog in the road. She said she sounded the horn and then a shot was fired into the car from a distance of about 15 feet to the right front of the car.

The bullet, the trooper said, pierced the front of the car, went through the grill and lodged in the radiator.

According to the trooper, Mrs. Hyer said that Mrs. Bangs then came toward the car brandishing the revolver and a stick. Mrs. Hyer, he said, told the woman to get out of the way. She started the car and went to the summer home from where she notified the trooper.

Returning With Children

Mrs. Hyer, Crommie said, told him that she was returning from North Lake where she had picked up eight children ranging in age from 10 months to 19 years, and was driving them to the summer home.

Mrs. Bangs was arraigned before Peace Justice Joseph Thiel, of Hunter, and later was released on property bond of $5,000 fixed by Greene County Judge Paul Fromer pending grand jury action.

Trooper Crommie said there had been "friction between the two families" growing out of "differences over property lines." The Hyer and Bangs properties, he said, are about a quarter of a mile apart.

Cars in Collision At Hurley Curve

Two cars were considerably damaged in a collision Tuesday afternoon on the turn in Hurley village at the Reformed Church, according to the sheriff's department.

The autos involved belonged to Terwilliger Brothers, a Kerhonkson firm, and Earl S. Lutz of Sellersville, Pa., it was reported by Deputy Carl Cline.

Siah O. Terwilliger, 62, was the driver of the Kerhonkson car, and Verna Lutz, 44, was operating the other.

Damage to the Lutz car was estimated at $100, and that to the Terwilliger vehicle at $250.

Mrs. Lutz, according to a report, was proceeding toward Kingston and did not realize the sharpness of the curve. She said her car skidded on the wet pavement, when she applied her brake, and struck the Terwilliger car.

Both autos were damaged on the left side.

Held for Burglary

Arthur Lee Williams of 56 Meadow street was arrested at police headquarters by Sgt. Lemuel Howard at 1:30 p. m. yesterday on a charge of third degree burglary. Police said the arrest followed investigation of the theft of two wrist watches from 20 Ann street earlier this month. Mrs. Wilbur Delanoy reported the thefts and said entrance was apparently gained through a rear window of the house. Williams' case was adjourned until Sept. 28 when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

20 Persons Killed In European Wreck

Vienna, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Vienna-Rome express crashed into a stationary freight early today, killing 20 persons and injuring 10 seriously. About 30 others were slightly injured.

The dead were believed to be members of an Italian railwayman's organization who had been vacationing in Vienna.

Reports from the scene said the crowded express was traveling about 30 miles an hour in foggy weather through the yards at Langenwang when it hit the standing freight. The engine of the express was thrown 300 feet. The service car behind it was shoved backward onto the roof of the death car.

size from Staten Island waters.

3. Two witnesses said that at Ruppell's request they met with Michael (Mikey Dee) Dalessio, alleged Staten Island bookmaking boss, to discuss matters concerning Republican nominations or applications for bar and grill licenses.

4. An application for a liquor store license and the lawyer for a second applicant said both failed to obtain licenses after refusal to pay Ruppell as the latter allegedly had suggested.

5. A barber told the commission that Ruppell was an accomplice to an effort to make him pay $1,200 to obtain a job as state barber inspector.

6. Six present and former Republican-appointed and elected job-holders testified they made "contributions" totalling $5,570 during the past two years to Ruppell and Peter B. Spinelli. The latter is secretary of the Richmond county Republican organization and assistant prosecutor named by Democratic District Attorney Herman Methfessel.

Case Is Postponed

In another court room, a perjury case against Mrs. Anna Wentworth was postponed to Oct. 15. Methfessel had her arrested after she testified before the Crime Commission that she had seen Methfessel—then an assistant district attorney—at the Dalessio home while roulette was being played.

The housewife's lawyer, David Cohen, said he would lodge charges against Methfessel, and assistant district attorney and two detectives who arrested the woman. Cohen said he would charge them with conspiracy to delay Mrs. Wentworth's appearance in court and with denying her the right of counsel.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, saying Methfessel abused his power in causing the arrest, has superseded him in all matters related to the crime probe. William B. Herlands, a veteran crime prober, was named to handle these matters.

After the testimony by jobholders that they had made payment, present and former treasurers of the Republican County Committee testified there was no record of such payments having been received by the committee.

Recognized Number

Lucking, the war veteran and a former Staten Island resident, testified that in his presence Ruppell called a telephone number which Lucking recognized as the home telephone of Gatz to confirm that Lucking's liquor license would be issued promptly. Lucking said he received the license the next day.

Gatz, the day's last witness, declared:

"I have never received a five-cent piece for anything I ever did at the State Liquor Authority. At no time and at no place did I ever indicate that money was needed to obtain a license.

"I will not deny that Edward Ruppell called me at my house in reference to Lucking. He called me about many things."

Gatz was deputy commissioner of the authority in 1945 when the money allegedly was paid.

Gatz admitted he had Ruppell's endorsement when he got his first job with the Liquor Authority.

Security Curbs

formation" and give it one of four additional labels: Top secret, secret, confidential, or restricted.

The order makes no attempt to define what information should be classified—it leaves that to heads of the various government agencies.

It was this lack of standards which brought the first protests from newspaper executives.

'Further Suppression"

Alexander F. Jones, executive editor of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald-Journal and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE), commented:

"Any time you give a government department head authority to classify material as top secret on a security basis you are placing a potent weapon in his hands. The result, inevitably, is further suppression of the news."

James S. Pope, managing editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and chairman of the ASNE's Committee on Freedom of Information, called the order "ill advised and poorly executed." In a statement issued in San Francisco, Pope declared the committee has no desire to interfere with military security, but he added:

"We do not believe that the President's order will protect security as much as it will smother legitimate information about the operation of government."

Truman Denies Censorship

In a statement accompanying the order, Mr. Truman said it contains "no element of censorship, direct or implied."

"It is my hope that the practical effect of these regulations will be to make more, rather than less, information about the government available to the people," the President said. "This should result from the segregation of security information from non-security information."

Senator Case (R.-S.D.), meanwhile, urged Washington newsmen to report to him any examples of news suppression by federal officials. Case, a former editor and publisher, said in a letter to congressional press and radio galleries:

"If the evidence develops to show that suppression is becoming dangerous and widespread, some further, more formal action by the Congress may be necessary * * *."

Attlee Will . . .

Toughness Is Asked

Newspapers called for a get-tough-with-Iran policy. Mossadegh's expulsion order was made after Britain rebuffed a new bid to reopen talks on the oil company's future.

British government leaders have hinted they might order the use of force to keep the technicians at Abadan.

The foreign office spokesman declined to amplify on what Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador in Iran, meant about possible "consequences" of the expulsion order.

If Britain takes a most forceful line toward Iran it would pose grave international problems for all the North Atlantic Pact allies.

Iran has a mutual defense treaty with Russia, signed in 1921, that entitles Russia to send troops into Iran if Iran is invaded. This must be taken into account in the reckoning on whether force should be used at Abadan.

Amounts to Expropriation

Britain contends Iran's oil nationalization amounts to expropriation of British property and that the expulsion of personnel would violate a recent recommendation of the international court of justice at The Hague.

The court held that neither Iran nor Britain should "aggravate or extend" their dispute and that "no measure of any kind" should be taken to hinder the oil operations.

Iran refused to accept the court's opinion. Britain closed down the oil operations some time ago when storages were filled. British tanker ships were called out of service last summer during a dispute over who owned the oil from the refinery —Iran or the British.

Britain hoped to have some sort of reaction from the White House in Washington in time for discussion at a full cabinet meeting in London tomorrow.

To Stop Bus Service

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—The Nassau Bus Lines, Inc., was granted permission by the Public Service Commission today to discontinue bus service in the city of Long Beach.

At the same time, the commission authorized the municipality to take over the service in the city. The PSC stipulated that the change must be made by Sept. 30.

The city was authorized to rent seven buses from the Nassau Bus Lines at a daily rental of $7.50 per bus.

The company had sought permission to abandon service in Long Beach because, it said, it had suffered an operating loss of $2,900 there in the first seven months of 1951.

McKeon Resigns, To Name Fireman, New Patrolman

The Board of Fire Commissioners last night accepted the resignation of Fireman George McKeon, 23 Liberty street, who has served on the department since Jan. 1, 1948.

An appointment to fill the vacancy is expected to be made by the board within the next several days.

Fireman McKeon, who served at central fire station, has accepted a position in the honing department of Electrol Inc., and is scheduled to start there Oct. 1. He was employed by the firm before entering the armed forces in World War 2.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has forwarded to the board an eligibility list bearing the names of the following three men and their percentages: Fred H. Blankschen, 25 Lindsley avenue, 90.6; Herbert H. McElrath, 12 Brown avenue, 90.2, and Walter H. Miller, 112 Farrelly street, 89.4.

Jail Sentence Is Suspended in Fur Coat Thefts

Allan Hudson, 23, Ellenville, who entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry to the Montgomery Ward Company store in December 1949 when a number of fur coats and other articles were taken, was sentenced to a year in the county jail today by Judge John M. Cashin and execution of sentence was suspended during good behavior. He was placed on probation. Hudson had entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry. Burglary and grand larceny counts in the indictment were dismissed on motion of Charles Gaffney, who appeared as counsel.

When sentence was moved by Assistant District Attorney Vincent G. Connelly, Gaffney asked that the court show lenience because of the prior good record of the defendant. He described the whole affair as a "foolish prank." In view of his good record and his record in the armed forces, Judge Cashin suspended execution of sentence, saying that the complainant had expressed a desire that the case be treated with leniency. Restitution had been made and Hudson was of assistance in seeing that the merchandise was recovered.

Two other criminal cases were held in readiness for disposition by trial when the civil case, now on trial is concluded. Witnesses were directed to remain in court.

Allies Damage 14 Communist Planes

UN Command Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 26 (AP)—Allied pilots today destroyed or damaged 14 Communist planes over northwest Korea in history's greatest day of all-jet battles.

There were 256 jets in action. The number dwarfed all previous jet actions for a single day.

Seventy-seven allied jets tangled with 120 Russian-type MIGs in a roaring duel Wednesday morning over northwest Korea's MIG Alley. It was the biggest single jet fight of all time.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said its pilots probably destroyed one Red jet and damaged four. It said no allied planes were lost.

Then 24 American Thunderjets swooshed back into MIG Alley in the afternoon and clashed with 35 MIGs.

So why delay? Why not decide now to take FERRIZAN for 30 days and see for yourself just how wonderful FERRIZAN can make you feel. Costs you only a few cents a day. Money refunded if not completely satisfied, says United Cut Rate Pharmacy.

"How many canastas do you need to go out in two-handed Canasta?" asks a Chicago correspondent. "I've heard a lot of other things about this game, but the number of canastas seems always to be left out."

The game is played in two or three different forms and the number of canastas you need to meld out varies in these different forms. Maybe that's why this point hasn't been discussed for a time.

In the most widely played type of two-handed canasta you need two canastas to meld out. In this game, you draw two cards from the stockpile at a time instead of the normal one card. You discard only one card, so that your hand increases by one card at each turn (unless you happen to take the discard pile instead).

In the early days of canasta you were allowed to draw only one card at a time. Some people followed the rule that you need only one canasta to go out. These games developed into a race to meld out. Other players followed the rule that you need two canastas to go out. In these games, one player usually took the first discard pile and controlled the pile from then on while his opponent just sat and suffered.

There are even some people who insist on three canastas before you can meld out. (This is, of course, in the game in which you draw two cards at a time from the stock pile). You have to be very economical with your wild cards in this game since if you use too many for your first canasta you may never be able to complete a second or a third canasta. A good player will very seldom use three wild cards in a canasta, and he'll struggle before he uses even two.

So there you are. It's possible to play two-handed canasta in a variety of ways. Pick the game that you like, and play it that way until you feel like changing. I recommend the game in which you need two canastas and in which you draw two cards at a time from the stock pile. That's the "official" game, and in my opinion it yields the most lasting satisfaction.

Blind 'Justice'

St. Louis (AP)—Justice has always been described as blind. And Laverne Crawford is willing to concede that fact, although not in the usual sense. Crawford, a truck driver, was a witness to a shooting here recently. But since he can't raise enough money for bond, he is being held in jail as a material witness. It may be six months before the case is completed. The accused slayer, meanwhile, is out of jail—free under $15,000 bond.

She goes to bed five minutes earlier. She hangs up her skirt. Then she suddenly scurries over to the chair where she's flung her other clothing and arranges it neatly, shoes, underwear, T-shirt. Then she jumps into bed and calls her mother.

It's been a long day and her mother, who is tired, says, "Did you hang up your skirt? Don't forget to do it tomorrow night. A big girl like you should be ashamed to have to have her mother on her heels every minute . . . ."

She is a normal child. She can take it. But it would have been wiser for her mother to have said, "What a tidy room! And the shoes and underwear, too! What a good child to surprise her mother like this."

It would have been wiser because her desire for her mother's approval is her mother's most dependable instrument for training. It is her control lever. It should be kept well oiled.

When a child alters her behavior to conform to our ideas of what it ought to be, we should never take that alteration for granted. The eight-year-old who has hung up her skirt is not at all convinced that the closet is a better place for it than her floor.

Her mother's promotion talk on orderliness is as meaningless to her as a talk on relativity would be to us. She has tidied up her room for one reason only—to please her mother. Professional workers with children will tell you how vital it is to note a change in conduct that is inspired by the desire to please a trusted adult. It is a little climax in the relationship between the adult and the child. If the desire to please is not fed with support and appreciation, it can die of hunger.

If we are going to force changes of behavior on children—and sometimes we have to—we can't just sit back with a sigh of relief when the change has been made. The child has surrendered her will to us. Our failure to give praise in exchange is often the reason that we find the skirt back on the floor at the end of the week.

If we are housekeepers first, we will be pleased that the skirt is where it belongs. If we are mothers first, we will be pleased with the effort that the small person has made to adjust herself to a requirement she doesn't really believe in.

This is evidence of trust that we dare not take lightly. We are going to need that trust for some time. If we don't nourish it by showing our appreciation for changes in conduct, the day may come when our appeal for a change may be rejected.

It is a little climax in the relationship between the adult and the child. If the desire to please is not fed with support and appreciation, it can die of hunger.

If we are going to force changes of behavior on children—and sometimes we have to—we can't just sit back with a sigh of relief when the change has been made. The child has surrendered her will to us. Our failure to give praise in exchange is often the reason that we find the skirt back on the floor at the end of the week.

If we are housekeepers first, we will be pleased that the skirt is where it belongs. If we are mothers first, we will be pleased with the effort that the small person has made to adjust herself to a requirement she doesn't really believe in.

This is evidence of trust that we dare not take lightly. We are going to need that trust for some time. If we don't nourish it by showing our appreciation for changes in conduct, the day may come when our appeal for a change may be rejected.

Jacoby on Canasta

Follow Rules for More Fun

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"How many canastas do you need to go out in two-handed Canasta?" asks a Chicago correspondent. "I've heard a lot of other things about this game, but the number of canastas seems always to be left out."

The game is played in two or three different forms and the number of canastas you need to meld out varies in these different forms. Maybe that's why this point hasn't been discussed for a time.

In the most widely played type of two-handed canasta you need two canastas to meld out. In this game, you draw two cards from the stockpile at a time instead of the normal one card. You discard only one card, so that your hand increases by one card at each turn (unless you happen to take the discard pile instead).

In the early days of canasta you were allowed to draw only one card at a time. Some people followed the rule that you need only one canasta to go out. These games developed into a race to meld out. Other players followed the rule that you need two canastas to go out. In these games, one player usually took the first discard pile and controlled the pile from then on while his opponent just sat and suffered.

There are even some people who insist on three canastas before you can meld out. (This is, of course, in the game in which you draw two cards at a time from the stock pile). You have to be very economical with your wild cards in this game since if you use too many for your first canasta you may never be able to complete a second or a third canasta. A good player will very seldom use three wild cards in a canasta, and he'll struggle before he uses even two.

So there you are. It's possible to play two-handed canasta in a variety of ways. Pick the game that you like, and play it that way until you feel like changing. I recommend the game in which you need two canastas and in which you draw two cards at a time from the stock pile. That's the "official" game, and in my opinion it yields the most lasting satisfaction.

Blind 'Justice'

St. Louis (AP)—Justice has always been described as blind. And Laverne Crawford is willing to concede that fact, although not in the usual sense. Crawford, a truck driver, was a witness to a shooting here recently. But since he can't raise enough money for bond, he is being held in jail as a material witness. It may be six months before the case is completed. The accused slayer, meanwhile, is out of jail—free under $15,000 bond.

The Mature Parent

Don't Short-Change Your Children on Appreciation

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

She likes to look nice if it can be arranged without any personal inconvenience to her. So far as she is concerned, a plaid skirt is a plaid skirt, whether it is wrinkled or unwrinkled. As it is simpler to leave it on the floor at night than to hang it in her closet, she leaves it on the floor. She is eight years old.

Her mother says, "If you haven't the time to hang up your skirt when you go to bed, we'll have to make the time. We'll just start going to bed five minutes earlier."

She goes to bed five minutes earlier. She hangs up her skirt. Then she suddenly scurries over to the chair where she's flung her other clothing and arranges it neatly, shoes, underwear, T-shirt. Then she jumps into bed and calls her mother.

It's been a long day and her mother, who is tired, says, "Did you hang up your skirt? Don't forget to do it tomorrow night. A big girl like you should be ashamed to have to have her mother on her heels every minute . . . . "

She is a normal child. She can take it. But it would have been wiser for her mother to have said, "What a tidy room! And the shoes and underwear, too! What a good child to surprise her mother like this."

It would have been wiser because her desire for her mother's approval is her mother's most dependable instrument for training. It is her control lever. It should be kept well oiled.

When a child alters her behavior to conform to our ideas of what it ought to be, we should never take that alteration for granted. The eight-year-old who has hung up her skirt is not at all convinced that the closet is a better place for it than her floor.

Her mother's promotion talk on orderliness is as meaningless to her as a talk on relativity would be to us. She has tidied up her room for one reason only—to please her mother. She has deferred to her parent's judgment because her parent's approval is more important to her than her own convenience.

DESIRE TO PLEASE CAN DIE OF HUNGER

If we wish to reinforce our control of youngsters, we'd better not short-change them on appreciation when they submit themselves to our control.

Professional workers with children will tell you how vital it is to note a change in conduct that is inspired by the desire to please a trusted adult. It is a little climax in the relationship between the adult and the child. If the desire to please is not fed with support and appreciation, it can die of hunger.

If we are going to force changes of behavior on children—and sometimes we have to—we can't just sit back with a sigh of relief when the change has been made. The child has surrendered her will to us. Our failure to give praise in exchange is often the reason that we find the skirt back on the floor at the end of the week.

If we are housekeepers first, we will be pleased that the skirt is where it belongs. If we are mothers first, we will be pleased with the effort that the small person has made to adjust herself to a requirement she doesn't really believe in.

This is evidence of trust that we dare not take lightly. We are going to need that trust for some time. If we don't nourish it by showing our appreciation for changes in conduct, the day may come when our appeal for a change may be rejected.

Kingston High Plays Home Opener Against Highland High on Friday

Maroon Squad in Top Shape for Game; Highland Seeks First Points Since '46

Never a pushover, although it hasn't scored a point against the Maroon since 1946, little Highland High resumes its role of Little David against the Kingston football Goliath, Friday night at municipal stadium.

The Maroon's home opener is scheduled for 8 p. m.

Two of the five games since 1946, when the Highlanders humiliated Coach Bill Burke and Kingston on his return to the village, 26-13, have ended in scoreless ties.

Kingston scored resounding victories in the other two, by scores of 31-0 and 14-0.

There is not indication that Highland will be anything but rugged and tough on Friday, in spite of the fact that it will be their seasonal opener, while the Burkemen were put through the crucible by ponderous Mont Pleasant last Saturday.

Have Seven Vets

Don Neff, who succeeded Frank LaFalce as head coach, has seven lettermen returning from the 1950 season. He lost one side of the line, his best passer and kicker, but still has enough left to cause concern in the Kingston camp.

Despite the physical beating they absorbed in Schenectady, the Maroon emerged from the game remarkably free of injuries.

Frank Fiore pulled a severe charley horse during a scrimmage early this week but is expected to be in uniform against Highland.

The rest of the squad is in good shape and eager for a crack at the southern Ulster aggregation.

Massa May Start

Coach Burke hinted that Gene Massa, the pint-sized freshman, might get a shot at a starting berth in the backfield. Massa proved an able punter against the hard charging Mont Pleasant line.

Maroon followers expect to see more backfield fireworks against Highland than the Kingston backs were able to generate against the massive Mont Pleasant forwards.

Al Carpino, a hard driving back, Pat Manfro and Frank Fiore never got a real chance to start rolling. These backs can move the pigskin as their past performance chart indicates and it will take a good club to keep them shackled.

If the Highland defense is such that Kingston has to take to the air, the Maroons will rely on the pitching arm of Jim Ferraro, who tossed for both of Kingston's scores against Mon Pleasant.

Charlie Tiano and Harry Craft give the Burkemen good protection at the ends and both made nice catches for TDs.

The least Kingston can expect Friday night is a hard, rugged ball game. The ability of little Highland to come up with a great performance against Kingston makes this one of the more intriguiing series on the KHS schedule.

Don't look for anything but trouble Friday night at the stadium. Kingston should win but only after a hard struggle.

Mamscot Wins

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mamscot defeated the favorite, True Kitty, in a 2:06 photo in the featured Sleepy Hollow Pace before 13,780 at Yonkers Raceway last night. Driven by Del Mactavish, the six-year-old gelding paid $12.00, $5.70 and $4.20. True Kitty, at 9-5, returned $3.70 and $2.70.

Eddie Eagan Resigns; Dewey Seeks Reforms

Big Shakeup Due In Pro Boxing

Col. Edward A. Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, resigned yesterday and Governor Thomas E. Dewey promptly announced the appointment of hotel man, Robert K. Christenberry of New York to succeed Eagan.

Dewey's acceptance of Eagan's resignation was interpreted in boxing circles as the signal for a vigorous reform movement in professional boxing, the Associated Press reports.

In a statement clearly aimed at the International Boxing Club's virtual monopoly in New York city boxing, the governor said that "free competition" must be maintained "in every licensed club in the state with equal opportunity for every boxer."

The governor also announced that the commission's Medical Advisory Board would be reconstituted. The medical board nominally consists of nine physicians but there are only two members now. Seven resigned and it is common knowledge that they did so largely because they would not go along with Eagan's policies.

IBC Defends Itself

Meanwhile, in New York, the International Boxing Club stoutly defended its practice today amid reports that federal agents are investigating charges the IBC is operating a monopoly.

"We know the government has quite a while talking to managers, fighters and others connected with the sport," Harry Markson, managing director of the IBC, said.

"We welcome such an investigation. We know our operations are perfectly okay. We can stand it."

Markson said the investigators had not talked with Jim Norris, president of the IBC, or any other member of the organization.

Three senators introduced resolutions last month urging an investigation of big time boxing and particularly the IBC.

The governor's action is believed to reflect a long-standing feeling in some quarters that what boxing needed in this state was a more forceful commission chairman, a man who could deal realistically with the "tough customers" who make boxing a business.

Eagan, who is 52, had had a lifetime interest in boxing. A Rhodes Scholar, he won the middleweight championship of the A.E.F. in World War 1 and in 1920 became Olympic light heavyweight champion. His term on the commission expired last Jan. 1 and he has been serving since in an interim capacity.

Dewey's Program

Asked about rumors that Eagan had been asked to resign, Governor Dewey's secretary, replied:

"He resigned. The announcement speaks for itself."

Concurrent with Eagan's resignation and the appointment of Christenberry, the governor announced the following five-point program for the boxing game in New York state.

"1. Fullest reliance must be placed on the Medical Advisory Board, as it will be reconstituted, and other scientific agencies whose research is available to the commission in order to reduce to a minimum the hazards of the sport. Rules and standards involving gloves, ring pads and doctors' practices must be modernized and made totally effective.

"2. Every avenue must be kept open so that free competition exists in every licensed club in the state, with equal opportunity for every boxer.

"3. The members and professional staff of the State Athletic Commission and their accumulated experience must be utilized to the fullest degree.

"4. All the business of professional boxing must be conducted in the open. Whenever major questions affecting the sport arise, they should be determined by full and free discussion, bearing in mind that the public has a vital interest in boxing in our state.

"5. Managers, matchmakers and promoters must be men who can stand public scrutiny. Boxing has always had a powerful influence on our youth and it must be a clean influence."

Jittery Dodgers May Be Cracking; Giant Pennant Seems in Making

Braves Deal Body Blow to Brooks

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Is the miracle about to come to pass?

Will the given-up-for-dead New York Giants actually overhaul the runaway Brooklyn Dodgers?

Has the "creeping terror" caught the jittery Brooks in its clutches? In short, are the Dodgers panic stricken?

These are some of the questions asked today by an astonished baseball world, dazed by yesterday's sudden turn of events that left the Dodgers reeling and rocking.

Manager Charlie Dressen and his Brooklyn crew saw their once overpowering 13½ game bulge over the Giants melt to a single game last night when the relaxed Braves pummelled them in a night-marish floodlighted doubleheader, 6-3 and 14-2. At the same time the relentless Giants were polishing off the Philadelphia Phils, 5-1, for the 34th triumph in their last 41 games.

Yankees In

The big doings in the National League pennant race far overshadowed the American League scramble that saw the front running New York Yankees move a step nearer the flag when both Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox were beaten. The Chicago White Sox shoved the Indians three games behind the Yanks with a 4-2 triumph while Washington dropped the Red Sox five and a half games off the pace with a 3-0 victory.

The Dodgers were depressed, but there was no hint of surrender despite their double debacle.

"We're still in front. That's all I know," said Captain Pee Wee Reese.

"We got all the bad baseball out of our system," said Dressen. "The boys aren't panicky. There's nothing we can do but go out and win four of our remaining five."

The Dodgers still have five to go, two in Boston and three in Philadelphia. The Giants have three left, one in Philadelphia and two in Boston. Any combination of four Dodger wins and/or Giant defeats would clinch the flag for Brooklyn.

The Giants still face a Herculean task and Manager Leo Durocher is well aware of it. He knows his charges cannot afford to lose another game. They are certain to face Warren Spahn, ace Boston lefthander, in one of them. Spahn yesterday whipped the Dodgers for his 22nd victory.

"I'd be foolish to predict a pennant," said Durocher. "Nobody realizes what a task we are confronted with better than I. We still have to have help to win it.

Maglie in Relief

"But let me tell you this," he added. "This is the fightingest ball club I ever managed. Everybody else gave up on us but the players themselves. They don't know what it is to quit."

Durocher yesterday made a smart managerial move that helped the Giants to victory. Starter and winner Jim Hearn lost his shutout in the seventh with a home run pitch to Willie Jones. When two singles followed with only one out, Leo derricked Hearn and summoned Sal Maglie, his ace righthander, from the bullpen.

Maglie threw a double play ball to pinch hitter Del Ennis and breezed through the eighth and ninth innings to insure Hearn's 16th win. Alvin Dark paved the way for Robin Roberts' 13th defeat, banging a triple and home run.

The Braves decided each game early. They tallied six runs in the first inning of the opener and scored another sixer in the second inning of the nightcap to put the Dodgers on the defensive right from the start. A two-run homer by Sam Jethroe and Buddy Kerr's bases-loaded double sent Ralph Branca down to defeat in the first game.

Three Dodger errors and a long single by Earl Torgeson that scored three runners, highlighted the big second game outburst at the expense of loser Carl Erskine. Jim Wilson hurled a three-hitter for the Braves, who had snapped a seven-game losing streak earlier.

Billy Pierce pitched a nine-hitter to register his fifth victory in six starts against the Indians. He started a game-ending double play after the Tribe had loaded the bases in the ninth. Orestes Minoso, former Cleveland property, homered and singled for the White Sox. It was Cleveland's fourth straight defeat.

Bob Porterfield handcuffed the Red Sox with two singles as the Senators got eight off loser Leo Kiely with Clyde Kluttz and Gil Coan driving in the runs.

Kingston High Plays Home Opener Against Highland High on Friday

Maroon Squad in Top Shape for Game; Highland Seeks First Points Since '46

Never a pushover, although it hasn't scored a point against the Maroon since 1946, little Highland High resumes its role of Little David against the Kingston football Goliath, Friday night at municipal stadium.

The Maroon's home opener is scheduled for 8 p. m.

Two of the five games since 1946, when the Highlanders humiliated Coach Bill Burke and Kingston on his return to the village, 26-13, have ended in scoreless ties.

Kingston scored resounding victories in the other two, by scores of 31-0 and 14-0.

There is not indication that Highland will be anything but rugged and tough on Friday, in spite of the fact that it will be their seasonal opener, while the Burkemen were put through the crucible by ponderous Mont Pleasant last Saturday.

Have Seven Vets

Don Neff, who succeeded Frank LaFalce as head coach, has seven lettermen returning from the 1950 season. He lost one side of the line, his best passer and kicker, but still has enough left to cause concern in the Kingston camp.

Despite the physical beating they absorbed in Schenectady, the Maroon emerged from the game remarkably free of injuries.

Frank Fiore pulled a severe charley horse during a scrimmage early this week but is expected to be in uniform against Highland.

The rest of the squad is in good shape and eager for a crack at the southern Ulster aggregation.

Massa May Start

Coach Burke hinted that Gene Massa, the pint-sized freshman, might get a shot at a starting berth in the backfield. Massa proved an able punter against the hard charging Mont Pleasant line.

Maroon followers expect to see more backfield fireworks against Highland than the Kingston backs were able to generate against the massive Mont Pleasant forwards.

Al Carpino, a hard driving back, Pat Manfro and Frank Fiore never got a real chance to start rolling. These backs can move the pigskin as their past performance chart indicates and it will take a good club to keep them shackled.

If the Highland defense is such that Kingston has to take to the air, the Maroons will rely on the pitching arm of Jim Ferraro, who tossed for both of Kingston's scores against Mon Pleasant.

Charlie Tiano and Harry Craft give the Burkemen good protection at the ends and both made nice catches for TDs.

The least Kingston can expect Friday night is a hard, rugged ball game. The ability of little Highland to come up with a great performance against Kingston makes this one of the more intriguing series on the KHS schedule.

Don't look for anything but trouble Friday night at the stadium. Kingston should win but only after a hard struggle.

Mamscot Wins

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mamscot defeated the favorite, True Kitty, in a 2:06 photo in the featured Sleepy Hollow Pace before 13,780 at Yonkers Raceway last night. Driven by Del Mactavish, the six-year-old gelding paid $12.00, $5.70 and $4.20. True Kitty, at 9-5, returned $3.70 and $2.70.

San Jose, Calif.—Eddie Chavez, 136, San Jose, outpointed Glen Flanagan, 131, St. Paul, 10.

Eddie Eagan Resigns; Dewey Seeks Reforms

Big Shakeup Due In Pro Boxing

Col. Edward A. Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, resigned yesterday and Governor Thomas E. Dewey promptly announced the appointment of hotel man, Robert K. Christenberry of New York to succeed Eagan.

Asked about rumors that Eagan had been asked to resign, Governor Dewey's secretary, replied:

"He resigned. The announcement speaks for itself."

Concurrent with Eagan's resignation and the appointment of Christenberry, the governor announced the following five-point program for the boxing game in New York state.

Maglie in Relief

"But let me tell you this," he added. "This is the fightingest ball club I ever managed. Everybody else gave up on us but the players themselves. They don't know what it is to quit."

Durocher yesterday made a smart managerial move that helped the Giants to victory. Starter and winner Jim Hearn lost his shutout in the seventh with a home run pitch to Willie Jones. When two singles followed with only one out, Leo derricked Hearn and summoned Sal Maglie, his ace righthander, from the bullpen.

Maglie threw a double play ball to pinch hitter Del Ennis and breezed through the eighth and ninth innings to insure Hearn's 16th win. Alvin Dark paved the way for Robin Roberts' 13th defeat, banging a triple and home run.

The Braves decided each game early. They tallied six runs in the first inning of the opener and scored another sixer in the second inning of the nightcap to put the Dodgers on the defensive right from the start. A two-run homer by Sam Jethroe and Buddy Kerr's bases-loaded double sent Ralph Branca down to defeat in the first game.

Three Dodger errors and a long single by Earl Torgeson that scored three runners, highlighted the big second game outburst at the expense of loser Carl Erskine. Jim Wilson hurled a three-hitter for the Braves, who had snapped a seven-game losing streak earlier.

Billy Pierce pitched a nine-hitter to register his fifth victory in six starts against the Indians. He started the game-ending double play after the Tribe had loaded the bases in the ninth. Orestes Minoso, former Cleveland property, homered and singled for the White Sox. It was Cleveland's fourth straight defeat.

Bob Porterfield handcuffed the Red Sox with two singles as the Senators got eight off loser Leo Kiely with Clyde Kluttz and Gil Coan driving in the runs.

Kingston High Plays Home Opener Against Highland High on Friday

Maroon Squad in Top Shape for Game; Highland Seeks First Points Since '46

Never a pushover, although it hasn't scored a point against the Maroon since 1946, little Highland High resumes its role of Little David against the Kingston football Goliath, Friday night at municipal stadium.

The Maroon's home opener is scheduled for 8 p. m.

Two of the five games since 1946, when the Highlanders humiliated Coach Bill Burke and Kingston on his return to the village, 26-13, have ended in scoreless ties.

Kingston scored resounding victories in the other two, by scores of 31-0 and 14-0.

There is not indication that Highland will be anything but rugged and tough on Friday, in spite of the fact that it will be their seasonal opener, while the Burkemen were put through the crucible by ponderous Mont Pleasant last Saturday.

Have Seven Vets

Don Neff, who succeeded Frank LaFalce as head coach, has seven lettermen returning from the 1950 season. He lost one side of the line, his best passer and kicker, but still has enough left to cause concern in the Kingston camp.

Despite the physical beating they absorbed in Schenectady, the Maroon emerged from the game remarkably free of injuries.

Frank Fiore pulled a severe charley horse during a scrimmage early this week but is expected to be in uniform against Highland.

The rest of the squad is in good shape and eager for a crack at the southern Ulster aggregation.

Massa May Start

Coach Burke hinted that Gene Massa, the pint-sized freshman, might get a shot at a starting berth in the backfield. Massa proved an able punter against the hard charging Mont Pleasant line.

Maroon followers expect to see more backfield fireworks against Highland than the Kingston backs were able to generate against the massive Mont Pleasant forwards.

Al Carpino, a hard driving back, Pat Manfro and Frank Fiore never got a real chance to start rolling. These backs can move the pigskin as their past performance chart indicates and it will take a good club to keep them shackled.

If the Highland defense is such that Kingston has to take to the air, the Maroons will rely on the pitching arm of Jim Ferraro, who tossed for both of Kingston's scores against Mon Pleasant.

Charlie Tiano and Harry Craft give the Burkemen good protection at the ends and both made nice catches for TDs.

The least Kingston can expect Friday night is a hard, rugged ball game. The ability of little Highland to come up with a great performance against Kingston makes this one of the more intriguiing series on the KHS schedule.

Don't look for anything but trouble Friday night at the stadium. Kingston should win but only after a hard struggle.

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—Mamscot defeated the favorite, True Kitty, in a 2:06 photo in the featured Sleepy Hollow Pace before 13,780 at Yonkers Raceway last night. Driven by Del Mactavish, the six-year-old gelding paid $12.00, $5.70 and $4.20. True Kitty, at 9-5, returned $3.70 and $2.70.

Big Shakeup Due In Pro Boxing

Col. Edward A. Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, resigned yesterday and Governor Thomas E. Dewey promptly announced the appointment of hotel man, Robert K. Christenberry of New York to succeed Eagan.

Dewey's acceptance of Eagan's resignation was interpreted in boxing circles as the signal for a vigorous reform movement in professional boxing, the Associated Press reports.

In a statement clearly aimed at the International Boxing Club's virtual monopoly in New York city boxing, the governor said that "free competition" must be maintained "in every licensed club in the state with equal opportunity for every boxer."

The governor also announced that the commission's Medical Advisory Board would be reconstituted. The medical board nominally consists of nine physicians but there are only two members now. Seven resigned and it is common knowledge that they did so largely because they would not go along with Eagan's policies.

IBC Defends Itself

Meanwhile, in New York, the International Boxing Club stoutly defended its practice today amid reports that federal agents are investigating charges the IBC is operating a monopoly.

"We know the government has quite a while talking to managers, fighters and others connected with the sport," Harry Markson, managing director of the IBC, said.

"We welcome such an investigation. We know our operations are perfectly okay. We can stand it."

Markson said the investigators had not talked with Jim Norris, president of the IBC, or any other member of the organization.

Three senators introduced resolutions last month urging an investigation of big time boxing and particularly the IBC.

The governor's action is believed to reflect a long-standing feeling in some quarters that what boxing needed in this state was a more forceful commission chairman, a man who could deal realistically with the "tough customers" who make boxing a business.

Eagan, who is 52, had had a lifetime interest in boxing. A Rhodes Scholar, he won the middleweight championship of the A.E.F. in World War 1 and in 1920 became Olympic light heavyweight champion. His term on the commission expired last Jan. 1 and he has been serving since in an interim capacity.

Dewey's Program

Asked about rumors that Eagan had been asked to resign, Governor Dewey's secretary, replied:

"He resigned. The announcement speaks for itself."

Concurrent with Eagan's resignation and the appointment of Christenberry, the governor announced the following five-point program for the boxing game in New York state.

"1. Fullest reliance must be placed on the Medical Advisory Board, as it will be reconstituted, and other scientific agencies whose research is available to the commission in order to reduce to a minimum the hazards of the sport. Rules and standards involving gloves, ring pads and doctors' practices must be modernized and made totally effective.

"2. Every avenue must be kept open so that free competition exists in every licensed club in the state, with equal opportunity for every boxer.

"3. The members and professional staff of the State Athletic Commission and their accumulated experience must be utilized to the fullest degree.

"4. All the business of professional boxing must be conducted in the open. Whenever major questions affecting the sport arise, they should be determined by full and free discussion, bearing in mind that the public has a vital interest in boxing in our state.

"5. Managers, matchmakers and promoters must be men who can stand public scrutiny. Boxing has always had a powerful influence on our youth and it must be a clean influence."

Jittery Dodgers May Be Cracking; Giant Pennant Seems in Making

Braves Deal Body Blow to Brooks

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Is the miracle about to come to pass?

Will the given-up-for-dead New York Giants actually overhaul the runaway Brooklyn Dodgers?

Has the "creeping terror" caught the jittery Brooks in its clutches? In short, are the Dodgers panic stricken?

These are some of the questions asked today by an astonished baseball world, dazed by yesterday's sudden turn of events that left the Dodgers reeling and rocking.

Manager Charlie Dressen and his Brooklyn crew saw their once overpowering 13½ game bulge over the Giants melt to a single game last night when the relaxed Braves pummelled them in a night-marish floodlighted doubleheader, 6-3 and 14-2. At the same time the relentless Giants were polishing off the Philadelphia Phils, 5-1, for the 34th triumph in their last 41 games.

Yankees In

The big doings in the National League pennant race far overshadowed the American League scramble that saw the front running New York Yankees move a step nearer the flag when both Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox were beaten. The Chicago White Sox shoved the Indians three games behind the Yanks with a 4-2 triumph while Washington dropped the Red Sox five and a half games off the pace with a 3-0 victory.

The Dodgers were depressed, but there was no hint of surrender despite their double debacle.

"We're still in front. That's all I know," said Captain Pee Wee Reese.

"We got all the bad baseball out of our system," said Dressen. "The boys aren't panicky. There's nothing we can do but go out and win four of our remaining five."

The Dodgers still have five to go, two in Boston and three in Philadelphia. The Giants have three left, one in Philadelphia and two in Boston. Any combination of four Dodger wins and/or Giant defeats would clinch the flag for Brooklyn.

The Giants still face a Herculean task and Manager Leo Durocher is well aware of it. He knows his charges cannot afford to lose another game. They are certain to face Warren Spahn, ace Boston lefthander, in one of them. Spahn yesterday whipped the Dodgers for his 22nd victory.

"I'd be foolish to predict a pennant," said Durocher. "Nobody realizes what a task we are confronted with better than I. We still have to have help to win it.

Maglie in Relief

"But let me tell you this," he added. "This is the fightingest ball club I ever managed. Everybody else gave up on us but the players themselves. They don't know what it is to quit."

Durocher yesterday made a smart managerial move that helped the Giants to victory. Starter and winner Jim Hearn lost his shutout in the seventh with a home run pitch to Willie Jones. Orestes Minoso, former Cleveland property, homered and singled for the White Sox. It was Cleveland's fourth straight defeat.

Bob Porterfield handcuffed the Red Sox with two singles as the Senators got eight off loser Leo Kiely with Clyde Kluttz and Gil Coan driving in the runs.

TIPS ON UMBRELLA OR MARQUEE TENTS

EXTRA ROPES FOR ANCHORING ALL FOUR CORNERS (A) ARE DESIRABLE AND ADD STABILITY WHEN WINDS BLOW. NOT ALL TENTS COME WITH SUCH ROPES BUT THEY'RE SIMPLE TO MAKE UP.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Three aces are always better than one. That's why it's hazardous to predict that the Brooklyn Dodgers can possibly win more than one game in the forthcoming World Series.

Assuming, of course, that the Bums make the grade and face the Yankees in the fall classic.

Elwood "Preacher" Roe, one of the blue ribbon twirlers of the majors, could beat the Yankees the first time out. He did it 1-0 the last time he opened a series against them. Old Preach could do it twice. But after Roe, what can Brooklyn offer?

On his better days, Don Newcombe, the giant Negro right hander is one of baseball's best flingers. But the huge sepia fireballer is a man of many moods and mysterious aches and pains. Who can predict in just what frame of mind the big guy will be when he faces the Bronx Bombers.

On the Yankee side, it is not presumptuous to declare that when the chips are down the Bomber trio of Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Eddie Lopat is the best in the business. Reynolds and Raschi have brilliant World Series records and Lopat is a great workman under pressure. You can have any other three in baseball and we'll take our chances with Raschi, Reynolds and Lopat.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

We caught a couple of thrillers between the Yankees and White Sox and Indians on vacation last week at the Stadium. That Rizzuto squeeze bunt in the ninth inning against the Indians was a picture play and Joe Collins' three-run homer to beat Saul Rogovin took a lot of pressure off the Yankee rooters. Fred Davi, the Laughing Boy, was on hand renewing acquaintances with the Yankee players, particularly DiMaggio, Berra and Rizzuto. Fred and Big Joe were in a long huddle about post-season plans but the Yankee Clipper said he would head straight for San Francisco after the World Series. Jerry Bush, Charlie Hoppey and Ray Amell came bouncing out of the Stadium Club a half hour after the game and headed for the downtown sights. If Davi had been able to coax DiMaggio's 1952 plans out of the Big Guy then he would have had a real story.

• Lavender and Old Lace:

Sunday's Old Timer game between Kingston and Saugerties was a bit of lavender and old lace with a generous sprinkling of nostalgia. Time had taken its toll and distorted the physiques of the once great rivals but the spirit was there even if the flesh was weak. And the biggest winners next to the Saugerties club were the Little Leaguers of the Kingston Athletic Association. The large crowd at the Athletic Field responded generously and about $120 was turned over to Little League fund. Big Ted Freligh remains a physical marvel. Dick Dulin made the trip from Connecticut with his three beautiful daughters but didn't see action because of an arm injury. Ditto Jimmy Merritt. Tom Davitt and Joe Hoffman of Kingston and Les Brink of Saugerties did a great job on the promotional end. Chief of Police Richter of Saugerties took a brief fling at first base and then retired. The bantering between the two sides was of pre-war vintage, with "Gabby" Benjamin getting in the best licks, just as everybody expected, although Hank Cragan gave a good account of himself. Eddie Burgevin and Lefty Jim Martin, the Gold Dust Twins, were missing in action.

Harry Desmond, the veteran umpire with the rich New York accent, showed up in a baseball suit.

"You're not going to umpire in a suit are you?" quizzed a guy on the sidelines

"You know, Harry, there was a time when we accused you of wearing the uniform while umping behind the plate."

There was a big chuckle all the way round. Desmond was an able arbiter who had the respect of Kingston and Saugerties teams in all their heated battles.

Dewey Van Buren experienced a hectic stay in the game. First somebody rapped a hot line drive off his shins. Somebody else poked a triple to right field and then Dewey got tangled up around second base.

But what worried Dewey most was whether he would have a "strawberry" the next day.

"What do you think of a guy like that," shrieked Hank Cragan, the old first sacker. "He gets a ball belted off his shins; somebody slaps him for a triple, he's almost kayoed at second base; we're losing the ball game and he's worrying about a 'strawberry'."

Will Remain Open

Twenty public camp sites in New York state will remain open until the close of the deer season, it was announced by Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea. These camp sites include North Lake and Devils Tombstone in Greene county, Woodland Valley in Ulster county and Beaverkill in Sullivan county.

Three aces are always better than one. That's why it's hazardous to predict that the Brooklyn Dodgers can possibly win more than one game in the forthcoming World Series.

Assuming, of course, that the Bums make the grade and face the Yankees in the fall classic.

Elwood "Preacher" Roe, one of the blue ribbon twirlers of the majors, could beat the Yankees the first time out. He did it 1-0 the last time he opened a series against them. Old Preach could do it twice. But after Roe, what can Brooklyn offer?

On his better days, Don Newcombe, the giant Negro right hander is one of baseball's best flingers. But the huge sepia fireballer is a man of many moods and mysterious aches and pains. Who can predict in just what frame of mind the big guy will be when he faces the Bronx Bombers.

On the Yankee side, it is not presumptuous to declare that when the chips are down the Bomber trio of Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Eddie Lopat is the best in the business. Reynolds and Raschi have brilliant World Series records and Lopat is a great workman under pressure. You can have any other three in baseball and we'll take our chances with Raschi, Reynolds and Lopat.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

We caught a couple of thrillers between the Yankees and White Sox and Indians on vacation last week at the Stadium. That Rizzuto squeeze bunt in the ninth inning against the Indians was a picture play and Joe Collins' three-run homer to beat Saul Rogovin took a lot of pressure off the Yankee rooters. Fred Davi, the Laughing Boy, was on hand renewing acquaintances with the Yankee players, particularly DiMaggio, Berra and Rizzuto. Fred and Big Joe were in a long huddle about post-season plans but the Yankee Clipper said he would head straight for San Francisco after the World Series. Jerry Bush, Charlie Hoppey and Ray Amell came bouncing out of the Stadium Club a half hour after the game and headed for the downtown sights. If Davi had been able to coax DiMaggio's 1952 plans out of the Big Guy then he would have had a real story.

• Lavender and Old Lace:

Sunday's Old Timer game between Kingston and Saugerties was a bit of lavender and old lace with a generous sprinkling of nostalgia. Time had taken its toll and distorted the physiques of the once great rivals but the spirit was there even if the flesh was weak. And the biggest winners next to the Saugerties club were the Little Leaguers of the Kingston Athletic Association. The large crowd at the Athletic Field responded generously and about $120 was turned over to Little League fund. Big Ted Freligh remains a physical marvel. Dick Dulin made the trip from Connecticut with his three beautiful daughters but didn't see action because of an arm injury. Ditto Jimmy Merritt. Tom Davitt and Joe Hoffman of Kingston and Les Brink of Saugerties did a great job on the promotional end. Chief of Police Richter of Saugerties took a brief fling at first base and then retired. The bantering between the two sides was of pre-war vintage, with "Gabby" Benjamin getting in the best licks, just as everybody expected, although Hank Cragan gave a good account of himself. Eddie Burgevin and Lefty Jim Martin, the Gold Dust Twins, were missing in action.

Harry Desmond, the veteran umpire with the rich New York accent, showed up in a baseball suit.

"You're not going to umpire in a suit are you?" quizzed a guy on the sidelines

"You know, Harry, there was a time when we accused you of wearing the uniform while umping behind the plate."

There was a big chuckle all the way round. Desmond was an able arbiter who had the respect of Kingston and Saugerties teams in all their heated battles.

Dewey Van Buren experienced a hectic stay in the game. First somebody rapped a hot line drive off his shins. Somebody else poked a triple to right field and then Dewey got tangled up around second base.

But what worried Dewey most was whether he would have a "strawberry" the next day.

Will Remain Open

Twenty public camp sites in New York state will remain open until the close of the deer season, it was announced by Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea. These camp sites include North Lake and Devils Tombstone in Greene county, Woodland Valley in Ulster county and Beaverkill in Sullivan county.

On his better days, Don Newcombe, the giant Negro right hander is one of baseball's best flingers. But the huge sepia fireballer is a man of many moods and mysterious aches and pains. Who can predict in just what frame of mind the big guy will be when he faces the Bronx Bombers.

On the Yankee side, it is not presumptuous to declare that when the chips are down the Bomber trio of Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Eddie Lopat is the best in the business. Reynolds and Raschi have brilliant World Series records and Lopat is a great workman under pressure. You can have any other three in baseball and we'll take our chances with Raschi, Reynolds and Lopat.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

We caught a couple of thrillers between the Yankees and White Sox and Indians on vacation last week at the Stadium. That Rizzuto squeeze bunt in the ninth inning against the Indians was a picture play and Joe Collins' three-run homer to beat Saul Rogovin took a lot of pressure off the Yankee rooters. Fred Davi, the Laughing Boy, was on hand renewing acquaintances with the Yankee players, particularly DiMaggio, Berra and Rizzuto. Fred and Big Joe were in a long huddle about post-season plans but the Yankee Clipper said he would head straight for San Francisco after the World Series. Jerry Bush, Charlie Hoppey and Ray Amell came bouncing out of the Stadium Club a half hour after the game and headed for the downtown sights. If Davi had been able to coax DiMaggio's 1952 plans out of the Big Guy then he would have had a real story.

• Lavender and Old Lace:

Sunday's Old Timer game between Kingston and Saugerties was a bit of lavender and old lace with a generous sprinkling of nostalgia. Time had taken its toll and distorted the physiques of the once great rivals but the spirit was there even if the flesh was weak. And the biggest winners next to the Saugerties club were the Little Leaguers of the Kingston Athletic Association. The large crowd at the Athletic Field responded generously and about $120 was turned over to Little League fund. Big Ted Freligh remains a physical marvel. Dick Dulin made the trip from Connecticut with his three beautiful daughters but didn't see action because of an arm injury. Ditto Jimmy Merritt. Tom Davitt and Joe Hoffman of Kingston and Les Brink of Saugerties did a great job on the promotional end. Chief of Police Richter of Saugerties took a brief fling at first base and then retired. The bantering between the two sides was of pre-war vintage, with "Gabby" Benjamin getting in the best licks, just as everybody expected, although Hank Cragan gave a good account of himself. Eddie Burgevin and Lefty Jim Martin, the Gold Dust Twins, were missing in action.

Harry Desmond, the veteran umpire with the rich New York accent, showed up in a baseball suit.

"You're not going to umpire in a suit are you?" quizzed a guy on the sidelines

"You know, Harry, there was a time when we accused you of wearing the uniform while umping behind the plate."

There was a big chuckle all the way round. Desmond was an able arbiter who had the respect of Kingston and Saugerties teams in all their heated battles.

Dewey Van Buren experienced a hectic stay in the game. First somebody rapped a hot line drive off his shins. Somebody else poked a triple to right field and then Dewey got tangled up around second base.

But what worried Dewey most was whether he would have a "strawberry" the next day.

Will Remain Open

Twenty public camp sites in New York state will remain open until the close of the deer season, it was announced by Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea. These camp sites include North Lake and Devils Tombstone in Greene county, Woodland Valley in Ulster county and Beaverkill in Sullivan county.

Potters, Clippers Win in Y League

Potter Brothers turned back a hard-fighting Hercules quintet, 54-53, in the closing seconds and the Kerhonkson Clippers mauled the Newkirk Aces, 67 to 55, in last night's opening bracket of Y Autumn League basketball games on the Y court.

Bones Hampton uncorked a running one-hander from the right side just as the final gun went off to nail down the Potters victory.

Tom Morrissey led the Powdermen with 19 points and teamed beautifully with Danny McGrane who fed him with the most of his deuces. Three of the Potters hit double figures, Frank Sass leading with 15. Jack Doyle tossed in 13 and Hank Priest had 12.

A big 28-point third period enabled Kerhonkson to overcome a three-point halftime deficit against the Aces and move to an impressive victory.

Rivin Krieger and Danny Sandler led the Clippers with 14 points each and Frank Howling hit for 10. Daniel Schrader had 12 and Joe Norton 10 for the Aces.

Musician's Union Joins With Elks In Teen-Age Dance

Music for the first teen-age dance sponsored by Kingston Elks Lodge, Friday night, will be furnished by Leo Moser's orchestra, through the courtesy of Kingston Local 215, American Federation of Musicians.

This announcement was made today by Exalted Ruler John J. Schwalbach, who praised the cooperation given by the musician's union in aiding the Elks with their youth program.

Schwalbach said "we heartily appreciate the donation of the music, and the view taken by the union that enterprises to stimulate and encourage our youth are worthwhile projects."

Pete Ferraro of Local 215 said that money for the orchestra would be furnished through the grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Recording Industry.

He added that "the fund is an extension of a program of public service arranged by those in charge of the transcription fund established through the efforts of J. C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians."

ment "literally dozens" of different types and kinds of special purpose atomic weapons models.

Not Merely Dream

He said "the so-called wonder weapons" he was talking about weren't just a gleam in the eye of scientists but "down-to-earth" hardware, proven, demonstrated and confirmed" or proof-tested or about to be.

McMahon had prepared his speech before Lovett issued, at a Pentagon news conference, a statement which the secretary explained was to answer misinterpretations of what McMahon had meant in his last week's Senate speech.

"Recent publicity about new weapons, new developments in warfare, and optimistic statements on the military application of atomic energy have given the exaggerated impression that a quick, easy and inexpensive security might now be at hand," Lovett said.

Marked Results in Year

Over a seven-year period, he added, considerable progress has been made toward a "variety of new weapons" and particularly in the past year there have been marked results. The Pentagon has "geared" its requests for carriers of these new weapons, "airborne and otherwise," to these developments. He explained that because aircraft "now and for some time will represent the most efficient method of delivery" of atomic weapons the Defense Department had asked for increased air power.

"Many future weapons may be dramatically different from our present armaments," Lovett stated. "Meanwhile, however, we must rely on the proved, tested, and available models to win today's battles with men presently trained to use them. • • •

"Even in view of these new developments, there is no new, inexpensive, or magic way to win wars in the near future."

McMahon's Views

McMahon, in his talk, took pains to point out some of the things he didn't say in his Senate speech. Like these:

"I did not say, for example, that we can ever afford to do without conventional forces. On the contrary, I expressly stated my belief that although conventional forces are far more expensive than the atomic weapon, we will always need them. • • •

"Neither did I say that the atomic weapon can perform military miracles. • • • It is for the very reason that the atomic weapon is not magic that I called for its production on a huge scale, just as we would mass-produce a superb conventional weapon."

McMahon emphasized that work should start at once on building new atomic production facilities, that at least $6,000,000,000 should be made available for this next year.

Pace went before McMahon's committee yesterday and, the senator said, told the group the army attached high significance to its work looking toward atomic energy use on the field of battle.

"Secretary Pace made it plain that future army tactical requirements for atomic materials will be very substantial in quantity and all fissionable material should be produced as soon as practicable," McMahon said.

Potters, Clippers Win in Y League

Potter Brothers turned back a hard-fighting Hercules quintet, 54-53, in the closing seconds and the Kerhonkson Clippers mauled the Newkirk Aces, 67 to 55, in last night's opening bracket of Y Autumn League basketball games on the Y court.

Bones Hampton uncorked a running one-hander from the right side just as the final gun went off to nail down the Potters victory.

Tom Morrissey led the Powdermen with 19 points and teamed beautifully with Danny McGrane who fed him with the most of his deuces. Three of the Potters hit double figures, Frank Sass leading with 15. Jack Doyle tossed in 13 and Hank Priest had 12.

A big 28-point third period enabled Kerhonkson to overcome a three-point halftime deficit against the Aces and move to an impressive victory.

Rivin Krieger and Danny Sandler led the Clippers with 14 points each and Frank Howling hit for 10. Daniel Schrader had 12 and Joe Norton 10 for the Aces.

Musician's Union Joins With Elks In Teen-Age Dance

Music for the first teen-age dance sponsored by Kingston Elks Lodge, Friday night, will be furnished by Leo Moser's orchestra, through the courtesy of Kingston Local 215, American Federation of Musicians.

This announcement was made today by Exalted Ruler John J. Schwalbach, who praised the cooperation given by the musician's union in aiding the Elks with their youth program.

Schwalbach said "we heartily appreciate the donation of the music, and the view taken by the union that enterprises to stimulate and encourage our youth are worthwhile projects."

Pete Ferraro of Local 215 said that money for the orchestra would be furnished through the grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Recording Industry.

He added that "the fund is an extension of a program of public service arranged by those in charge of the transcription fund established through the efforts of J. C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians."

Friday night's dance will start at 9 o'clock, after the high school football game, and music will continue until 11:30 p. m.

The social event will be chaperoned by members of the Elks Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. Henry DeWitt, president.

Exalted Ruler Schwalbach said he has an extensive plan for youth activities this year and has named Alderman-at-large Joe Kelly as chairman.

ment "literally dozens" of different types and kinds of special purpose atomic weapons models.

Not Merely Dreem

He said "the so-called wonder weapons" he was talking about weren't just a gleam in the eye of scientists but "down-to-earth" hardware, proven, demonstrated and confirmed" or proof-tested or about to be.

McMahon had prepared his speech before Lovett issued, at a Pentagon news conference, a statement which the secretary explained was to answer misinterpretations of what McMahon had meant in his last week's Senate speech.

"Recent publicity about new weapons, new developments in warfare, and optimistic statements on the military application of atomic energy have given the exaggerated impression that a quick, easy and inexpensive security might now be at hand," Lovett said.

Marked Results in Year

Over a seven-year period, he added, considerable progress has been made toward a "variety of new weapons" and particularly in the past year there have been marked results. The Pentagon has "geared" its requests for carriers of these new weapons, "airborne and otherwise," to these developments. He explained that because aircraft "now and for some time will represent the most efficient method of delivery" of atomic weapons the Defense Department had asked for increased air power.

"Many future weapons may be dramatically different from our present armaments," Lovett stated. "Meanwhile, however, we must rely on the proved, tested, and available models to win today's battles with men presently trained to use them. • • •

"Even in view of these new developments, there is no new, inexpensive, or magic way to win wars in the near future."

McMahon's Views

McMahon, in his talk, took pains to point out some of the things he didn't say in his Senate speech. Like these:

"I did not say, for example, that we can ever afford to do without conventional forces. On the contrary, I expressly stated my belief that although conventional forces are far more expensive than the atomic weapon, we will always need them. • • •

"Neither did I say that the atomic weapon can perform military miracles. • • • It is for the very reason that the atomic weapon is not magic that I called for its production on a huge scale, just as we would mass-produce a superb conventional weapon."

McMahon emphasized that work should start at once on building new atomic production facilities, that at least $6,000,000,000 should be made available for this next year.

Pace went before McMahon's committee yesterday and, the senator said, told the group the army attached high significance to its work looking toward atomic energy use on the field of battle.

"Secretary Pace made it plain that future army tactical requirements for atomic materials will be very substantial in quantity and all fissionable material should be produced as soon as practicable," McMahon said.

Potters, Clippers Win in Y League

Potter Brothers turned back a hard-fighting Hercules quintet, 54-53, in the closing seconds and the Kerhonkson Clippers mauled the Newkirk Aces, 67 to 55, in last night's opening bracket of Y Autumn League basketball games on the Y court.

Bones Hampton uncorked a running one-hander from the right side just as the final gun went off to nail down the Potters victory.

Tom Morrissey led the Powdermen with 19 points and teamed beautifully with Danny McGrane who fed him with the most of his deuces. Three of the Potters hit double figures, Frank Sass leading with 15. Jack Doyle tossed in 13 and Hank Priest had 12.

A big 28-point third period enabled Kerhonkson to overcome a three-point halftime deficit against the Aces and move to an impressive victory.

Rivin Krieger and Danny Sandler led the Clippers with 14 points each and Frank Howling hit for 10. Daniel Schrader had 12 and Joe Norton 10 for the Aces.

Musician's Union Joins With Elks In Teen-Age Dance

Music for the first teen-age dance sponsored by Kingston Elks Lodge, Friday night, will be furnished by Leo Moser's orchestra, through the courtesy of Kingston Local 215, American Federation of Musicians.

This announcement was made today by Exalted Ruler John J. Schwalbach, who praised the cooperation given by the musician's union in aiding the Elks with their youth program.

Schwalbach said "we heartily appreciate the donation of the music, and the view taken by the union that enterprises to stimulate and encourage our youth are worthwhile projects."

Pete Ferraro of Local 215 said that money for the orchestra would be furnished through the grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Recording Industry.

He added that "the fund is an extension of a program of public service arranged by those in charge of the transcription fund established through the efforts of J. C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians."

Friday night's dance will start at 9 o'clock, after the high school football game, and music will continue until 11:30 p. m.

The social event will be chaperoned by members of the Elks Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. Henry DeWitt, president.

ment "literally dozens" of different types and kinds of special purpose atomic weapons models.

Not Merely Dream

He said "the so-called wonder weapons" he was talking about weren't just a gleam in the eye of scientists but "down-to-earth" hardware, proven, demonstrated and confirmed" or proof-tested or about to be.

McMahon had prepared his speech before Lovett issued, at a Pentagon news conference, a statement which the secretary explained was to answer misinterpretations of what McMahon had meant in his last week's Senate speech.

"Recent publicity about new weapons, new developments in warfare, and optimistic statements on the military application of atomic energy have given the exaggerated impression that a quick, easy and inexpensive security might now be at hand," Lovett said.

Marked Results in Year

Over a seven-year period, he added, considerable progress has been made toward a "variety of new weapons" and particularly in the past year there have been marked results. The Pentagon has "geared" its requests for carriers of these new weapons, "airborne and otherwise," to these developments. He explained that because aircraft "now and for some time will represent the most efficient method of delivery" of atomic weapons the Defense Department had asked for increased air power.

"Many future weapons may be dramatically different from our present armaments," Lovett stated. "Meanwhile, however, we must rely on the proved, tested, and available models to win today's battles with men presently trained to use them. • • •

"Even in view of these new developments, there is no new, inexpensive, or magic way to win wars in the near future."

McMahon's Views

McMahon, in his talk, took pains to point out some of the things he didn't say in his Senate speech. Like these:

"I did not say, for example, that we can ever afford to do without conventional forces. On the contrary, I expressly stated my belief that although conventional forces are far more expensive than the atomic weapon, we will always need them. • • •

"Neither did I say that the atomic weapon can perform military miracles. • • • It is for the very reason that the atomic weapon is not magic that I called for its production on a huge scale, just as we would mass-produce a superb conventional weapon."

McMahon emphasized that work should start at once on building new atomic production facilities, that at least $6,000,000,000 should be made available for this next year.

Pace went before McMahon's committee yesterday and, the senator said, told the group the army attached high significance to its work looking toward atomic energy use on the field of battle.

"Secretary Pace made it plain that future army tactical requirements for atomic materials will be very substantial in quantity and all fissionable material should be produced as soon as practicable," McMahon said.

19 YEARS OF SERVICE

New York Shows 198,892 2nd Day; Total Is 392,142

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—On the second day of New York city's sluggish registration for the off-year Nov. 6 election, 198,892 persons enrolled yesterday to bring the two-day total to 392,142.

Both the second-day registration and the two-day total lagged far behind similar totals for a number of years past.

The second-day figure compared with 343,967 on the second day for last year's election, which was an off-year with the exception of the mayoralty race. The second day figure for the 1947 off-year election was 279,779.

The two-day total last year was 638,606 and in 1947 it was 494,739.

Registration here will be resumed next week — running Wednesday through Saturday to complete the six-day enrollment.

Even in Queens where the first day's total was the only figure to better that of the 1947 registration, yesterday's enrollment fell off in comparison.

That borough, with two major election battles, had a second-day registration of 39,253, making a total of 74,531 for the two days. This compared with 64,553 on last year's second day and last year's total of 118,052. In the 1947 off-year registration the second day in Queens saw 46,708 persons enroll for a two-day total of 81,737.

Apparent Everywhere

The low registration figure for the two days was apparent in all boroughs, despite city-wide interest in the forthcoming election for the city council presidency.

In Manhattan, 49,920 persons registered yesterday for a two-day total of 99,351. This compared with 1950's figures of 87,601 and 165,852, while in the 1947 registration the comparative enrollment was 67,225 and 120,513.

Only 38,192 persons registered in the Bronx for a combined total of 75,905 compared with last year's 67,624 and 127,490. In 1947, there were 61,009 the second day and a combined total of 107,826.

Brooklyn, with traditionally the greatest registration, had 66,982 registrants yesterday, making its total 133,892 for the two days. Last year that borough saw 117,512 persons enroll the second day for a total of 215,267 and four years ago the comparative totals were 98,365 and 173,881.

In Richmond, yesterday's nametaking added 4,545 persons to the voter lists for a two-day total of 8,463, which compared with 6,677 and 11,945 in 1950, and 5,574 and 10,782 in 1947.

and cents tops on wholesale pork prices, effective Oct. 1. OPS officials said the result may be a drop of as much as five cents a pound in some places in ham and bacon prices.

3. The Senate Banking Committee voted in favor of handing back to the government authority to impose—but with conditions this time—livestock slaughtering quotas. Congress banned slaughtering quotas in this year's economic controls law. The revision, which goes before the Senate now, also provides there shall be no beef price rollbacks. It requires OPS to keep its quotas elastic enough to take in all animals offered for slaughter.

4. The Agriculture Department reported that meat production under federal inspection continued last week to be under the level of a year ago. It gave smaller marketings of beef cattle—down 15 per cent—as the reason. But marketing of hogs was up, the department said, by seven per cent.

The nationwide crackdown on meat slaughterers and distributors began at dawn yesterday, from coast to coast. Virtually all available OPS enforcement officers were thrown into action.

Offenses charged in first reports, a New York OPS official said, may result in both civil and criminal prosecutions. Criminal violations carry penalties up to three years in jail plus a $10,000 fine.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Craftsmen Elect Officers for Year

Woodstock, Sept 26—At the recent annual meeting of the Woodstock Guild of Craftemen the following officers for the coming year were elected:

Allan Gould, president; Konrad Cramer and Isabel Doughty, vice presidents; Josephine Barnard, secretary; Jessie Stagg, corresponding secretary; Bernard Lapo, treasurer; Katharine Wangler, executive manager; Alice Wardwell, nominating committee; Louise Lindin, policy committee; Frances Rogers, book committee; Elizabeth Clough, consignors' representative; Rosalind D'Albis, shop committee; Anita Stallforth and Linda Walter, house committee; Blanche Rosett, education committee; Konrad Cramer and Rudolf Wetterau, co-directors on education committee; members of the education committee are Margot Cramer King, treasurer, Richard Chambers, Edward Chavez, Arnold Blanch, Isabel Doughty, Marion Chambers, Jessie A. Stagg, Fred Dana Marsh, Walter S. Van Wagenen, and Elizabeth Clough.

The resignations of Mrs. William Moncure and Mrs. Catalano were accepted with regret, and a vote of thanks given for their past service to the Guild.

The members were glad to hear from Mrs. Wangler that sales had increased about $700 over the previous year, and this in a season regarded as very poor by many local business men.

Mrs. Rosett gave a report for the education committee as follows: Mrs. Stowall's weaving classes were successful; Mrs. Stagg's classes were so popular that additional groups were arranged for; an exhibition of students work was held at the end of the summer.

Mrs. Wetterau's children's workshop was well attended, 15 children enrolled for a period of nine weeks. Their ages varied from six to 12. They did craft work in wood, metal, and felt and were also taught clay modelling and painting.

They made miniature theatres of fairy tale subjects. The older children made papier-mache puppets, the younger ones made the simpler rod puppets. At the end of the season they gave a charming and colorful puppet show with music — Stravinsky's Petrouchka Ballet. The children's summer work was exhibited in the work shop at this time. Mrs. Wetterau was fortunate to have the assistance of Marcia Waterous with the younger children. The proceeds from the puppet show were donated to the Woodstock Recreation Field.

Richard Chambers, who also teaches at the Phoenix School of Art in New York, taught design and metal work for the Guild in his own studio in Byrdcliffe.

Mention was made at the meeting of the success of Mrs. Ganzo's Gallery which will continue at the Guild next summer.

After the meeting tea was served on the terrace. The Guild will be open from now until Thanksgiving from 10 a. m. to 5:30 daily, with the exception of Tuesday and Thursday mornings. From the day after Thanksgiving it will be open seven days a week until Christmas Eve for the Holiday Fair held every year at that time by the Guild.

In the event of rain the Cub Pack and their guests will meet in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Many Ways to Play This Strange Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"What is the right way to play this hand?" asks a Wichita fan. "Declarer actually won the first club with dummy's ace, drew three rounds of trumps, and cashed the three top hearts. If the hearts broke, he could concede a club and claim the rest. When the hearts broke badly, he finessed the jack of diamonds. This lost, and South actually went down two.

"Was this South's best chance for the contract?"

It is not the best play for the slam. South should take the first club with dummy's ace and then draw four rounds of trumps. Dummy discards a low heart on the fourth trump, but perhaps the defenders will have a little trouble. At this stage they can't be sure what the hand depends on.

South next leads the jack of clubs from his hand. East wins and returns a heart (the best defense). Dummy wins with the king of hearts and returns a club for South to ruff with his last trump. Now South takes the ace and king of diamonds.

By this time dummy is reduced to a diamond, the nine of clubs, and one small heart.

South has ace-queen-three of hearts. What three cards can West save? If he saves his fourth club, he can keep only two hearts, and South wins the rest. If West gives up his fourth club, dummy's nine is good.

This line of play would work if either defender had long hearts and also long clubs; or if either defender had long hearts and also the queen of diamonds. South makes his contract also if the hearts break 3-3. He may make it if one of the defenders discards unwisely on the fourth trump.

The combination of all these chances is better than relying on a heart break coupled with the diamond finesse. What's more, if the worst happens, South is set only one trick. The extra 100 points is not the chief consideration, but it shouldn't be entirely disregarded.

King Continues

fortable day and ate for the first time. An earlier bulletin said George continues to gain strength.

A medical man said, "it is very good news indeed. It means the king is nearly out of the immediate crisis."

Medical experts predict the 55-year-old king will enter another danger period about Saturday. They say there is a risk of late complications such as infection and "secondary hemorrhage."

The king is confined to a palace sickroom for what is expected to be a long fight. His doctors cut out all or part of one lung affected by a disease they have not disclosed.

Still undecided is whether Princess Elizabeth, heir to the throne, will leave Oct. 1 on her visit to Canada and the United States.

Palace officials indicated a decision will come later this week.

O'Neil Cools Meat For Rightful Owner

The person who left a package of meat in the car of Osmond O'Neil, of 183 Green street, yesterday, may have had a meatless dinner last night, but he can make up for it by investigating the Elks Club "cooler."

Police were notified at 5:15 p. m. that the meat had been left in the O'Neil car while it was parked back of the Kingston Trust Company building, Main and Fair streets, apparently because the car resembled that of the meat purchaser. O'Neil placed the package for refrigeration at the club.

Burglary Solved

A burglary at the Rosslers Town Shop in Rosendale was investigated Tuesday by County Investigator Leonard Belmore with the result that a young high school lad was picked up and questioned. He admitted entering the place some time Monday night. Restitution was made and Mr. and Mrs. Rossler, because of the youth of the lad and the probability that prosecution would ruin his high school career, told the officials they did not desire to press a charge. Because of the age of the lad the name was not made public.

Hanstein Named To Defense Post Left by Shurter

Col. Allan L. Hanstein, a veteran of both World War 1 and World War 2, has been appointed temporarily to the position of Ulster County Civil Defense director to succeed Howard C. Shurter, who recently resigned. The appointment of a temporary director was made by Roy F. Denniston, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. A permanent appointment will be made by the board of supervisors at its next meeting.

Col. Hanstein resides at 109 St. James street, Kingston, and also maintains a residence at Westkill, Greene county. He is engaged in the insurance business at 41 Pearl street and has been in the insurance business for over 25 years.

In World War 1, Col. Hanstein served with the engineers overseas and held the rank of first lieutenant at the close of the war. In World War 2 he was for four years with the transportation corps.

For many years Hanstein has been interested in civic activities and has been associated with numerous drives and campaigns in the city to raise funds for worthy charities. He was recently elected vice president of the committee which will have in charge the observance of the 300th anniversary of Kingston, an event which is to be celebrated next year.

During the drive for funds for the Kingston Hospital building program he was chairman of the initial gifts committee and is presently a member of the board of directors of the Kingston Hospital. He is a member of Kingston Rotary and a director of the State of New York National Bank.

The resignation of Howard C. Shurter, director of the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, which was submitted due to the press of duties in connection with that office, has been received and accepted by Denniston as chairman of the board of supervisors.

Automobile Stuck, Train Is Halted

Quick action by state troopers last night following notification that a car was stuck on the Glenerie Park crossing of the West Short Railroad, saved the car of Mrs. Winnie Ford of 138 Washington avenue and averted a possible serious accident.

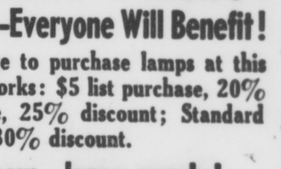

At about 11 o'clock last evening Mrs. Ford started across the tracks after visiting friends at Glenerie Park. She misjudged the distance and her car ran off the crossing planking and became stuck on the tracks.

People in the neighborhood observed her plight and called the state police station on the Saugerties road. They in turn called the West Shore train dispatcher at the Kingston station and requested the passenger train, then about due to leave, be held at the station until the tracks were clear.

A tow truck was sent to the scene by James Hodges and the stranded car hauled free. Traffic was then resumed on both the highway and the railroad.

19 YEARS OF SERVICE

New York Shows 198,892 2nd Day; Total Is 392,142

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—On the second day of New York city's sluggish registration for the off-year Nov. 6 election, 198,892 persons enrolled yesterday to bring the two-day total to 392,142.

Both the second-day registration and the two-day total lagged far behind similar totals for a number of years past.

The second-day figure compared with 343,967 on the second day for last year's election, which was an off-year with the exception of the mayoralty race. The second day figure for the 1947 off-year election was 279,779.

The two-day total last year was 638,606 and in 1947 it was 494,739.

Registration here will be resumed next week — running Wednesday through Saturday to complete the six-day enrollment.

Even in Queens where the first day's total was the only figure to better that of the 1947 registration, yesterday's enrollment fell off in comparison.

That borough, with two major election battles, had a second-day registration of 39,253, making a total of 74,531 for the two days. This compared with 64,553 on last year's second day and last year's total of 118,052. In the 1947 off-year registration the second day in Queens saw 46,708 persons enroll for a two-day total of 81,737.

Apparent Everywhere

The low registration figure for the two days was apparent in all boroughs, despite city-wide interest in the forthcoming election for the city council presidency.

In Manhattan, 49,920 persons registered yesterday for a two-day total of 99,351. This compared with 1950's figures of 87,601 and 165,852, while in the 1947 registration the comparative enrollment was 67,225 and 120,513.

Only 38,192 persons registered in the Bronx for a combined total of 75,905 compared with last year's 67,624 and 127,490. In 1947, there were 61,009 the second day and a combined total of 107,826.

Brooklyn, with traditionally the greatest registration, had 66,982 registrants yesterday, making its total 133,892 for the two days. Last year that borough saw 117,512 persons enroll the second day for a total of 215,267 and four years ago the comparative totals were 98,365 and 173,881.

In Richmond, yesterday's nametaking added 4,545 persons to the voter lists for a two-day total of 8,463, which compared with 6,677 and 11,945 in 1950, and 5,574 and 10,782 in 1947.

Price Control . . .

and cents tops on wholesale pork prices, effective Oct. 1. OPS officials said the result may be a drop of as much as five cents a pound in some places in ham and bacon prices.

3. The Senate Banking Committee voted in favor of handing back to the government authority to impose—but with conditions this time—livestock slaughtering quotas. Congress banned slaughtering quotas in this year's economic controls law. The revision, which goes before the Senate now, also provides there shall be no beef price rollbacks. It requires OPS to keep its quotas elastic enough to take in all animals offered for slaughter.

4. The Agriculture Department reported that meat production under federal inspection continued last week to be under the level of a year ago. It gave smaller marketings of beef cattle—down 15 per cent—as the reason. But marketing of hogs was up, the department said, by seven per cent.

The nationwide crackdown on meat slaughterers and distributors began at dawn yesterday, from coast to coast. Virtually all available OPS enforcement officers were thrown into action.

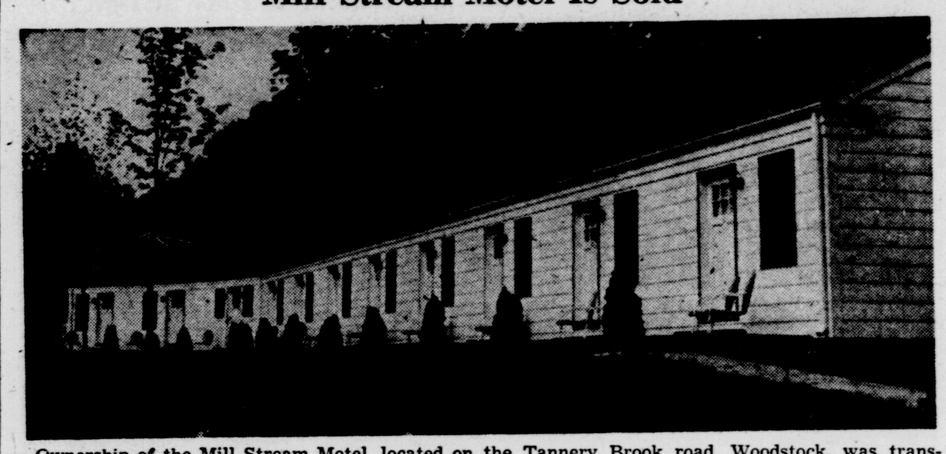

Offenses charged in first reports, a New York OPS official said, may result in both civil and criminal prosecutions. Criminal violations carry penalties up to three years in jail plus a $10,000 fine.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Craftsmen Elect Officers for Year

Woodstock, Sept 26—At the recent annual meeting of the Woodstock Guild of Craftemen the following officers for the coming year were elected:

Allan Gould, president; Konrad Cramer and Isabel Doughty, vice presidents; Josephine Barnard, secretary; Jessie Stagg, corresponding secretary; Bernard Lapo, treasurer; Katharine Wangler, executive manager; Alice Wardwell, nominating committee; Louise Lindin, policy committee; Frances Rogers, book committee; Elizabeth Clough, consignors' representative; Rosalind D'Albis, shop committee; Anita Stallforth and Linda Walter, house committee; Blanche Rosett, education committee; Konrad Cramer and Rudolf Wetterau, co-directors on education committee; members of the education committee are Margot Cramer King, treasurer, Richard Chambers, Edward Chavez, Arnold Blanch, Isabel Doughty, Marion Chambers, Jessie A. Stagg, Fred Dana Marsh, Walter S. Van Wagenen, and Elizabeth Clough.

The resignations of Mrs. William Moncure and Mrs. Catalano were accepted with regret, and a vote of thanks given for their past service to the Guild.

The members were glad to hear from Mrs. Wangler that sales had increased about $700 over the previous year, and this in a season regarded as very poor by many local business men.

Mrs. Rosett gave a report for the education committee as follows: Mrs. Stowall's weaving classes were successful; Mrs. Stagg's classes were so popular that additional groups were arranged for; an exhibition of students work was held at the end of the summer.

Mrs. Wetterau's children's workshop was well attended, 15 children enrolled for a period of nine weeks. Their ages varied from six to 12. They did craft work in wood, metal, and felt and were also taught clay modelling and painting.

They made miniature theatres of fairy tale subjects. The older children made papier-mache puppets, the younger ones made the simpler rod puppets. At the end of the season they gave a charming and colorful puppet show with music — Stravinsky's Petrouchka Ballet. The children's summer work was exhibited in the work shop at this time. Mrs. Wetterau was fortunate to have the assistance of Marcia Waterous with the younger children. The proceeds from the puppet show were donated to the Woodstock Recreation Field.

Richard Chambers, who also teaches at the Phoenix School of Art in New York, taught design and metal work for the Guild in his own studio in Byrdcliffe.

Mention was made at the meeting of the success of Mrs. Ganzo's Gallery which will continue at the Guild next summer.

After the meeting tea was served on the terrace. The Guild will be open from now until Thanksgiving from 10 a. m. to 5:30 daily, with the exception of Tuesday and Thursday mornings. From the day after Thanksgiving it will be open seven days a week until Christmas Eve for the Holiday Fair held every year at that time by the Guild.

Everyone is welcome to attend the dedication service of the new organ of which the parishioners of the Methodist Church are justly proud.

Legion to Meet

Woodstock, Sept 26—The regular meeting of the Woodstock Post No. 1026, American Legion will be held in the club house tonight at 8.

Cubs to Organize

Woodstock, Sept. 26—Cub Pack 34 will meet at the Woodstock Recreation Field Thursday at 7 p. m. for the purpose of organizing the program for the 1951-52 season. During the meeting there will be a campfire and hot dog roast and all parents of the boys are requested to attend. A number of new boys will join the pack at that time. In the event of rain the Cub Pack and their guests will meet in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Sept. 26—Mrs. Felix Graf is in the Kingston Hospital for a few days following a fall near her home Sunday night when she sustained a shoulder injury. Mrs. Karl Cousins and Mrs. Mollie Higgins Smith will celebrate their respective birthdays—Sept. 25 and 29—on Sept. 30 by journeying to Poughkeepsie to the home of Mrs. Alton Hoyt who will entertain at a large family party.

O'Neil Cools Meat For Rightful Owner

The person who left a package of meat in the car of Osmond O'Neil, of 183 Green street, yesterday, may have had a meatless dinner last night, but he can make up for it by investigating the Elks Club "cooler."

Police were notified at 5:15 p. m. that the meat had been left in the O'Neil car while it was parked back of the Kingston Trust Company building, Main and Fair streets, apparently because the car resembled that of the meat purchaser. O'Neil placed the package for refrigeration at the club.

Burglary Solved

A burglary at the Rosslers Town Shop in Rosendale was investigated Tuesday by County Investigator Leonard Belmore with the result that a young high school lad was picked up and questioned. He admitted entering the place some time Monday night. Restitution was made and Mr. and Mrs. Rossler, because of the youth of the lad and the probability that prosecution would ruin his high school career, told the officials they did not desire to press a charge. Because of the age of the lad the name was not made public.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Many Ways to Play This Strange Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"What is the right way to play this hand?" asks a Wichita fan. "Declarer actually won the first club with dummy's ace, drew three rounds of trumps, and cashed the three top hearts. If the hearts broke, he could concede a club and claim the rest. When the hearts broke badly, he finessed the jack of diamonds. This lost, and South actually went down two.

"Was this South's best chance for the contract?"

It is not the best play for the slam. South should take the first club with dummy's ace and then draw four rounds of trumps. Dummy discards a low heart on the fourth trump, but perhaps the defenders will have a little trouble. At this stage they can't be sure what the hand depends on.

South next leads the jack of clubs from his hand. East wins and returns a heart (the best defense). Dummy wins with the king of hearts and returns a club for South to ruff with his last trump. Now South takes the ace and king of diamonds.

By this time dummy is reduced to a diamond, the nine of clubs, and one small heart.

South has ace-queen-three of hearts. What three cards can West save? If he saves his fourth club, he can keep only two hearts, and South wins the rest. If West gives up his fourth club, dummy's nine is good.

This line of play would work if either defender had long hearts and also long clubs; or if either defender had long hearts and also the queen of diamonds. South makes his contract also if the hearts break 3-3. He may make it if one of the defenders discards unwisely on the fourth trump.

The combination of all these chances is better than relying on a heart break coupled with the diamond finesse. What's more, if the worst happens, South is set only one trick. The extra 100 points is not the chief consideration, but it shouldn't be entirely disregarded.

fortable day and ate for the first time. An earlier bulletin said George continues to gain strength.

A medical man said, "it is very good news indeed. It means the king is nearly out of the immediate crisis."

Medical experts predict the 55-year-old king will enter another danger period about Saturday. They say there is a risk of late complications such as infection and "secondary hemorrhage."

The king is confined to a palace sickroom for what is expected to be a long fight. His doctors cut out all or part of one lung affected by a disease they have not disclosed.

Still undecided is whether Princess Elizabeth, heir to the throne, will leave Oct. 1 on her visit to Canada and the United States.

Palace officials indicated a decision will come later this week.

Hanstein Named To Defense Post Left by Shurter

Col. Allan L. Hanstein, a veteran of both World War 1 and World War 2, has been appointed temporarily to the position of Ulster County Civil Defense director to succeed Howard C. Shurter, who recently resigned. The appointment of a temporary director was made by Roy F. Denniston, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. A permanent appointment will be made by the board of supervisors at its next meeting.

Col. Hanstein resides at 109 St. James street, Kingston, and also maintains a residence at Westkill, Greene county. He is engaged in the insurance business at 41 Pearl street and has been in the insurance business for over 25 years.

In World War 1, Col. Hanstein served with the engineers overseas and held the rank of first lieutenant at the close of the war. In World War 2 he was for four years with the transportation corps.

For many years Hanstein has been interested in civic activities and has been associated with numerous drives and campaigns in the city to raise funds for worthy charities. He was recently elected vice president of the committee which will have in charge the observance of the 300th anniversary of Kingston, an event which is to be celebrated next year.

During the drive for funds for the Kingston Hospital building program he was chairman of the initial gifts committee and is presently a member of the board of directors of the Kingston Hospital. He is a member of Kingston Rotary and a director of the State of New York National Bank.

The resignation of Howard C. Shurter, director of the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, which was submitted due to the press of duties in connection with that office, has been received and accepted by Denniston as chairman of the board of supervisors.

New York Shows 198,892 2nd Day; Total Is 392,142

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—On the second day of New York city's sluggish registration for the off-year Nov. 6 election, 198,892 persons enrolled yesterday to bring the two-day total to 392,142.

Both the second-day registration and the two-day total lagged far behind similar totals for a number of years past.

The second-day figure compared with 343,967 on the second day for last year's election, which was an off-year with the exception of the mayoralty race. The second day figure for the 1947 off-year election was 279,779.

The two-day total last year was 638,606 and in 1947 it was 494,739.

Registration here will be resumed next week — running Wednesday through Saturday to complete the six-day enrollment.

Even in Queens where the first day's total was the only figure to better that of the 1947 registration, yesterday's enrollment fell off in comparison.

That borough, with two major election battles, had a second-day registration of 39,253, making a total of 74,531 for the two days. This compared with 64,553 on last year's second day and last year's total of 118,052. In the 1947 off-year registration the second day in Queens saw 46,708 persons enroll for a two-day total of 81,737.

Apparent Everywhere

The low registration figure for the two days was apparent in all boroughs, despite city-wide interest in the forthcoming election for the city council presidency.

In Manhattan, 49,920 persons registered yesterday for a two-day total of 99,351. This compared with 1950's figures of 87,601 and 165,852, while in the 1947 registration the comparative enrollment was 67,225 and 120,513.

Only 38,192 persons registered in the Bronx for a combined total of 75,905 compared with last year's 67,624 and 127,490. In 1947, there were 61,009 the second day and a combined total of 107,826.

Brooklyn, with traditionally the greatest registration, had 66,982 registrants yesterday, making its total 133,892 for the two days. Last year that borough saw 117,512 persons enroll the second day for a total of 215,267 and four years ago the comparative totals were 98,365 and 173,881.

In Richmond, yesterday's name-taking added 4,545 persons to the voter lists for a two-day total of 8,463, which compared with 6,677 and 11,945 in 1950, and 5,574 and 10,782 in 1947.

Price Control . . .

and cents tops on wholesale pork prices, effective Oct. 1. OPS officials said the result may be a drop of as much as five cents a pound in some places in ham and bacon prices.

3. The Senate Banking Committee voted in favor of handing back to the government authority to impose—but with conditions this time—livestock slaughtering quotas. Congress banned slaughtering quotas in this year's economic controls law. The revision, which goes before the Senate now, also provides there shall be no beef price rollbacks. It requires OPS to keep its quotas elastic enough to take in all animals offered for slaughter.

4. The Agriculture Department reported that meat production under federal inspection continued last week to be under the level of a year ago. It gave smaller marketings of beef cattle—down 15 per cent—as the reason. But marketing of hogs was up, the department said, by seven per cent.

The nationwide crackdown on meat slaughterers and distributors began at dawn yesterday, from coast to coast. Virtually all available OPS enforcement officers were thrown into action.

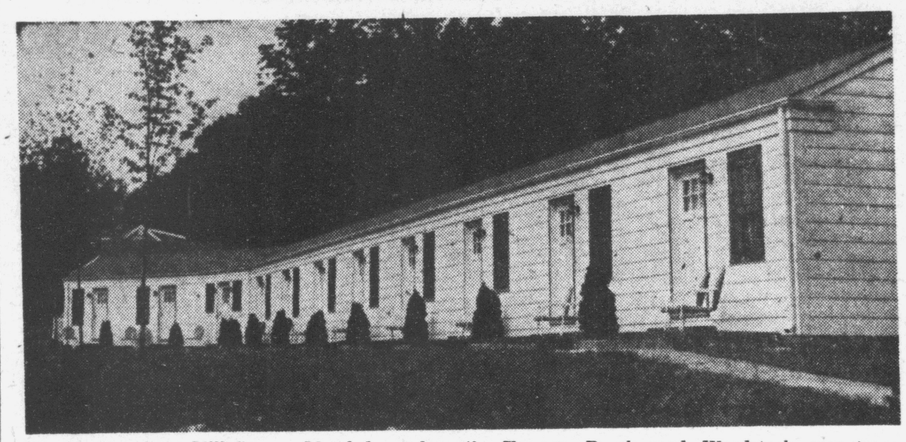

Offenses charged in first reports, a New York OPS official said, may result in both civil and criminal prosecutions. Criminal violations carry penalties up to three years in jail plus a $10,000 fine.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Craftsmen Elect Officers for Year

Woodstock, Sept 26—At the recent annual meeting of the Woodstock Guild of Craftemen the following officers for the coming year were elected:

Allan Gould, president; Konrad Cramer and Isabel Doughty, vice presidents; Josephine Barnard, secretary; Jessie Stagg, corresponding secretary; Bernard Lapo, treasurer; Katharine Wangler, executive manager; Alice Wardwell, nominating committee; Louise Lindin, policy committee; Frances Rogers, book committee; Elizabeth Clough, consignors' representative; Rosalind D'Albis, shop committee; Anita Stallforth and Linda Walter, house committee; Blanche Rosett, education committee; Konrad Cramer and Rudolf Wetterau, co-directors on education committee; members of the education committee are Margot Cramer King, treasurer, Richard Chambers, Edward Chavez, Arnold Blanch, Isabel Doughty, Marion Chambers, Jessie A. Stagg, Fred Dana Marsh, Walter S. Van Wagenen, and Elizabeth Clough.

The resignations of Mrs. William Moncure and Mrs. Catalano were accepted with regret, and a vote of thanks given for their past service to the Guild.

The members were glad to hear from Mrs. Wangler that sales had increased about $700 over the previous year, and this in a season regarded as very poor by many local business men.

Mrs. Rosett gave a report for the education committee as follows: Mrs. Stowall's weaving classes were successful; Mrs. Stagg's classes were so popular that additional groups were arranged for; an exhibition of students work was held at the end of the summer.

Mrs. Wetterau's children's workshop was well attended, 15 children enrolled for a period of nine weeks. Their ages varied from six to 12. They did craft work in wood, metal, and felt and were also taught clay modelling and painting.

They made miniature theatres of fairy tale subjects. The older children made papier-mache puppets, the younger ones made the simpler rod puppets. At the end of the season they gave a charming and colorful puppet show with music — Stravinsky's Petrouchka Ballet. The children's summer work was exhibited in the work shop at this time. Mrs. Wetterau was fortunate to have the assistance of Marcia Waterous with the younger children. The proceeds from the puppet show were donated to the Woodstock Recreation Field.

Richard Chambers, who also teaches at the Phoenix School of Art in New York, taught design and metal work for the Guild in his own studio in Byrdcliffe.

Mention was made at the meeting of the success of Mrs. Ganzo's Gallery which will continue at the Guild next summer.

After the meeting tea was served on the terrace. The Guild will be open from now until Thanksgiving from 10 a. m. to 5:30 daily, with the exception of Tuesday and Thursday mornings. From the day after Thanksgiving it will be open seven days a week until Christmas Eve for the Holiday Fair held every year at that time by the Guild.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Many Ways to Play This Strange Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"What is the right way to play this hand?" asks a Wichita fan. "Declarer actually won the first club with dummy's ace, drew three rounds of trumps, and cashed the three top hearts. If the hearts broke, he could concede a club and claim the rest. When the hearts broke badly, he finessed the jack of diamonds. This lost, and South actually went down two.

"Was this South's best chance for the contract?"

It is not the best play for the slam. South should take the first club with dummy's ace and then draw four rounds of trumps. Dummy discards a low heart on the fourth trump, but perhaps the defenders will have a little trouble. At this stage they can't be sure what the hand depends on.

South next leads the jack of clubs from his hand. East wins and returns a heart (the best defense). Dummy wins with the king of hearts and returns a club for South to ruff with his last trump. Now South takes the ace and king of diamonds.

By this time dummy is reduced to a diamond, the nine of clubs, and one small heart.

South has ace-queen-three of hearts. What three cards can West save? If he saves his fourth club, he can keep only two hearts, and South wins the rest. If West gives up his fourth club, dummy's nine is good.

This line of play would work if either defender had long hearts and also long clubs; or if either defender had long hearts and also the queen of diamonds. South makes his contract also if the hearts break 3-3. He may make it if one of the defenders discards unwisely on the fourth trump.

The combination of all these chances is better than relying on a heart break coupled with the diamond finesse. What's more, if the worst happens, South is set only one trick. The extra 100 points is not the chief consideration, but it shouldn't be entirely disregarded.

King Continues

fortable day and ate for the first time. An earlier bulletin said George continues to gain strength.

A medical man said, "it is very good news indeed. It means the king is nearly out of the immediate crisis."

Medical experts predict the 55-year-old king will enter another danger period about Saturday. They say there is a risk of late complications such as infection and "secondary hemorrhage."

The king is confined to a palace sickroom for what is expected to be a long fight. His doctors cut out all or part of one lung affected by a disease they have not disclosed.

Still undecided is whether Princess Elizabeth, heir to the throne, will leave Oct. 1 on her visit to Canada and the United States.

Palace officials indicated a decision will come later this week.

O'Neil Cools Meat For Rightful Owner

The person who left a package of meat in the car of Osmond O'Neil, of 183 Green street, yesterday, may have had a meatless dinner last night, but he can make up for it by investigating the Elks Club "cooler."

Police were notified at 5:15 p. m. that the meat had been left in the O'Neil car while it was parked back of the Kingston Trust Company building, Main and Fair streets, apparently because the car resembled that of the meat purchaser. O'Neil placed the package for refrigeration at the club.

Burglary Solved

A burglary at the Rosslers Town Shop in Rosendale was investigated Tuesday by County Investigator Leonard Belmore with the result that a young high school lad was picked up and questioned. He admitted entering the place some time Monday night. Restitution was made and Mr. and Mrs. Rossler, because of the youth of the lad and the probability that prosecution would ruin his high school career, told the officials they did not desire to press a charge. Because of the age of the lad the name was not made public.

Hanstein Named To Defense Post Left by Shurter

Col. Allan L. Hanstein, a veteran of both World War 1 and World War 2, has been appointed temporarily to the position of Ulster County Civil Defense director to succeed Howard C. Shurter, who recently resigned. The appointment of a temporary director was made by Roy F. Denniston, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. A permanent appointment will be made by the board of supervisors at its next meeting.

Col. Hanstein resides at 109 St. James street, Kingston, and also maintains a residence at Westkill, Greene county. He is engaged in the insurance business at 41 Pearl street and has been in the insurance business for over 25 years.

In World War 1, Col. Hanstein served with the engineers overseas and held the rank of first lieutenant at the close of the war. In World War 2 he was for four years with the transportation corps.

For many years Hanstein has been interested in civic activities and has been associated with numerous drives and campaigns in the city to raise funds for worthy charities. He was recently elected vice president of the committee which will have in charge the observance of the 300th anniversary of Kingston, an event which is to be celebrated next year.

During the drive for funds for the Kingston Hospital building program he was chairman of the initial gifts committee and is presently a member of the board of directors of the Kingston Hospital. He is a member of Kingston Rotary and a director of the State of New York National Bank.

The resignation of Howard C. Shurter, director of the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, which was submitted due to the press of duties in connection with that office, has been received and accepted by Denniston as chairman of the board of supervisors.

Ward Price Error

The price of the home freezer advertised by Montgomery Ward in Tuesday's issue of The Freeman was incorrectly stated. The correct sale price is $324.88.

Automobile Stuck, Train Is Halted

Quick action by state troopers last night following notification that a car was stuck on the Glenerie Park crossing of the West Short Railroad, saved the car of Mrs. Winnie Ford of 138 Washington avenue and averted a possible serious accident.

At about 11 o'clock last evening Mrs. Ford started across the tracks after visiting friends at Glenerie Park. She misjudged the distance and her car ran off the crossing planking and became stuck on the tracks.

People in the neighborhood observed her plight and called the state police station on the Saugerties road. They in turn called the West Shore train dispatcher at the Kingston station and requested the passenger train, then about due to leave, be held at the station until the tracks were clear.

A tow truck was sent to the scene by James Hodges and the stranded car hauled free. Traffic was then resumed on both the highway and the railroad.

The answers to everyday insurance problems
By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: A car traveling at high speed passed me on the road, hitting the highway shoulder as it went by. A rock, thrown back by its wheels, broke my windshield. Is there any insurance protection for an accident of that kind?

ANSWER: The Comprehensive insurance which is usually sold with an auto fire and theft policy would pay for a loss of that kind.

*If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE OR OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.
